Found Dead, Shot Through Mouth, On Edge of Lonely Grove.

EDGARTOWN, Mass., May 4.—Married on Saturday, Charles M. Pease, a wealthy farmer, on Chappaquiddic Island, was found dead to-day at the edge of a grove on his farm. He had been shot through the mouth, and his own rifle lay several feet from him.

The circumstances in the case preclude the possibility of suicide, according to the authorities, and it is the current belief that Pease was murdered by an unknown assailant of the woman he married. The supposed murder has aroused intense excitement, and the police and county authorities have begun a thorough investigation.

WAS SHOT THOUGH MOUTH.

Pease's body was found by Charles N. Beetle. He had been shot through the mouth, and as his rifle lay a short distance away, the idea of suicide was accepted for a time. Investigation, however, shows that it would have been impossible for the man to have shot himself in the mouth with the long-barrelled rifle.

He could not have pulled the trigger with his fingers, while holding the gun in that position, and the guard prevented his using his foot for the same purpose.

Then, too, the rifle was found several feet away from the body in a position in which it would not have fallen had Pease fired the shot himself.

MARRIAGE UNEXPECTED.

Much mystery surrounds the case from the fact that little is known in Edgartown of Pease's wife and his unexpected marriage. The dead man was forty-three years old, and was supposed to be a confirmed bachelor. He lived a lonely life on his farm, cultivating it enough to supply his wants, but spending much of his time in fishing.

He was well known and liked all over Martha's Vineyard and adjoining islands. Chappaquiddic has about 100 inhabitants, most of whom knew each others' affairs entirely.

Early last week came the first sensation which the little settlement has known for some months. It was whispered about that "charlie" Pease was going to be married. This much Pease was said to have stated himself, but more than that all the neighbors could not find out. Pease declined to answer all questions relative to his proposed bride.

MYSTERY ABOUT BRIDE.

All he would say was that he was tired of living alone and that the future Mrs. Pease would be a surprise to the "Vineyard." When asked where his intended bride lived, Pease said: "Not around these parts."

Wednesday, Pease left the island. He returned Saturday with his bride, and she certainly did startle the farmers' wives. Mrs. Pease proved to be a wonderfully good looking woman, tall and fair. She is about thirty years old, and dressed in a manner that proved that she was from "the city."

WIFE WAS RETICENT.

Neighbors found the new arrival as reticent about her affairs as Pease had been. It that they learned was that she was

COOKE TO FIGHT CASE IN 12TH TO A FINISH

Special to Boston American.

MILFORD, May 4.—Judge A. C. Dewey's refusal to take jurisdiction in the Milford District Court this morning on the complaint of Dr. George F. Cooke, of Milford, charging irregularities and illegalities in the conduct of the Twelfth District Convention, held in Boston April 26, to elect delegates to the National Democratic Convention, means that the matter will be brought to a higher court, where Dr. Cooke feels certain of his petition for an inquest being granted.

Dr. Cooke is one of the Hearst managers for Massachusetts.

Dr. Cooke, in his petition to the court, asks for an inquest on the methods pursued by the convention officers in the conduct of the convention business. The petition asked for the inquest under the provisions of chapter 11, section 307, of the Revised Laws of Massachusetts, which gives a police court justice the right to order an inquest.

Dr. Cooke alleges seven distinct violations of law in the conduct of the convention. The exact wording of the complaint was not given out by the Clerk of the Court, who said that since jurisdiction had been refused here, the petition would in all probability be filed in some other court.

It is understood, however, that the arbitrary ruling of Chairman Briggs, of the convention, are held to have been in error, and that the use of the Hospelde credential by a Blackstone resident is questioned. Objection is also made, it is said to the holding of the convention in Boston, which is outside of the district.

TO STOP WIVES PLAYING CARDS

NEW YORK, May 4.—The Married Men's Anti-Euchre and Home Preservation Society has been organized by twenty-one Bayonne, N. J., husbands.

A man named Kicks, in accepting the presidency of the new society, said: "Many a night I have had to walk the floor with the baby until 2 or 3 o'clock, waiting until my wife returned from a euchre party. It has got so that the Clubs meets every afternoon and evening, and are now talking about playing on Sunday."

NEGROES TO LEAVE OHIO ON LYNCHING'S ACCOUNT

SPRINGFIELD, O., May 4.—A meeting of negroes will be held this evening, when a proposition for the purchase of the 10,000 acres of Minnesota land for a colony will be considered.

The recent lynching has led the negroes to consider the proposition.

DENOUNCES SPOILS SYSTEM

PALMER, May 4.—W. W. Vaughan spoke to the State Federation of Women's Clubs, meeting here to-day, on "Civil Service Reform." He said among other things:

"Under the spoils system a candidate relies upon his influence, or "pull"; under the merit system upon his ability to do the work. "Public office, a public trust," is our motto. The spoils system is always associated with Andrew Jackson, but he no more invented it than Ananias invented lying.

"Ancient history shows that it was in effect 1,000 years before the Christian era, King Solomon followed it as thoroughly as Andrew Jackson. We find it in Rome, India, France and formerly England. It is really nothing but the old passion for getting something which you want, even if it doesn't belong to you.

"Now is the time to fight it, because the world is now waking up at last to the evils of the system, just as the world waked up to the wrongs of slavery in the last century.

"It is really a great moral movement, and as such must appeal to women especially. It is this organized effort that we beg them to press forward."

WM. RANKIN, BROCKTON, DEAD.

BROCKTON, May 4.—William Rankin, a County Commissioner, of Plymouth County since 1886, a director of the Brockton Agricultural Society and Superintendent of its poultry department since 1874, and former member of the school board, died at his home here this morning.

JAPS TOOK GUNS WITH COLD STEEL IN TERRIFIC DASH

Official Reports of the Battles on the Yalu Show the Fighting to Have Been of a Most Sanguinary Character---Magnificent Bravery on Both Sides----Japs Greatly Outnumbered Russians----Lassulitsch's Errors Retrieved by Gallantry.

LONDON, MAY 4.—THE AMAZING COURAGE OF RUSSIANS AND JAPANESE ALIKE IN THE BATTLE OF THE YALU, ONE OF THE MOST TERRIFIC LAND ENGAGEMENTS IN THE HISTORY OF MODERN WARFARE, IS SHOWN BY TODAY'S DETAILED DISPATCHES FROM THE FAR EAST.

NOTHING MORE DRAMATIC THAN THE STORY OF THE CHARGE OF THE RUSSIAN REAR GUARD ON THE MIKADO'S TROOPS IS OFFERED IN FICTION OR THE DRAMA. WITH THE BUGLERS IN FRONT, SOUNDING THE CHARGE, AND A PRIEST WITH THEM, HOLDING ALOFT A CROSS, THE RUSSIANS, WITH FIXED BAYONETS, CHARGED ON THE ISLANDERS.

The brave priest was shot twice in the body and severely, perhaps mortally, wounded. But the impetuous charge was unchecked, and the Japanese opened a way before the Russians who succeeded in reaching the supports.

MAD BAYONET CHARGE.

Equally courageous were the Japanese soldiers. With fixed bayonets they charged repeatedly on the Russians, in the face of a heavy fire, driving the Czar's soldiers from their heavy guns in hand to hand conflict. With each charge of the Japanese the Russians gave ground. The mountainous nature of the country prevented the Russians from taking their guns with them in their flight, and they were abandoned after the breach locks had been removed.

Dispatches from St. Petersburg contain General Zassalitch's story of the fight, transmitted to the Czar by General Kuropatkin. He says:

"The twelfth and twenty-second regiments and the second and third batteries of the sixth brigade of artillery were engaged in the battle, which began with heavy cannonading on our right flank by siege guns at Wiju and field batteries in the distance. The situation of the defenders' position became increasingly difficult, especially at Podtelinsky, which was bombarded on the front and on both flanks.

BODIES LAY IN HEAPS.

"The Japanese, under our fire, made continual bayonet attacks on our troops. Japanese bodies lay in heaps at the river fords.

"Simultaneously with the attack at Podtelinsky, an attack was being made on our left flank at Turenchen, and the Russian trenches had to be abandoned under the Japanese enfilading fire. Our reserves several times mingled with the first line, thus enabling it for a long time to maintain its position.

"Finally, all of the supports were brought up into the firing line, but owing to the great distance from our main reserves, it was impossible for them to reach the advanced force in time, and our men retired from the principal position to another position in the rear of Turenchen, followed by the concentrated fire of the Japanese, who could not make up their minds to descend from the crest they occupied and face the fire of our batteries and pontoons. They dug fresh trenches and opened a heavy artillery fire on our new position and began to turn our left flank toward Chigow.

JAPS DECLINED CONFLICT.

"A battalion of the Eleventh Regiment, both flanks of which were repeatedly turned by the enemy, advanced with fixed bayonets, preceded by buglers, to clear a passage. The Japanese, however, declined a hand-to-hand conflict and recoiled.

"In front of the regiment a chaplain bearing a cross was struck by two bullets.

"It was only by advancing on the Japanese with the bayonet that the 7th regiment was able to retire.

ALLIED CRAFTS MAY GO OUT IN SYMPATHY WITH STRIKING BOLERMAKERS.

Incensed by the importation of a big force of railroad detectives and Pinkerton men sent to South Boston by the officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, ostensibly to guard the property of the company while the strike of the boilermakers at the shops in the vicinity of Boston is on, the strikers are preparing to take measures which may result in a complete tie-up of the whole system. The union engineers, firemen and brakemen, who are transporting the strike breakers, may be called out. If the freight handlers are called on, the system would be paralyzed.

Mutterings of discontent are heard on every side. The men view the action of the company as wholly unwarranted, inasmuch as there has not been the slightest intimation of trouble since the strike was declared.

Every Approach Guarded.

With the strike breakers who were sent here to take the places of the boilermakers in the shops at South Boston, Roxbury and Norwood, came the railroad detectives and Pinkerton men. To-day they guard every approach to the freight sheds of the company in South Boston; [illegible] loading over to the company's [illegible] cordon of detectives; the [illegible] of Lawrence, on which the [illegible] are quartered, is patrolled by a force of armed men, all in the employ of the company.

Strike breakers going to and from their work are surrounded by a big force of men.

The railroad detectives are assisted to-day by a force of twenty-five of Jude Eammon's policemen. This is another source of grievance to the strikers.

Strikers Likely to Protest.

The strike breakers are conveyed to and from their work on trains manned by union men. The striking boilermakers are in session to-day considering the advisability of sending a formal protest to the Brotherhoods of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen against the road's employes, who are manning the trains on which the strike-breakers are carried. They may decide to ask the brotherhoods that the engineers and firemen be compelled to refuse to run these trains on which there are strike-breakers. This, if ordered, would precipitate a general tieup in Boston and would eventually spread over the entire consolidated system.

Other union men may be ordered out if present conditions continue. Switchmen, machinists, freight handlers and other unions resent the action of the company in sending men here to take the place of the strikers and also the importation of armed

METHODISTS EXPECT CLASH OVER DANCING

Attempt to Be Made to Repeal Paragraph in Code at Annual Conference.

SIX VACANCIES TO FILL

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 4.—The most important conference in the history of the Methodist Episcopal Church began here this morning in Hazard's Pavilion. Bishop Merrill, the venerable senior bishop, opened the first session with devotional services.

The announced intention of several influential members to attempt to repeal "paragraph 248" of the church code has roused the orthodox delegates and a clash is expected. This paragraph refers to dancing, attending theatres, circuses and horse races; renting property for saloon purposes and playing games of chance as "improbable and unchristian, and grave enough to justify expulsion on an third offence." The repeal is sought by members who had relatives and friends in the Iroquois Theatre disaster at Chicago.

Seven hundred and eighty-four members, representing three million members of the church, are enrolled. Four bishoprics are vacant. Bishop Merrill is expected to ask for his retirement. The superannuation of another Bishop is predicted. These two additional vacancies will make a total of six bishoprics to be filled. The candidates having the strongest support are the Reverends Thomas Neely, J. W. Hashford, William McDowell, of New York City; H. A. Buchtel, Denver; R. T. Cook, Athens, Tenn.; J. W. Bowen, Atlanta, Ga.; Henry Spellermeier, Newark, N. J.; James Berry, Chicago; Homer Stuntz, presiding elder, Philippine District, and J. E. Robinson, presiding elder Calcutta District.

Legislation will be had in the proposed consolidation of the benevolent societies, the unification of the missionary societies and the formation of one society from the several educational and aid societies. An effort is being made to amalgamate the different societies. Failure is predicted because of the large vested interests of the several societies.

Reports of the publishing agents of the church will show that while the physical assets are worth at least $3,000,000, the properties of the church, including its periodicals and papers, are valued at fully $10,000,000. Editors and publishers will be elected. A consolidation of the publishing house is proposed. Advisability of increasing the salaries of bishops from $5,000 and traveling expenses to $6,000 will be discussed.

GUN SCARES BOY BURGLAR

"Oh! please don't shoot me, mister."

According to the police, Roy Blaisdell sought to be a burglar and this is what he said when caught in the grocery store of E. B. Harding, Lynn, by Patrolman S. D. Chrisp, who "covered" him with his revolver. If the same building was found William F. Harding, twenty-two years old, of Chittenden, who was also surraigned in the Lynn courts to-day.

Tarbox heard the breaking of glass, and knowing that a litter of valuable bull pups had been left in the Harding place suspected that it was these the thieves were after. Where the dogs ought to have been, but had been removed, he found Blaisdell.

TUMULT ON AT A.O.U.W. MEET

"Don't get excited! This is just what we anticipated."

In these words John Simonds took charge of the annual meeting of the grand lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, according to the testimony of Curtis A. Brown, grand master workman. The case came up to-day before Justice Lothrop of the Superior Court. It was that of the grand lodge against John Simonds and others who say that they were elected to office at the annual meeting in February, 1903.

Mr. Brown related in court the incidents of the tumultuous meeting. He said Mr. Simonds's friends had snatched up the gavel and borne their man to the chair.

Thomas F. Temple, registrar of deeds, also testified.

HOLY NAME CLUB'S MINSTRELS PLEASE ALL

The minstrel show of the Holy Name Club of St. Vincent's Church, South Boston, continued to-day the topic of conversation in the parish. It was given at St. Augustine's Hall and was a decided hit. All participants were in black, except the end men, who were brilliant in red.

James F. Sweeney was interlocutor, Joseph Crowley, Joseph McGregor, Lawrence O'Donnell and Edward Sherlock were "bones," and John McCarthy, John O'Brien, Joseph Towle and James Wallace were "tambos." The rest of the front comprised: F. J. Abram, John Bergh, M. V. Brennan, Daniel Burns, James Campbell, Daniel Creamer, Fred Dolan, Peter Donovan, Joseph Dunn, Frederick Fox, William Haley, Frank Kingsbury, Joseph Langton, Frank Havlin, William Hawkins, J. F. Their guns and cuffs, with their dog lying alongside them, were found.

RUSSELL SAGE WILL STAY IN NEW YORK AND PAY UP

NEW YORK, May 4.—Russell Sage is not to leave this city, according to Mrs. Sage. He will pay the taxes demanded on his personal property, though he believes it has been unjustly treated.

tion regiment, all the troops were able to beat a retreat.

The losses of the Eleventh and Twelfth regiments were very great, but they are not yet exactly known. In the Eleventh, the killed included Colonel Lansing and Lieutenant-Colonel Dometti and Lieutenant-Colonel Rabevsky. The Twelfth lost nine company commanders killed or wounded.

Up to the present 800 wounded, including fourteen officers, have been brought to the hospital at Feng Wang Cheng. Their eventual transportation elsewhere is fully assured.

MORALE STILL GOOD.

Lieutenant-General Zassulitch declares that the troops retained their morale, notwithstanding the heavy losses, and are ready for fresh engagements.

The Japanese losses were very heavy at the passage of the Ai River, at their position at Tunchen and on the hill occupied by the two battalions of the Eleventh regiment.

NAVAL CADETS JAPS HEROES

ST. PETERSBURG, May 4.—A press telegram from Port Arthur describes the latest attempt of the Japanese to bottle up the port on Monday last as unparalleled in naval history for its daring. The crews of the fireships were composed of Japanese naval cadets, who acted with the greatest bravery and most desperate valor in the face of a murderous fire.

According to the report of Viceroy Alexieff, thirty men, including two mortally wounded officers, who took refuge on a launch, have been rescued from the fireships by the Russians or picked up. The inspection of the roadstead and the work of saving the enemy's men were hindered by the heavy sea running. The Russians suffered no casualties, with the exception of a seaman belonging to the torpedo boat destroyer Boevoi.

An idea of the terrific resistance offered by the Russians in defending the channel can be gained from the fact that in all 1,500 shots were fired by the Russian batteries and guards on the attacking fireships.

JAPS READY TO RESUME ATTACK

SEOUL, May 4.—A message received states that two Russian field guns were among the armament captured in the battle of the Yalu river.

The Japanese have buried their dead and given medical attention to their wounded, and are now preparing to advance, the message adds.

Many of the enemy were found hiding in the under brush and were taken prisoners.

BLOCK CHANNEL AT PORT ARTHUR

LONDON, May 4.—The Central News has a wire from its Rome correspondent stating that a telegram received there from Tokio asserts that the latest Japanese attempt to block the channel of Port Arthur harbor was successful. Two vessels, says the telegram, now lie in the harbor entrance.

RUSSIANS STOP MAIL SHIP

The Japanese mail was demanded, but was not touched by the Russians, as it was at the bottom of the pile.

NIUCHWANG IS NOT YET TAKEN

LONDON, May 4.—A London Chronicle despatch, dated Chefoo, asserting that the Japanese had taken Niuchwang, is thought to be false. Niuchwang, which is on a river and about thirty miles from the sea, could not possibly be taken except as a result of an attack of at least two or three days' duration. There are American correspondents at Chefoo, Shanhaikwan, Niuchwang and Yinkow, any one of whom would certainly have reported an attack upon Niuchwang.

JAPAN WILL OPEN PORTS.

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., May 4.—The Post hears in an official quarter that Japan has notified America and England that it is her intention to open Corea and such parts of Manchuria as come into her control to the commerce of the nations.

These points will be subject merely to such restrictions as are unavoidable in war time.

STUDENT TRAITORS HANGED.

BERLIN, May 4.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg states that three students have been hanged for trying to induce Polish soldiers to throw down their arms when they meet the Japs.

AMBUSCADED BY JAPS.

LONDON, May 4.—A special dispatch from St. Petersburg says that Lieutenant-General Zassalitch fell into an ambuscade, owing to the Japanese interrupting a telegram from General Kuropatkin.

DOCTOR GETS DIVORCE, THEN SUES CONDUCTOR

BRIDGEPORT, May 4.—Scarcely had Judge Rosebeck granted a decree to Dr. Benjamin F. White, when Robert N. Knapp of Stamford, a conductor on the New York & New Haven Railroad, was arrested in an action for $10,000, for alienation.

Mrs. Martha H. Young, a New York detective, testified she followed Mrs. White and Knapp to a hotel in Stamford, where they registered under the names of "Mr. and Mrs. J. Stevens."

RED HAT FOR EITHER MGR. IRELAND OR RYAN

ROME, May 4.—Pope Pius, on receiving fresh recommendations for the creation of another American cardinal at the next consistory, to-day stated that he would not take any definite action in the matter until he had conferred with Archbishop Falconio. The present indications are that should another cardinal be created the hat will go to either Archbishop Ireland or Ryan.

MUST EXPLAIN HIS CONDUCT.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Lieutenant-Colonel William F. Pitcher, of the Twenty-eighth Infantry, who is alleged to have filled Miss Caroline Harold on the eve of the wedding day, has been called upon by the War Department to explain his conduct.

talk is heard among the employes. The freight handlers are most emphatic in the denunciation of the company, and are discussing the advisability of a general sympathetic strike to back up the boilermakers.

Strikers Are Orderly.

The strikers are making no trouble. Everything on the docks, around the shops and in the yards is quiet and orderly. For this reason the men claim that the presence of the Boston policemen is not needed, and at the meeting at which the other questions were considered was that of sending to Judge Emmons a protest against the detailing of linemen in South Boston.

Judge Emmons defends his action by saying that it is the duty of the police force to preserve order and prevent the possible destruction of property, no matter to whom it belongs.

"The railroad people informed me," said the Judge, "that they feared a disturbance in South Boston. There was nothing left for me to do but to detail a force of officers to prevent this. Some of the police force is taking no sides whatever in this controversy.

"You may say," added the Judge, "that I think from present appearances that the police will be kept there."

WEALTHY FARMER SLAIN BY LOVE RIVAL

Swedish and had been a school teacher. Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Pease wandered over the farm, he with his dogs, she with a golf club. She remarked to a caller that she was going to teach her husband the game of Scotland.

No one remembers seeing either bride or groom when they were not together after the arrival on the island. When Pease went to work on his farm Monday, Mrs. Pease accompanied him.

NEIGHBOR FOUND BODY.

Yesterday, about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, Charles N. Beetle was going by the Pease house, Mrs. Pease came out and hailed him.

She seemed much agitated, and said that her husband had been gone since noon and that she feared something had happened to him. Beetle endeavored to quiet her fears, telling her that there was nothing to worry about, because her husband had not been seen for two hours; that farmers were frequently absent from their homes the entire day.

Mrs. Pease, however, insisted that some danger threatened her husband, and to reassure her Beetle consented to seek his missing neighbor. An hour later he came upon the body of his friend.

The front teeth had been knocked out and a bullet hole in the back of the head showed the manner of death.

Pease's rifle was a 44-calibre, and an effort was made to-day to find the bullet to see if it fell in the dead man's rifle.

A mysterious boat has been seen hovering near the island since Sunday. It has not been seen since yesterday, and it is argued that a suitor of Mrs. Pease might have landed from that, waited his time and finally found his revenge.

ARRESTED; IN A COLLAPSE

William E. Austin, in a pitiable state of nervous collapse, was arrested to-day in Baker's transformation at Roxbury on complaint of James D. Gill, of the Internal Revenue force. To the charge of peddling cigars without the Internal Revenue certificate and without having previously given the required bond Austin pleaded not guilty, before Commissioner Fiske. The case was continued to May 14, and $300 bail was furnished.

ARRESTED FOR LARCENY OF $125; HELD TILL MAY 5

George I. Butters, fifty years old, was arrested this morning for the larceny of $125.83 from Edwin R. Taylor, of No. 164 Federal street. Butters was employed as a collector by Mr. Taylor, and it is alleged that he has failed to turn his receipts over to the firm. In court this morning he was held in $500 till May 5.

Butters is fifty years old, married, and lives at No. 177 K street, South Boston.

PARENTS LEFT 4 TO STARVE

Ragged, starving and suffering from the effects of three little children of Michael and Margaret O'Meara, of 11 Fellows street, were turned over to the care of the Catholic Home for Destitute Children by Judge Julian Mason.

The rooms in which the family lived were in a revoltingly dirty condition, and there were only two beds for the whole family. The mother is in jail awaiting trial.

HEAVY TAXES PAID BY HUB'S NEWPORT COLONY

Professor Alexander Agassiz pays more tax money in Newport than any other Bostonian having a summer estate in the Rhode Island resort. He is taxed $1,641.60 a year on an estate valued at $230,900. Miss Fannie Foster ranks second in this regard among the Boston colony. Her estate is valued at $193,500. Next comes E. Rollins Morse at $167,700, and then Nathaniel Thayer at $56,700.

Summer residents still pay two-thirds of the total taxes of Newport.

AUTO JUMPS ACROSS WALL

ATHOL, May 4.—Dr. Garrett B. Larkeque's automobile bucked and jumped on Orange road, while he was teaching George Perry the chauffeur's art, and when it bounded over a stone wall the doctor took a header over the dasher and struck a barn with such force that he was unconscious for several minutes.

"My auto," said the doctor, "leaped the wall as neatly as a horse and charged the barn at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour. It was a miracle that we both were not killed.

The machine, with 300 pounds of steam on, kept kicking into the barn like a bull. Each time it hit the barn it bounded away, and then butted back again. At last Dr. Larkeque came to his senses and turned off the steam.

WOODEND LOST ON PATTI TOUR

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Dr. William Edwin Woodend, the ruined broker, looking happy and contented and protesting his innocence of wrongdoing told an AMERICAN reporter today of his troubles.

"I have personally no money," said Dr. Woodend, "and I hope that something will be saved out of the wreck for the creditors. I had a prosperous business and made money. All sorts of propositions were made to me for investment, and one came from Robert Grau that I should back Patti in a farewell tour of this country. He told me that there would be an immense fortune in it, and I put $40,000 into the venture. The season started, but was not a success, and I was called upon to give up $30,000 more. Patti wanted more money, but I shut down with the $70,000.

"I am broke and sorry for it, but I think there is a good chance for me to get on my feet again and make a living."

$300,000 CITY STREET BILL AT 3RD READING

The bill authorizing the city of Boston to expend $300,000 upon the improvement of Centre street, Jamaica Plain, was passed to third reading in the House of Representatives to-day. Representative Quinn characterized it as a means of improving farm land owned by Josiah H. Quincy at the expense of the city.

50 LETTERS BREATHING HIS LOVES

SERGEANT MAKES DENIALS.

"Why he has written my sister fifty letters, breathing love in every line! Twenty-five of them she has turned over to her lawyer. He was an ardent wooer and showered her with presents. Her engagement ring was a diamond with two topazes. He gave her a long coat and a set of furs."

The eyes of Mrs. Earl F. Chaney flashed with indignation when she was told that Sergeant Edward T. West of the Metropolitan force had denied that he was betrothed to her sister, Miss Warren, and voiced the intensity of her feelings by the above statements. Miss Warren has sued the sergeant for $4,000 for alleged breach of promise.

"Sergeant West," continued Mrs. Chaney, who lives on Tapley avenue, Revere, "first met my sister Grace at my house, where she boarded, when we lived in Brighton. While my sister came to visit me, a friendship soon sprung up between them. They continued to meet quite frequently.

"The last time they were together was one night in March, 1902, at Beethoven. Two weeks later she received a letter to the effect that he felt he could not hold her to her engagement.

"At that time, it seems, he was visiting Mrs. Delia R. C. Valiantine, his present wife.

"When the wedding was announced my sister immediately consulted a lawyer, and Sergeant West knew he was going to be made defendant in a suit. He called on my husband and asked him if he would interfere with my sister, and have the case settled out of court. He even named the figure he was willing to give in order to avoid a trial of the case.

"Miss Warren has absolutely no grounds on which to base an action against me for $4,000 for breach of promise of marriage," declared Sergeant Edward T. West, of the Metropolitan force to the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day.

"Why, the whole thing is ridiculous. I admit I knew the young woman slightly, but I have not seen her in three years, and must deny most emphatically that there ever was any engagement or talk of marriage between us.

Miss Warren, who lives at 29 Madison street, is one of the belles of Malden, and for nearly five years it was quietly understood that she was won by the dashing police sergeant. Miss Warren has shown the following letter from West, which, she says, is but one of many:

Jan. 1, 1900.

Dear Hinda—I cannot relate the longing to write to you the first day of the year. You do not grieve about my attentions to you, just be true to me and some day I will make you happy. Let us go to the theatre. Any theatre you may name. From your ED.

INSULTS JUDGE; SENT TO JAIL

"This is the first time I've been in court and I am not going to be ruled by a cheap politician like you."

This startling reply to Judge Charles M. Bruce in the Malden district Court by Robert B. Murphy, of Everett, caused a stir in the courtroom, and officers of the court immediately prepared to quiet Murphy, who was much excited.

He made no further stir, but the fine of five dollars for drunkenness, over which he became angered, was changed, and a sentence of thirty days in the House of Correction was substituted.

Murphy appealed and was ordered to furnish $200 bail for his appearance in the Superior Court.

PICKETING BILL IS ENGROSSED

Although the picketing bill was passed to a third reading by a vote of 91 to 43 by the House of Representatives, its opponents made a last effort to defeat its passage to an engrossment.

A rising vote, however, disclosed a majority in its favor, and it was ordered engrossed.

The discussion in favor of engrossment was conducted by Mr. Schofield, of Ipswich.

APPLAUDED TOO MUCH MUST PAY FINE OF $10

At a Jewish drama in the Hub Theatre Lewis Fileberg was so carried away that his applause drowned out all the efforts of the tragedians.

A protest from the audience lead to the arrest of Fileberg and to the Municipal Court to-day Fileberg was fined $10.

Why Don't You Ride Your Bicycle ?

DUPED, SHE DECLARES, BY HANDSOME FRANK O'TOOLE.

JILTED GIRL SUES THE HUB ALDERMAN FOR $5,000

Mary J. Lee, Pretty, Still Loves Him, She Says, and Tells of Case.

Has Many Letters From Him; Interesting From Political History Viewpoint.

Following the sensational announcement of a suit for $5,000 for alleged breach of promise brought by pretty Miss Mary J. Lee, of No. 70 West Newton street, against Alderman Frank J. O'Toole, on the day the young politician's marriage to Miss Eva Brayley, of Dorchester, was made public, it was said to-day that Miss Lee would file a second suit to recover money which she claims to have loaned to the Alderman during their courtship.

FRIENDS TEN YEARS.

Miss Lee and the Alderman have been intimate friends, according to her story and statements of friends, for nearly ten years. Miss Lee claims that they were engaged to be married during that time, and that she fully expected to become the Alderman's wife. She declares that the amount of money loaned him by her aggregates more than $250. She has a trunk load of exhibits in the form of letters, detailing her love affairs, and also, she says, throwing side lights on the political history of Boston during the last decade.

ALDERMAN AND HIS FORMER LOVE.

FRANK J. O'TOOLE.

MARY J. LEE.

CARRIAGE BILL FIGURES.

This latter feature, as much as the romance in the case, makes it especial interest. Among the carriage bill of the aldermanic board of 1898, of which Mr. O'Toole was a member, is the subject of some of these letters, it is said, and interesting revelations may result.

Alderman O'Toole and his family declare that there is nothing whatever on which to base the suit, and say that it will be fought in court. The Alderman's sister said to-day to an AMERICAN reporter at the Hotel Manx, No. 21 Westminster street:

"Miss Lee came to Frank ten years ago, when some relative of hers was in trouble, and through his political influence he was able to serve her. Since then she has been trying to get Id nite marry her. She has even asked him, in the presence of others, to marry her, and he has refused.

WILL FIGHT SUIT.

Alderman O'Toole has not as yet filed any answer to the suit of Miss Lee. He declares, however, that it will be fought out in the courts.

The fact that Alderman O'Toole had married Miss Brayley was discovered by Miss Lee only by accident. In the meantime she declares that Mr. O'Toole continued to call upon her and take her to the theatre and other places of amusement.

"I was calling upon some friends in Dorchester three months ago," said Miss Lee to a reporter of the BOSTON AMERICAN today, "when a girl friend of mine mentioned casually that Frank O'Toole had been married. I thought she was joking as I had been to the theatre with him only the night before and I laughed heartily at what she told me.

"The following day I called on Frank at City Hall and demanded of him the real truth concerning his alleged marriage. He assured me that he had not married Miss Brayley or anyone else, and declared that he would take care of me, and that I should not bother my head over the gossip which was at that time going the rounds.

"I believed Frank then, as I had at all times, and although the proof of his marriage was almost beyond question, yet I determined to give him the benefit of all reasonable doubt—but now," and here Miss Lee burst into tears, "I find that he has actually sent out his wedding cards which announce that the wedding occurred as far back as last November.

Miss Lee is an attractive young woman, and with light brown eyes and a very business-like air. She declares that she still loves Alderman O'Toole, and it was with reluctance that she filed the suit for breach of promise.

"RIDICULOUS," SAYS O'TOOLE.

Alderman O'Toole was not disturbed over the matter.

"The whole thing is ridiculous," he said, "and I can think of no earthly reason why Miss Lee should have brought the suit at this or any other time. I have nothing to conceal, but you can say that there will be no compromise. I am perfectly willing to fight the matter out in open court."

PREFERS HER HOME TO HER BOY HUSBAND

But Little Margaret Forbes' Father Will Not Seek to Annul Marriage.

"LIKES MAX AS A FRIEND"

Eighteen-year-old Margaret Forbes, the bride of one month, who was torn from her sixteen-year-old husband, Max Jackson, by the whole affair as a huge joke, but is glad she is back home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Forbes, No. 18 Hart street, Brookline.

"We went to the West End," said the girl, "and spent our time in going around the city and seeing the sights. We were on our way to the theatre when papa met us and took me away from Max. Max is a good boy, but I don't care for him any more than a mere friend, and will not go back to him. We thought it was a good joke to run away and get married, but I am glad papa found us and took me back home. I am helping mamma this morning, and like it better than being a married woman."

Pearly Teeth and Dimples.

Margaret is a pretty girl, with pearly teeth and deep dimples in both cheeks. She is a brunette, with a mass of flowing dark brown hair.

The parents of Margaret do not look upon the marriage as lightly as does the girl.

"The whole affair was a childish frolic," said Mr. Forbes, "and the young people did not realize what they were doing, but I have consulted the law and found that the only way to annul the marriage is to obtain a divorce from Jackson; but this we will not do.

"That the parents concerned on both sides are bitter against each other is false. I have nothing against the boy except that he has never done any work, and is not capable of supporting a wife. There is no love between them, and whatever put the idea into their heads is beyond my comprehension. If this youngster goes to work and makes a man of himself I may consent to allow her to live with him, but I doubt very much that Margaret will ever want to go with him again."

Blames the Boy's Mother.

"The boy's mother, Mrs. John N. Jackson, No. 454 Centre street, Jamaica Plain, has tolerated the union and encouraged them. She has thrown open the house and her arms to my daughter, and knew all the time what was going on between them."

"I shall certainly make every effort to have the son's marriage annulled. He has been duped into this marriage," said Jackson says.

"Well, we are married anyway," remarked Max Jackson to his mother, after the couple had carefully rehearsed him for running away, "and I don't much see how any one else can raise such a disturbance about it."

U. S. NOW OWNS PANAMA CANAL

PANAMA, May 4.—The formal act of turning over the Panama Canal to the United States Government was performed with much ceremony at 7 o'clock this morning. The canal was received by Major General Brooks and staff on behalf of the United States. Consul General Gudger and other prominent Americans witnessed the ceremony, which concluded with the raising of the American flag.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—General George Davis, Governor of the Panama zone, accompanied by a corps of engineers, will leave Tuesday, and on arrival at Colon will assume entire control of the canal property just acquired by the United States.

The laborers now employed there by the French company, of whom there are about 700, and who have been working under American direction for the past year in the excavations of the Culebra cut, will be continued.

36 CAMBRIDGE POLICE AFFECTED BY SHIFT

The "big shift" in the Cambridge Police Department went into effect to-day. Thirty-six men are affected, most of the patrolmen being changed to beats near their homes.

Edward J. Comerford, for some time clerk in the Chief's office, goes on a beat. Charles W. Priest is transferred to the clerkship.

CHARGES THAT HER HUSBAND HAS KIDNAPPED BABY GIRL

CHILD AND PARENTS IN LYNN KIDNAPPING CASE.

Florence A. Dabney Says He Has Stolen the Daughter and Eloped.

Mrs. Florence A. Downey, who charges her husband, George A. Downey, of Roxbury, with kidnapping their pretty five-year-old baby Gladys and eloping with a young woman who posed as his daughter by a former marriage, declared to-day to an AMERICAN reporter that she would never give up her search until she has recovered her child.

"I love my little girl better than life, and would die if I could not get her," she cried.

Mrs. Downey was granted a separate support decree on Monday by Judge John W. McClin, on the ground of cruelty and abusive treatment, and allowed $7 a week alimony and the custody of the child. There was no contest, but when Mrs. Downey called, with her attorney, John W. Rimmer, at her home in Roxbury to claim the child, she found that Downey had disposed of the household goods at auction and disappeared.

A Mysterious Woman.

With him had also gone the little girl and the mysterious young woman, who, under the name of Allison Downey, had posed as his daughter by a former marriage. The police were at once notified, and Superintendent Pierce began a search for the trio, who are thought to be in New York.

Little Gladys Downey is a remarkably bright child and talks and acts like a girl of ten years. She has dark brown eyes and curly brown hair. When Mrs. Downey last saw her the child was dressed in a loose black velvet coat reaching to the knees, with three rows of white braid on the collar and wore a large white hat.

After her disappointment of Monday, Mrs. Downey went to Lynn, to the apartments of her daughter by a former marriage, Miss Ethel Blake, in the Algonquin. When seen there to-day by an AMERICAN reporter, Mrs. Downey said:

Child Gone: Home Empty.

"After getting my decree from Judge McIwraith Hotel, said she had written to her uncle down East, who gave her the father's address. She added: 'If you care to see me I would be pleased to have you come.'

Swallowed the Story.

"My husband showed me the letter and although he told me that he had never been married before, I was pleased to think he had found his daughter after fifteen years of separation. I swallowed the story.

"The young woman called at our house Sim Monday. I called at my former home, No. 114 Howard avenue, Roxbury, for the child. An empty tenement greeted my eyes when I arrived there. He had taken everything, including all my personal effects and many knick-knacks that I treasured more than money. Why, he even went off with photographs that I have had for twenty years, and souvenirs sent me by friends from Japan, India and England.

"On further investigation my lawyer found that he had disposed of the goods at the Providence Storehouse & Investment Company, corner of Massachusetts and Shawmut avenues. He has left me penniless. I haven't a cent and must look for work.

Has Lock of Child's Hair.

"The only thing I found at the empty tenement was a lock of my child's pretty brown hair which I kept after she had her hair cut the first time. It lay on the floor as though thrown there. I think he has taken the child to New York and, as the law decided that I was entitled to her, I will get her back if it takes my whole lifetime.

"My present troubles began March 10, when my husband received a letter from a young woman who claimed she was Miss Allison Downey, a daughter by his first wife, from whom he was divorced fifteen years ago. She said she and Mr Downey never saw it during those fifteen years. This young woman who claimed she was a cashier for the Moody Dental Company and was stopping at Commercial She appeared to be between twenty-two and twenty-five years old, despite the fact that Mr. Downey's child by his first wife was three years old when the divorce was granted. I welcomed the young woman, her attitude toward my husband was most loving. She called him 'papa' many times and would sit in his lap, and kiss him during almost the whole visit.

Called Him "Popper."

"I thought this was all right the first few times, but it became sickening. She would sit in his lap for hours and call him 'Popper.'

"I was not jealous, even then, although she had his whole soul and affection before she had been at the house three times.

"One day I found him say to her, as she sat in his lap:

"When we get rid of her (Mrs. Downey), you can come and live here. It suddenly dawned on me that I was being duped, and that the young woman was not his daughter. Now I am confident she is an impostor, and a murderer once I ever heard of. I believe she has eloped with him.

"While still in doubt, I brought the matter to his attention by saying, after one of the girl's visits, 'Sammy, I think you would use more discretion.' He said, 'Shut up; then struck me.

Drove Her from House.

"On March 30, early in the morning, he came to my bedside and said: 'Get up you and get out of this house. I'll give you five minutes to get out of the house. I don't want you around.' He drove me into the street without any breakfast, and I was forced to come to Lynn and live with my daughter. He also threatened to kill me. Then I secured a position at second work in the home of Mrs. Pinkham, No. 306 Western avenue, Lynn. The last time I saw Mr. Downey was March 30, when I was ejected from my little home in Roxbury.

Scar on Downey's Face.

Downey is five feet eight inches tall, dark complexion, dark drooping moustache, slightly bald, giving appearance of high forehead, high cheek bones, thick lips and slight stamp. A scar one inch long in the middle of his forehead, running up and down, is very prominent. He wears a light cheek suit.

The woman with him is five feet four inches tall, rather stout, light hair and complexion, light blue eyes, hair parted in middle and done up low in the back. She appears to be between twenty-two and twenty-five years old.

Mysterious Pretty Woman in the Case on Which Police Are Working.

"HOW OLD IS ANN?" ECLIPSED.

HERE'S THE LATEST PUZZLE

It Looks Simple, It Is Simple, But Solve It if You Can, or Ask Your Friends if They Can Tell the Answer.

If a brick weighs seven pounds and a half a brick, how much does a brick and a half weigh?

Do you remember how old Ann was? Here is another problem, apparently just as difficult of solution and probably just as easy when you know how.

IF A BRICK WEIGHS SEVEN POUNDS AND A HALF A BRICK, HOW MUCH DOES A BRICK AND A HALF WEIGH?

That is the brick problem. Can you solve it? If you think you can, send in your solution, worked out in your own way, and the BOSTON AMERICAN will print it with others.

If you are like Algy, "awfully good at Algebra," you can work it out that way. Or you can bring such rules of mental arithmetic as linger in your memory to bear on the problem. There are numerous ways of reaching the proper solution, and the BOSTON AMERICAN wants to find them all.

This isn't a gold brick. What's the answer?

Address your solutions to Puzzle Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN.

$100,000 FUND TO ERECT MONUMENT TO LINCOLN GONE

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Records unearthed in the office of the treasurer of the United States show that a fund of $100,000 was raised by popular subscription about forty years ago to erect a monument to Lincoln. The design for the monument was accepted and then the project mysteriously dropped out of sight. What became of the $100,000 is not known.

General Spinner, who was at that time treasurer of the United States, was treasurer of the monument association, and among the men to whom the work was entrusted by the congressional act were Alexander Randall, James Harlan, Benjamin Hamey, Nathaniel P. Banks, Jacob Benton, Whitty M. Collins, John T. Benjamin, Horace Maynard and Rufus Mallory.

The monument, as planned, was to have been erected in the front capital, and was to have been of granite, seventy feet in height, triangular in shape and surmounted by a heroic figure of the martyred President.

LIFE SAVERS FIGHT A FIRE

Special to Boston American.

NEWPORT, May 4.—Captain Chauncey Kenyon, keeper of Brenton's Point Life Saving Station, was burned in extinguishing a fire which threatened the station.

A pot of boiling grease upon the range in the kitchen started the blaze. The cook's cries for help brought the life savers.

Captain Kenyon was early burned about the arms, face and hair, and was removed to his quarters by some of the crew, while others fought the fire.

The fire department was called, and after a run of four miles, the flames were extinguished. Damage $500.

GOLD FEVER IN ATTLEBORO

The gold fever has struck Attleboro. Members of the Attleboro branch of the Latter Day Saints, who recently came into possession of a gold mine at Cumberland, R. I., just over the State line, have arranged to work the mine.

Ore has been assayed, and is said to be worth from $5.50 to $15.50 a ton. Ten acres of land, which is said to have been worked half a century ago, is owned by the Saints.

David H. Curran, a farmer who owns a large tract of land adjoining the Mormon property, has turned miner, and has had specimens of ore from his land assayed. The result has encouraged him to continue.

FEE, $244,500 IN WILL CASE

One of the largest lawyer's fees on record is believed to have been paid to E. M. Morse, by Mrs. Willoughby H. Stuart, for breaking the will of her father, the late Arioch Wentworth, and securing for her $2,000,000 of the Wentworth millions.

According to the records of real estate transfers, Mrs. Stuart has conveyed to Mr. Morse property assessed at $244,500, making the fee ten per cent of the amount secured.

The bulk of the Wentworth millions was bequeathed for the founding of an Indus- trial home. Mrs. Stuart was cut off with a few thousand dollars. She contested the will with the aid of Mr. Morse, who also successfully represented contestants in the Ursi Crocker will case.

LYNN SOCIETY GAMBLING RAID

WOMEN'S PHOTOS SEIZED IN

In a raid made by the Lynn police on the Lobdell building, No. 37 Central square, the officers seized, in addition to two patrol wagon loads of gambling paraphernalia, a bunch of photographs of the leading women in Lynn society. The police refuse to divulge the names of the women.

Edward Mullen was charged in the Lynn Police Court to-day with being the proprietor of the place. The men found in the place gave their names as Charles Lambert, Michael Dolan, Nathan Brown, John Goldan, Michael Kelley, William Taylor, Albert R. Perry and George Hall.

Judge Berry fined the men $5 each in Lynn court to-day.

AGED WOMAN WALKS ALL WAY FROM SALEM TO HUB

Having tramped all the way from Salem to Boston, Mary English, sixty-five years old, rested quietly and in comfort today at the Relief Hospital.

She was brought there by boys, who found her wandering aimlessly in Keany square. She talked incoherently and the boys for a time took her to be a witch. Gathering courage they took her in hand and provided shelter for her at the hospital.

She will be sent back to Salem by the city authorities unless she has relatives here.

INEXPENSIVE BEAUTY

The advent of "Mission" furniture has introduced a delightful novelty into modern house furnishing.

The true "Mission" furniture was made by the monks and friars of the 16th and 17th centuries in Southern California, Arizona and Central America. The pieces now offered are copies from these old, hand-made articles. In their great variety, they are suited to the needs of every room in the house of to-day.

From their simplicity of line, and the absence of all decoration, they are the most inexpensive cabinet work that can be bought. The "fuming" of the oak and the other chemical processes through which it passes, disclose unsuspected qualities of beauty in the heart of the wood.

We are the headquarters in this city for "Mission" and Arts-and-Crafts furniture, and we quote very low prices for it.

GIRL FACES BIGAMY CHARGE WITH A SMILE

HUSBND IS LOYAL TO HER

Calm and smiling, Florence Leach appeared in the District Court at Stoughton today, ready to face charges of bigamy. She was accompanied by her eighth husband, George Hall, who, with her latest husband, who remains true to her, acted in her behalf. Examination was waived and the young woman was held in $500 for the June term of the Grand Jury. Mr. Hall furnished bail.

Town Clerk H. F. Studley was in court with the records of marriages under his arm but he was not called upon to produce them. The court room was filled with friends of the young woman. Percy Spiers, her latest husband, was on hand, anxious that the interests of his wife should be guarded carefully.

The prisoner, who is only nineteen years old, is even younger looking and is bright and attractive. She is a decided blonde and dresses stylishly. Her full name is Florence Vera Woodman Leach, with the additional names which she has acquired by marriage of Gould and Spiers, her two husbands.

Her first husband, Harold Gould, of East Bridgewater, has not appeared in the case. Miss Leach insists that she was persuaded by him that their marriage was illegal because she was only seventeen years old, and that when she married Spiers she was convinced that she was not legally bound to anyone else.

For a short time after her marriage to Spiers the young couple lived with the latter's parents in Rockland. Shortly after and they separated, the young wife going to the home of a neighbor, Mrs. William Ingalls, where she lived until she found employment.

Percy Spiers is emphatic in his declaration of faith in his wife.

"I will stick to Florence no matter what comes," he said today. "I would gladly go behind the bars and change places with her."

Miss Leach is a member of the Baptist Society, and has many friends. Her stepbrother, George Hall, proprietor of the Howard House at Montello, gave bail for her immediately after her arrest.

They are charged with the theft of $100 worth of goods from Allen McDonald, of No. 48 Liverpool street, East Boston.

A LUZON SAVAGE'S LOVE AFFAIR.

Harrowing details of the manner in which the head hunters of Northern Luzon woo the dusky maidens of that country have been received at the State Department from Lieutenant Percy A. Hill, of the Philippine constabulary. Lieut. Hill is harrowing to Americans, but it stands to reason that the eligible maids of Luzon approve of it. But, however, the fact remains that the Luzonian warrior, when he seeks to find favor in the eyes of his loved one, lays at her feet the head of his latest enemy.

Of course the more distinguished the warlor whom that head once adorned, the better chance has the suitor that his proffered love will be accepted. For no native girl is so proud that she is not anxious to have a nice fresh head to show to jealous rivals.

As a consequence, when the warriors of Northern Luzon go out to battle, keen eyes as well as ambition and natural ferocity strengthen their arms. They are generally on the warpath in February and in March, according to the report, and their weapons consist of campilans, or decapitating knives, calisahs, which are long daggers and in addition they carry bolos and long javelins. They are very expert in the use of all these weapons, which are extremely deadly in their hands.

The warriors are a sturdy lot, most of them exceeding five feet ten inches in height, and their muscles are hardened by constant exercise. They have no religion, save the veneration of their aged chiefs.

STRIKE AT MONOPOLY, NOT LABORERS' WAGES

—WILLIAM N. OSGOOD.

PROMINENT BOSTON LAWYER ANSWERS PRESIDENT ELIOT'S ARGUMENT.

To the Editor of THE AMERICAN:

We should thank President Eliot for the interest which he takes in industrial questions. He has certainly set a most commendable example to educators throughout the country. The fact that he is a great educator at a great private institution of learning ought not to preclude him from being a public educator, if he is willing to make the sacrifice. Public happiness, indeed, as President Eliot says, should be the real aim of employers and employed alike, and both should find enjoyment in their work, and be influenced by lofty ideals.

It will hardly do, however, to expect to arouse in a laborer who is continually getting after his condition a real love for his work and an exalted devotion to public happiness, in the same close intimate, as President Eliot did, that prices in general were too high, including those of wages, and then draw the deduction that high wages prevented any bettering of elements in our cities, "habitually" enjoyed by many European cities. We can hardly expect the recipient of these alleged high wages to listen very sweetly to the old remedies for industrial ills after that. His advice concerning the Golden Rule, good will and so forth, naturally falls on deaf ears.

Why Not Curb the Trusts?

The truth is that our present industrial relations are the result of extremely complicated and artificial conditions. The solution of our problem does not consist in continually devising more and more complicated and artificial remedies, or in advocating merely good conduct and servility on the part of those employed. It consists rather in removing some of the complications and applying the ordinary laws governing the industrial relations of men.

This is not so difficult to accomplish if we keep constantly in view public happiness and not the private happiness of a particular class or portion of the community. I would not imply that President Eliot intends to teach the happiness of a class, but is not that the direct tendency of his teachings? Are not his remedies recommended in the interests of a class? If not so, why does he criticise high wages, and say nothing about the high prices of necessaries which are controlled by a class —a class of monopolists, in fact, which unjustly rules over all industry and is capitalizing unlike the ordinary employer and employed? Would it not be better to favor high wages and curb the power of those who make high prices in basic, food and cotton? Why is it that our great educators do not endeavor to instruct the public concerning the forces in our country which threaten the destruction of the liberty, not only of the employed, but of the employer also?

Labor Unions a Necessity.

Why does President Eliot have so much to say about the fancied monopoly of labor and so little to say about the real monopolies, a thousand times more injurious to the employer? If there could be such a thing as a monopoly of labor, it would seem that it should be the last and not the first to be destroyed. In the nature of things there can, in fact, be no such monopoly, and President Eliot is unquestionably frightened at a shadow.

I submit that if the industrial and economic relations of the country were attuned to natural and correct principles, there would be no such things as strikes and boycotts. In fact, there would be no need of labor organizations. They exist now only from necessity. They are not the cause of industrial inequality and disorganization, but the result of the selfishness and inhumanity of the real enemies of public happiness.

President Eliot says, "The unions and their orators also use a false and inflated rhetoric in describing the alleged abuses against which they are contending. One would suppose from the language often employed by them that they were suffering under grave disabilities and were suffering at the hands of the United States Steel Corporation." Is it not true that the conditions of labor in most trades of the United States are extraordinarily favorable to the labor orators, when we think of any former period of industrial history?

The Only Progressive Force.

For the sake of argument, admitting this to be true, must the employed stop? Must he be contented with his lot? He is not contented. He is thinking about the future welfare of himself and his children. The indispensable fact is that the employed, acting together, are the only visible progressive and radical force in the community working for public happiness. All other forces are weak and ineffective, and oftentimes working against public happiness. It is unquestionable that President Eliot represents a force in the community which is not radical, and I am about to say he represents those who loudly profess to be the real conservatives, and who are certain that "whatever is, is right," because they are present directing affairs.

As President Eliot says, the current industrial disputes are but forms of warfare. Let us welcome to the interests of good will between employer and employed the strong Anti-boycott Association. This association is composed of citizens opposed to labor organizations. Its membership is secret, and it holds out anything but an olive branch to organized labor.

First Destroy the Causes.

How can the encouragement of this secret association assist in destroying class distinctions between the employer and the employed, which President Eliot is so seriously desirous to destroy? The truth is that the whole question of the relation between employer and employed is misstated. It is not fundamental, because the interests of each ultimate man and woman are the same, and no amount of argument can change that truth. Under normal and just economic conditions there would be no labor troubles. Any disputes between employer and employed, such as labor troubles, would, Until such economic conditions obtain, we will have industrial troubles and fanciful and inadequate remedies. When the causes of the existence of such conditions are removed, we shall have destroyed, we shall have both industrial and public happiness, and not until then. Cannot the great educators of the country be induced to see these things? Very respectfully yours,

WILLIAM N. OSGOOD.

SAM PARKS DEAD IN SING SING HOSPITAL

ONCE POWERFUL LABOR LEADER WAS SERVING SENTENCE FOR EXTORTION.

OSSINING, N. Y., May 4.—Sam Parks, the former walking delegate of the Housesmiths and Bridgemen's Union, who was serving a two years' sentence in Sing Sing for extortion in connection with building strikes in New York, died at 2:15 o'clock this morning in the prison hospital. He was serving a term of eighteen months in Sing Sing. He failed almost immediately after he fell into the clutches of the law, presumably on account of death.

RETRIBUTION

A Sermon of "Graft" and Its Results.

BY REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

IN THE consumptives' ward at Sing Sing a sermon has been preached such as never fell from the lips of eloquent divines.

Within the grim walls of that ward Nemesis is vindicated in a way that is graphic, pathetic, terrible.

Within that desolate room, lying close to each other upon cots, were three noted criminals—Sam Parks, "Al" Adams and "Syndicate" Miller—the notorious labor "grafter," the "Policy King" and the "Prince of Get-Rich-Quick" Men. It is a fine sample of what we might call the romance of retribution that these men should be all where they are to-day. It was a more striking fact along the same line that they should all be, as it were on their death beds. Parks is actually dead, and the prison physicians declare that Adams and Miller have but a little while on earth.

Hounded to their hiding places by the justice they had outraged, tried for their crimes and convicted, they lay yesterday almost side by side in that cheerless prison ward racked by remorse, stung by shame, blasted and scorched by evil memory and to fill up the cup of their wretchedness, watching the shadows as they are slowly but inevitably preparing to fall upon them.

The "Policy King" from where he lay could look into the face of "Syndicate" Miller and both could see the screen above Parks's cot, which told that the man behind it was gasping hard for the breath which it was difficult for him to hold. The average human being is human, has some heart and some feeling, and therefore to the average human being the drama enacted in the consumptives' ward at Sing Sing is full of pathos.

It is a picture to touch the heart. It is a tremendously and and sorrowful picture.

But it is not half so sad as the fact that men, knowing the old eternal laws, knowing their unchangeableness, their rigidity, their remorselessness, will, for all that, persist in violating them.

"For it is unsafe to trifle with justice; for it is written, not only in the Old Book, but on the face of nature and the soul of man, that "Though hand join in hand, the wicked shall not be unpunished."

A little while ago Sam Parks had money in his purse, a little while ago Miller was prospering like the "Green Bay tree"; a little while ago Adams was a millionaire, living at the Waldorf Astoria; but to-day one is dead and two are dying at Sing Sing. But-it was "graft" money, money gotten by fraudulent means and it vanished, and the "grafter" and the "policy man" and the "syndicate" man had to pay the penalty at last.

The worthy gentlemen of the "American Bible League for the Defense of the Scriptures" may take comfort from the fact that no matter what may or may not happen to the Bible the law of right and wrong, of which the Bible is but the feeble echo, keeps right on about its work.

So speaks the sermon that is now being preached in that consumptive ward at Sing Sing.

STEEL KING'S HEALTH GONE

BOUND NOT TO DIE RICH

NEW YORK, May 4.—Since the departure of Andrew Carnegie for medical treatment abroad, it has been learned that he is much more seriously ill than the public generally realizes.

The Steel King was under treatment in this city, and his friends have known for some time that his trouble is one which is usually supposed to be beyond permanent cure. The symptoms of Bright's disease were said to be present in his case.

His departure was so sudden that he was compelled to leave unsettled a number of problems connected with his many benefactions. He has not any idea of giving up his interest, however, and some more big donations are soon expected.

According to a recent calculation the total benefactions for only a few years back will foot up to more than $100,000,000.

Carnegie Institute, Pittsburg	$ 7,000,000
Polytechnic School, Pittsburg	2,000,000
Employes pension fund, Pittsburg	2,000,000
Carnegie National Library	5,000,000
Dunfermline endowment	10,000,000
Scotch universities endowment	10,000,000
Libraries in the United States	27,760,000
Libraries in Great Britain	1,500,000
Temple at The Hague	1,500,000
National and miscellaneous	2,000,000
Unclassified gifts in United States	16,000,000
Unclassified gifts, foreign	1,000,000
Total	$100,001,130

It has been figured that even this total goes only a very little way toward preventing Mr. Carnegie from dying a very rich man, and hence dying as he would say, in disgrace.

He retired from business in 1901 in possession of about $240,000,000 of the free per cent. first mortgage bonds of United States Steel Corporation. It is reported able to realize that this present possessions must closely approach $200,000,000. He is now sixty-seven years old.

FAILURES MAY FOLLOW STRIKE

Quincy merchants fear bankruptcy in a few weeks if the strike of 2,000 workmen at Fore River shipyard is not settled soon. "The trade has dropped off 60 per cent in the past week. The men who work at the shipyard have saved little money," said one merchant to-day. "As a class they spend right up to the limit of their salary. They are now living as economically as possible, but unless strikers are given without some of the necessaries of life this condition continues it will be a mighty dull summer in Quincy." A benefit and testimonial benefit for the striking Fore River workmen is about to be given, and will be held May 10 in the Coliseum, Quincy. The sale of tickets proves that the people in that section are with the strikers in addition to dancing to Union Orchestra the committee has arranged the usual list of several entertainers, who will sing and recite for the benefit of those who do not dance. The committee arranging the benefit includes Jay Gallagher, chairman; Miss Mary Walters, treasurer; William Sullivan, Miss Lillian Cunningham, Peter Mullen and Harry Lyfield.

HERO CRAZED BY MEDAL ERROR

By Boston American Leased Wire

NEW YORK, May 4.—Policeman William Allison, hero of the Spanish-American War, was placed in a strait-jacket in Bellevue Insane Pavilion today a raving lunatic. Glory turned Allison's brain. He was the recipient of one of the special medals awarded by Congress for bravery on the field of battle and received the round bronze bauble only last Friday. His mind was strong.

From a modest hero who never talked about his personal achievements he became a boaster.

Some one happened to notice that the medal was crooked and suggested that it gave him credit for fighting at Santiago instead of at Manila. Allison's mind gave him credit for fighting at Santiago instead of at Manila. Allison's mind flew into a rage, hurled anathemas at Congress and declared that Capt. Chitze got Commissioner McAdoo to talk Congress correct the error. He had been sane since.

With difficulty the demented policeman was induced to start for the hospital. He arrived at his station house and asked for his young wife, for he had been married since his return.

When Mrs. Allison arrived and was told that her young husband would never be a sane man she collapsed.

RAINMAKER USED TON OF POWDER

BOMBARDING THE HEAVENS

BUT DROUGHT-STRICKEN ORCHARDS OF CALIFORNIA STILL PARCHED AND WHITENED.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 4.—When a new rainmaker recently appeared in California he was enthusiastically greeted by the orchardists of the El Cajon district, who for months have been praying for rain. Prospects of ruined crops stare the farmers in the face, and their financial loss, unless there be rain soon, will be enormous.

A deluge would not phase the fruit farmers. They are willing to go to any extreme to get rain. No scheme is too wild or too fantastic to be given a trial.

Consequently when W. F. Wright, rainmaker, appeared in their midst with several great mortars which he proposed to turn on the cloud-decked but rainless sky, a purse of $500 was quickly subscribed.

Mr. Wright's bombardment was watched with anxious eyes. For days his great guns belched forth fire at the heavens, Jupiter Pluvius was impervious to these attacks. He did not weep. He has not wept yet.

Up to date the net results of the bombardment are a ton of black powder wasted, and two members of the firing squad maimed for life. The orchardists are out $500.

The rainmaker is still training his guns skyward, and praying fervently that the clouds will answer his long and loud shots.

In the mean time, the weather man, perched in his cyrie, consoles the despairing fruit raisers with the prediction that rain is coming—some time, perhaps to-day.

Inventor Wright claims to have been very successful in bringing down rain on Nebraska's arid plains.

800 BAKERS OUT OF 1,200 ARE AT WORK

MEN SEE END OF STRIKE

The bakers' strike has been practically won, according to the statement of union officers to-day. Out of a total of 1,200 bakers in Boston 800 have returned to work. Almost every independent baker in the city has signed the agreement.

Every small bakery in the city, each employing from two to ten bakers, has signed the scale, and the men have returned to work. The small bakeries are being rushed to their full capacities to supply bread, and no pies are being baked.

The shipment of bread to Boston from outside cities, which might have seriously interfered with the strike, has been stopped. The small bakeries have been forced to stop supplying the big concerns which are still holding out.

It was reported to-day that one of the largest of these latter prominently identified with the Master Bakers' Association had been won over and would sign the agreement with the union. The name of this firm was withheld at strike headquarters, pending the signing of the agreement.

The men claim that this desertion means the disruption of the master bakers' organization.

F. E. Sheppard, manager of the Fox bakery, who is the mouthpiece of the Master Bakers' Association, told the AMERICAN there had been no desertion.

"The situation, as far as we are concerned, remains unchanged," he declared. "I am positive that there will be no break in our ranks and we will concede nothing. We are running open shops."

On the other hand the heads of both unions are equally positive in asserting that the big firm in the city has given in. It is taken as the beginning of the end of the strike, and it is declared that as soon as the name of the firm is made public there will be a rush on the part of the other members of the association to sign the agreement and also reopen their shops.

Two independent dealers signed the schedule to-day. They were A. J. Flagg, ask, of No. 100 East Third street, and H. H. Grenoff, of No. 725 Fifth street, South Boston.

STOWAWAYS TELL ABOUT

DIRE AGONY IN SHIP'S HOLD

Both Lost Reason Temporarily—Lapped Up Stagnant Pool of Water Like Dogs.

Nearly Two Weeks, Old Man and Companion Cut Off from Light, Racked by Thirst.

Hardly able to eat the food with which they are now plentifully supplied prior to being deported, Thomas Woods, seventy-two years of age, and William Jones, forty-two years old, the two stowaways who arrived on the Bohemian after being in the hold for a period of nearly two weeks, to-day told a story of their experience that is almost beyond belief.

Driven insane by the ravages of thirst and hunger the men crept about the hold on their hands and knees and lapped up small pools of stagnant water in the hold like dogs.

"Oh, what a godsend that was," they both exclaimed in telling of it. "It must have been on Thursday night, but whether it was or not we do not know. We had been insane I believe for some time and have but faint recollections of what we really did."

BY WILLIAM JONES.

All I can remember is that I staggered through the hold, determined to risk anything in the attempt to steal food and water. We had long given up hope of receiving any assistance from the crew. Suddenly I heard a splash and getting on my hands and knees, I crept about until I found a pool of water. Eagerly I drank it, lapping it up like a dog. Then I dragged Tom there to the place, and he did likewise. No pen can ever describe our feelings of thankfulness.

Will Haunt Him.

That terrible trip will be before my eyes until my dying day. It will haunt me in my sleep.

Never will I forget the awful disappointment we experienced following the non appearance of three members of the crew, whose absence we had attracted and asked for water. They never appeared again and we were left to die where we were. When matters reached such a stage that we must do out we were too weak to do so.

We decided that we could not be any worse off in this country than in our own, though. A week ago last Saturday we determined to sail with the Bohemian, which we knew was bound for Boston. We gave up hope of getting enough ahead to pay our way, so we tried to steal our passage.

Until the money we could get on Saturday, April 23, when we sailed, was two shillings. With this we bought food. One shilling went to buy a meal for both of us in a restaurant and the other went to by food to supply us on board. We had a chunk of cheese and some dry bread. The hope was that we could make friends with some of the crew and that they would furnish us with what food we would need.

Did Attract Some of Crew.

We felt content with our lot till Sunday morning. Then lack of exercise made us stiff and sore, and we proceeded to limber up. We were unable to attract the attention of the members of the crew with out making our presence known to too many of them. Finally we did get the attention of three of the crew together. Each seemed to be afraid of the others, and it seems they forgot about us, for we did not see them again. That was on Tuesday.

By Thursday we were in a sorry plight. Tom, on account of his advanced age, could not stand it as well as could we. On Thursday, though, we had a last track of the days after this, and could not tell whether it was night or day.

"At one time Tom became delirious. I do not know what it was. I remember his getting off his mind, but I do not remember much afterward. It seems to me that I fell asleep and was awakened when we got here. I suppose I also went out of my head, for I did not remember anything more until I was brought up by the officers to the light of day, then I seemed to awaken from a long slumber."

WOMEN SLAUGHTERED IN ANTI-JEWISH RIOTS

OUTBREAK AT BENDER, BESSARABIA, REPEATS KIS HINEFF SCENES.

Special Cable to Boston American.

VIENNA, May 4.—Anti-Jewish riots have again begun throughout Bessarabian Russia and to Lemberg, in Austria. The report was received to-day of the sacking of the town of Bender, near Kishineff. The riots began Saturday forenoon while the Jews were in the synagogue.

Inflammatory literature was circulated in which the Jews were reported as sympathizing with the Japanese and rejoicing in the Russian reverses. Cartoons demanding vengeance were distributed.

The Bender outbreak was precipitated by the outcries of a drunken lunatic who started the mob on its rush to the Jewish quarter.

The mob rushed shrieking through the streets, smashing the windows and breaking down the doors. All the scenes of the Kishineff massacre were repeated in smaller scale. Women and children caught in the houses were thrown out of the windows into the streets. Cut and bleeding by the broken glass and their frightful falls from the windows of upper stories many lay where they fell unable to move, while others crawled away beaten and kicked by their relentless persecutors.

A girl was murdered in a most revolting manner and the wife of a furniture dealer lying in confinement was thrown from an upper window and instantly killed. Three men were killed in defending their homes. The fortunate arrival of troops from the nearby garrison, getting under orders from Kishineff, was all that saved the greater number of the Jews. Those in synagogues were spared, as no attacks were made upon these places.

The Cossack commander had received orders to stop the slaughter at no matter what cost. Five deaths marked the work of the mob in the short time it had been at work.

It is entertained that other riots will break out shortly.

In Lemberg an anti-Jewish demonstration resulted in the death of several persons. Five scenes enacted in Bender being repeated.

SEES HUSBAND IN 'GILDED FOOL'

Quite as interesting as the play to many in the audience this afternoon at the Hollis Street Theatre, where Nat C. Goodwin is playing in a revival of his old success, "A Gilded Fool," was a box party, in which were the actor's beautiful wife, Maxine Elliott, and his father and mother.

It was the first opportunity the Goodwins have had for a family reunion, since the actor began his present tour. Maxine Elliott's company plays this evening in Worcester, and, taking advantage of the opportunity offered by to-day's matinee at the Hollis street theatre, Miss Elliott arranged by long distance telephone with Manager George J. Appleton for two boxes.

She invited Mr. Goodwin's father and mother to be present as her guests, with several members of her company. After the performance arrangements were made for a family gathering, before Miss Elliott's return to Worcester.

Miss Elliott will join her husband in Providence, en route to New York on Saturday night. In New York they will complete arrangements for an early trip to Europe.

ST. JAMES CHURCH ENJOYS PATRONAGE OF 8,000 PEOPLE AT ITS GRAND JUBILEE

Fully eight thousand people took part in the grand jubilee gathering at Mechanics Hall last night, of St. James' Church. The hall was prettily decorated in the national colors, and about were banners bearing the name of the pastor of the parish, now fifty years old, the Rev. William P. McQuaid, and the committeemen.

After a musical programme, Father McQuaid made an address of welcome, and Thomas A. Mullen followed. Other priests also spoke.

Among those present was Judge Emmons, who said the reunion was the first Catholic event he had ever attended, and that he was glad he had come. Others present were:

Major Henry Hastings of the Governor's Staff, Captain Joseph H. Kenney of Ladder 8 and Mrs. Kenney, ex-Alderman Patrick F. McDonald and wife, Assessor John J. METHODISTS IN GRAND CANYON

THOUSANDS SHUT IN

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LOS ANGELES, May 4.—More than 5,000 Methodists, on their way to the General Conference in this city, were stranded in the Grand Canyon without food and water from 3 o'clock Sunday until late Monday.

Seven sections of the delegate specials entered the canyon. Every car was dangerously loaded. Several of the engines went "dead," and the roadbed gave way, causing a general wreck.

The Grand Canyon Hotel was not stocked for such a host, and its resources were exhausted early in the day. The road was at last repaired and the Methodists enabled to proceed.

STAGE INFLUENCE SAYS WOMAN RUINS MORALS AND CAUSES DIVORCE

"If it were not for the influence of the stage on the morals of the people of America, there would be far more arrest of domestic troubles in the courts and more divorces than there are at the present time.

"The moral atmosphere of the dime museum and cheaper theatres of Boston is better than it is in the higher priced houses.

"Rip Van Winkle' should be suppressed. It is an immoral play.

"More people listen to 'Sapho' than to Macbeth. This is not right. We must get higher plays and we will."

With these remarks Mrs. Harriet W. Bean, of the Chichester Woman's Club, created something of a sensation at the meeting of the Boston Chapter, Actors' Church Alliance, yesterday.

Mrs. Bean impressed on her hearers the fact that she was not talking from hearsay. She said she had made visits to the museums, had talked with the performers, especially a former Bay State lobster, who is now appearing before the footlights in one of these places. The latter, she said, "is a very creditable person."

CHANGE MINDS; WILL WED NOW

LOWELL, May 4.—Miss Emma S. Hamel and George Staples, both leaders in the social set in Lowell, have decided that they do want to get married, after all, and have accordingly applied for and received another license to marry.

Last Friday Miss Hamel said they did not and that it was no one's business why they didn't. The marriage license which had been secured was returned to the City Clerk, and the house they had furnished was abandoned, but to-day it is all different.

Mr. Staples is a prosperous contractor, but he also failed to see why the public should be interested in his love affairs.

NEVER SAID HE'D MARRY MISS WARREN

THE GIRL SUES FOR $4,000

"Miss Warren has absolutely no grounds on which to base an action against me for $4,000 for breach of promise of marriage," declared Sergeant Edward T. West of the Metropolitan force to the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day.

"Why, the whole thing is ridiculous. I admit I knew the young woman slightly, but I have not seen her in three years, and most deny most positively that there ever was any engagement or talk of marriage between us.

"All this talk about an engagement ring and letters is all bosh. I never wrote Miss Warren any letters, let alone giving her a ring. I certainly will defend the action, and have not the slightest fear of the outcome. It is not bothering me in the least."

Miss Warren, who lives at 29 Madison street, is one of the belles of Malden, and for nearly five years it was quietly understood that she was to be the dashing police sergeant. Then came the sudden announcement that he had married Mrs. Della Morrisey Valentine of Revere. The present Mrs. West was divorced from her former husband about four years ago.

Friends of the parties concerned declare that Sergeant West first met Miss Warren, or "Hinda," as he was wont to call her, five years ago. Their acquaintance ripened into close friendship, then love. Miss Warren produced the following letter from West, which, she says, is but one of many:

Jan. 1, 1901.

Dear Hinda—I cannot resist the longing to write to you the first day of the year. Do not grieve about my attentions to you, just be true to me and some day I will make you happy. Let us go to the theatre. Any theatre you may name. From your ED.

Miss Warren says a change came over West some time ago, and that his affections seemed dampened.

Intimate friends of Miss Warren claim that she has every ground for a suit. They say that West paid her marked and loving attention, and that he presented her an engagement ring.

MISS AMORY WINS MELROSE APPLAUSE

ATHLETIC CLUB DRAMATICS SURPASS PREVIOUS EFFORTS.

YOUNG ACTRESSES OF MELROSE.

Fire hundred attended the annual banquet and dance of the Melrose Athletic Club, which was the last of the season. "That Rascal Pat" and "An Engaging Position," two short comedies, were rendered by the Russell Dramatic Club, and made a hit.

The principal character, "Marcia Ledner,"was played by Miss S. Lillian Amory, who has scored success in past plays in Melrose. The humorous roles, "Laura" and "Amelie," were taken by Miss Florence A. Plants and Miss Grace B. Thompson, while Mr. Waterhouse was the hero of the evening in "James Mononette."

Ladies' night at the club always brings out a large attendance but last night's eclipsed all preceding ones. Miss Amory showed tact and adaptability for her part, as did Miss Plants and Miss Thompson.

CATHEDRAL IS FAVORED BY BISHOP

But Episcopalians of the State Must Furnish It an Endowment.

OULINES WORK OF DIOCESE

Bishop Lawrence addressed the 110th annual convention of the Episcopal Church of Massachusetts in Trinity Church on the topic of "The Cathedral." He emphasized his belief in the establishment of the cathedral system in the diocese of Massachusetts. The theme was the bequest of Mary Sophia Walker of $240,000 for the establishment of a cathedral, made when Miss Walker was dying, on February 24, 1904, she requesting the church to give the matter ten months' deliberation before accepting.

Among Bishop Lawrence's pointed remarks were these:

"Is it wise to lock up a vast amount of capital in a great church, even granting its beneficent influence, when the sum might be in hospitals or libraries or for the employment of labor?

"The parishes, missions and institutions of a diocese are its great spiritual constituency; on their integrity and strength the spiritual life of the diocese depends, and no cathedral is true to its best ideal which in any way tends to weaken parochial or local responsibility and opportunity.

"Two conditions are, it seems to me, essential to the creation and administration of a cathedral. First, its administration should be financially independent of the people that happen to be worshipping in its walls, though as a part of their worship, as well as of their Christian duty they should give of their wealth or of their poverty to the church, not, however, to the support of the administration itself. If a cathedral is to do a large and independent work it must have endowment. Again, no cathedral is worth having that has not been built up by the gifts and sacrifice of the whole people.

"We really value the cathedral thought, its representative character, its worship and its work, we, as a diocese, must all have a part in its upbuilding.

FIGHT TO SAVE WOODLANDS OF GRANITE STATE

LUMBERMEN RUIN SCENERY

A vigorous crusade is to be launched against the spoiling of the beauty of the White Mountain region of New Hampshire by woodchoppers. The New Hampshire Daughters' Association, which met in convention in Boston to-day, perfected a campaign against the destruction of the mountain forests.

This bill introduced in Congress at the last session urging the government to preserve the forests of the White Mountains will be backed by every woman's club in New Hampshire.

The Forestry Committee of the association made an interesting report, which showed that awful havoc has been played in the forests of the State; that scores of residents had left New Hampshire because of the devasting work of the woodchoppers, and that the White Mountain region was fast losing its reputation as one of the most beautiful summer resorts of the country.

"Aiding the New Hampshire Daughters are scores of public spirited citizens. They have made a mighty protest. Residents who rely on the mountain streams for their supply of water have also raised objections, claiming that the streams have been diverted from their course and the water contaminated by the operations of the wood choppers.

Over one hundred and fifty delegates were present when the meeting opened this afternoon. Besides the delegates were distinguished guests from all sections of the country.

Preceding the meeting a brilliant reception was held at the Copley Square Hall, after which a luncheon was served.

A pleasing feature of the afternoon meeting was the singing of New Hampshire songs. One of these was written by Mr. John J. Loud, of this city, and was sung for the first time this afternoon.

WORKMEN TELL JUDGE SECRETS

The internal troubles of the Massachusetts Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W., are receiving an airing before Judge Lathrop in the Supreme Court, and some of the secrets of the lodge room have been revealed by Supreme Recorder Myron O. Sackit, who described the installing ceremony.

The Grand Lodge asks for a mandamus against Carlan A. Brown and other officers of the old board, restraining them from exercising the functions of the offices they have held, and also to have the Court declare the new officers legally elected.

John Simonds, Grand Master Workman, and other officers claim to have been legally elected at the meeting held in February.

DESIRE TO SEE MOTHER FATAL?

Little hope is felt at the Carney Hospital for the recovery of Edward F. Foster, thirty-four years old, of No. 84 South Water street, New York, who risked his life in an effort to get back to his old mother.

Penniless here, he resolved to return to his parent in New York, and tried to jump a New Haven train in the out of the road, near Bolton street. He was struck by a telegraph pole and knocked under the wheels, which cut off the toes of both feet. The right thigh was also fractured, and he suffered internal injuries.

A Telephone Message.

CUPID'S PROMISE.

"HELLO, Central! Give me No. 603 Main, please. Yes. Hello! Is this Miss Poindexter? Yes. This is the little god of love speaking to you. You know my voice in a moment, didn't you? You think me a little darling for what I did for you? Yes. Well, you know L-O-V-E don't spell marriage. 'There is many a slip twixt the cup and the lip.' You think I called you up just to quarrel? No. What I want you to do is to make yourself 'fit.' Let 'your uncle' give you some advice. When a woman is nervous, irritable, almost hysterical, at times melting into tears or laughing at small provocation, she should brace up, get out of doors, breathe in good strength bearing oxygen, and in other ways put her body into physical condition so that her head, full of her womanhood and strong to bear the burdens of life. What's that? You think me extremely amusing? Well, now, let me tell you that Cupid is almost out of business at times, because the young girls are so frail and ill so much of the time that they don't 'make good.' You don't know what I mean, dear? Well, I tell you that if I was a young man and I found me a young woman I was courting was all the time sick, ill, pale, suffering from weaknesses, peculiar to the sex, I wouldn't stand it very long." Take the advice of little Doctor Cupid and build up your strength with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—a remedy prescribed only for just such cases as yours, by a physician who is known the world over.

CUPID'S PLACE.

Cupid has no place in a girl's heart if she is nervous and irritable, feels dragged down, worn out for no reason that she can think of. In such cases the body is not sound. The nervousness and other symptoms are telegraphed all over the body by the nerves, which are the telegraphic system of the human body, because the weak spot demands attention. The weak back, dizzy spells and black circles about the eyes are only symptoms. Go to the source of the trouble and correct the irregularity. The drains on the womanly system and the other symptoms disappear. This can be done easily and intelligently.

The correctness of this advice is amply proven by the experience of many thousands of women—a large number of whom have written of their experiences. So sure of it is the World's Dispensary Medical Association, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, that they offer $500 reward for women who cannot be cured of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus or Falling of the Womb. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure. Their financial responsibility is well known to every newspaper publisher and druggist in the United States. This wonderful remedy therefore stands absolutely alone as the only one possessed of such remarkable curative properties as would warrant its makers in publishing such a marvelous offer as is above made in the utmost good faith. It is a medicine which has stood and numbers its cures by the thousands. It is a perfectly safe tonic in any condition of the system, being entirely vegetable and without alcohol.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives new life and new strength to weak, worn-out, run-down women. It establishes regularity, dries unhealthy drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Miss Emma Weller, who is Secretary of the Young People's Christian Association, at 1818 Madison Avenue, New York City, says: "Your 'Favorite Prescription' is a boon to sick and tired women. It cures them when other medicines fail. I know whereof I speak, for I have had experience with it. For fourteen months I had constant headaches; seemed too weak to perform my daily duties, and when the day was over I was too tired to sleep well. I suffered from nervousness and had nervous indigestion, and everything I ate distressed me. Doctored with different physicians but received no relief. After reading one of your books I decided to give your 'Favorite Prescription' a trial. Am very glad I did, for I found it was just what I wanted. I commenced to improve at once and kept getting better until, after seven weeks, I was entirely cured. I have remained in perfect health ever since, and remain a firm friend of your 'Favorite Prescription.'"

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" is only seeking to make the little more profit afforded by a less meritorious medicine. His profit is your loss. Therefore, turn your back on him as unworthy of your patronage.

HOW TO ASSIST YOUR GIRLS.

"The change from maidenhood to womanhood is one that involves the whole body—it manifests itself in the voice and in the nervous condition," says Dr. Pierce. "It should be natural and like a beautiful falling asleep. Owing to present modes of living, however, the nervous energy of young girls is forced—the necessary nutrition for tissues, blood and nerves is wanting, and consequently the young girl shrinks like a flower in some bad atmosphere. Tight lacing is another cause for this condition. The strain at this time upon the blood-forming structures may be too great. Disorders of the functions peculiarly feminine are nearly always dependent upon the defective nutrition. Hygienic measures are most important. Fresh air and sunshine are more than ever necessary—then I have found in all such cases that my 'Favorite Prescription' is just the vegetable tonic for the female system at this time."

FALL RIVER FOR FIREMEN VETS

Fall River has been selected over Portsmouth by the New England States Veteran Firemen's League for their annual muster, August 24. The city has appropriated $2000, which money will be given the veterans to spend as they wish. The muster will come during the celebration of the city's semi-centennial, August 23, 24 and 25.

Several changes have been made in the rules governing the contests, and in future the 275-foot hurdle will be the limit of play. All streams thrown over that distance will be considered a foul. Ties for first and second prizes, added together and evenly divided.

REVERE TO OWN WATER WORKS

Revere, by a vote of 121 to 3, has decided to own its own water works, and will purchase the plant of the Revere Water Company for $250,000. The company has asked $300,000 for that figure.

The matter of municipal ownership of the water by the town has been an open issue for some time, and the question now has settled it. All that now remains to be done is to obtain the consent of the Legislature to the town's issuing bonds to pay for the works and permission for their management and operation. A bill will be immediately introduced to this end. The leader in the movement has been J. B. Perkins.

The income of the company last year was $44,700, the net earnings being 9% per cent.

CAT STARVING IN TOP OF TREE

When some lad boys of Nantasket and their dogs got after a large white cat three days ago, pussy, forgetting her natural terror of the water, plunged into the waters of Nantasket Junction, swam to a tree in the middle of the pond and sought refuge in its branches.

There she remains, and her wailings and plaintive cries have caused many a sleepless night in the vicinity. The boys, though desirous of once more getting a good night's rest, have made attempts to dislodge puss from her perch, but to no avail.

Pistol shots and the humane agent have both proved ineffective, and the wearied, sleepy-eyed residents are at their wits' end. They are wondering how long the cat will fight off the pangs of hunger.

LABOR

ALLIED PRINTERS' TRADES UNION COUNCIL — LYNN, MASS. — '96

THE bill permitting picketing in strikes has successfully passed the first reading in the House by a vote of sixty-eight to forty-eight, and has been sent over to be read the third time. This measure is one of the most important labor laws have advocated in some years.

Representative Schofield of Ipswich, who introduced the bill, opened the debate after the favorable report of the committee on labor had been accepted. He pointed out the need of the law in view of the manner in which the courts were issuing blanket injunctions without real cause. The bill had been drafted on a decision of Judge Holmes, that men on strike had the right of peaceful communication. Violence would not be tolerated, and the bill would be so amended that its provisions would not interfere with any present statute or city ordinance.

Representative Brigham, of Marlboro, then offered the amendment against the gathering of crowds or violence in any form, and it was adopted.

CAR WORKERS REJECT OFFER.

No strike is to be declared by the car workers of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad until a conference with President Mellen of the system has been held. The subordinate officials have refused to grant the demands of the men for a 15 per cent increase in wages and shorter hours. Negotiations have reached an acute stage, but the men still have hopes of securing everything asked for without resorting to a strike.

The answer received from the company granted the request for shorter hours, but only a slight increase in wages was promised. This compromise the men have rejected.

President Mellen, who has been in the West, is expected to return to New Haven to-day, when the matter will be laid before him by a committee from the Car Workers' Union. The report that the president is to bring back a party of strike breakers is denied by the railroad.

The striking boilermakers have learned that one dozen disabled locomotives have been returned to the shops at New Haven entirely repaired. An effort is being made to learn where work was done. The strikers have claimed all along that it would be impossible for the railroad to have any of their engines repaired, and they depended in a great measure on this to win the strike.

PLASTERERS' DEMANDS REFUSED

No settlement has been reached in the strike of the plasterers in Providence, where the men went out for an increase from $3.50 to $4 per day. At a meeting of the employers it was decided that the present rate of wages is enough, and the increase was refused.

MEN AT WORK AT FORE RIVER.

It was stated at the offices of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company to-day that there were more men at work than at any time since the inauguration of the strike. It is claimed that all of the men are working in the different departments.

The single boilermakers employed at the yards, numbering in all about thirty-five men, have organized and will soon have a full forge in full swing. The efforts of the strikers to induce the machinists to do likewise and stop work have so far been unsuccessful.

Four carpetical workers who went out the first day of the strike have returned to work. The men are receiving $3 a day.

WANT UNIFORM LABOR LAWS.

As a result of agitation on the part of the labor men of this State a resolution has been passed by the legislature memorializing Congress for an amendment to the National Constitution, in order that uniform laws regarding labor for all the States may be enacted. The resolution was offered by Representative Ross, of New Bedford, who explained that it was the only one approved by all the labor leaders of the State, but was also by the State's representatives in Congress.

DRIVERS NOT MAKING BREAD.

The Bakery Wagon Drivers' Union has issued a vigorous denial of the report that members of the union were doing bread work in the shops where the men are out on strike. At a special meeting of the union the question of going out on strike in sympathy with the men was brought up and discussed. As the bakers' union had made no request to the drivers, it was decided that all members of the union would remain at work until requested to stop.

LOWELL MASTER BAKERS ORGANIZE.

The master bakers of Lowell have formed an association and now control twenty shops in that city. A meeting of the employers will be held before the end of the week when the demand of the union bakers that the union label be placed on all loaves of bread will be considered.

PIANO MOVERS STILL OUT.

The situation in the strike of the piano movers of the city remains unchanged today and no attempt is being made to send out crews by the firms affected. The union men remain firm and apparently the three firms where the men struck are making no effort to secure non-union men to replace the strikers.

7,000 MEN TO STRIKE.

Another big strike in the ship building industry has been decided upon. The boilermakers and helpers employed in the shipyards of Greater New York and Elizabethport, N. J., are to be called out this week. The employers are members of the New York Metal Trades Association.

More than 7,000 men would be affected by a strike order. This will include 3,000 boilermakers and 2,000 helpers.

STRIKE BENEFITED MILLS.

Not an unmixed blessing, according to Treasurer George A. Chace of the Bourne mills, at Fall River, was the strike of the weavers declared seven weeks ago. In a circular to the employes, it is intimated that the mills will be opened as soon as the weavers are ready to return to work under the old conditions. The circular reads as follows:

"Allow me to tell you that our employes have already lost over $200,000 in salaries, while the company has really economized much by the existing strike on account of the condition of the markets for finished goods."

TO RECRUIT NON-UNION SEAMEN.

The trouble between the Federation of Vessel Owners and Atlantic Coast Seamen's Union is to be inaugurated in Portland in addition to Boston and New York, where it has existed during the winter. The federation has openly shipping officers in that city and will recruit crews from there. Providence supplied crews of non-union men to many strike bound vessels in Boston and New York harbors during the winter.

BOOKBINDERS EXONERATED.

The members of the Bookbinders' Union have remained at work during the recent strike of the book and job printers in this city have been exonerated by the union. It was decided that as the union took no official action regarding the strike, the men who went out in sympathy with the printers did so as individuals. The members of this union have been ordered by to form their wives that a fine will be imposed on any member whose wife purchases bread not bearing the label.

The twelfth anniversary of the union was observed by a concert in Paine Memorial Hall, during the course of which Morial Hall, during the course of which Morial Hall, during the course of which William J. Looney reviewed the history of the union and its achievements. William H. Terrell, Patrick J. Griffin and Frank H. Calahan, the anniversary committee, also spoke.

The programme was provided by James Griffin, Samuel Levine, John Rhody, Lawrence Curran, Joseph Burrigan, Fred Gilbreth and William Hitchner.

BARBERS OBJECT TO McHALE.

Members of Boston Barbers' Union No. 162 are determined that President McHale shall not preside over the meetings of the union or act as the head of the organization. At a meeting of the union, held some time ago, it was decided that McHale was not fitted for the position, on the ground that he was an employer. An appeal was taken to the International Executive Board, where McHale was sustained. Again the union met and decided to accept him, and the communication from the Executive Board has been returned, with a request that it be considered.

Twenty-one members have been admitted, and sixteen union shop cards issued.

BRIDGEMEN THANK MAYOR.

The settlement of the trouble between the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' Union and the company in charge of the construction of the new West Boston bridge has been approved by the union. The members, at a special meeting, declared themselves as deeply grateful to Mayor Collins for his efforts to defend the union labor on the bridge. Seven new members have been added to the union.

MACHINISTS SEEK NEW MEMBERS.

Twenty new members have been enrolled by Boston Machinists' Lodge No. 567, practically completing the organization of the workmen in the vicinity of Boston. The union has endorsed the strike of the bakers of the city for the enforcement of the label.

Four more Somerville firms have granted the demands of union painters out on strike to enforce the demand for an increase in wages to $3 a day. Two more firms in Cambridge have also fallen into line, and it is expected that the strike will be won by the end of the present week. The count to-day shows that nine shops in Cambridge and Somerville, employing 60, which strikes were declared have signed the agreement since the strike was inaugurated Monday.

In their fight for increased wages the Somerville and Cambridge painters are receiving the support of Boston union, the largest organization of painters in the world.

Miss Hapgood tells how she was cured of Fallopian and Ovarian Inflammation—and escaped an awful operation by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered for four years with what the doctors called Salpingitis (inflammation of the fallopian tubes) and ovaritis, which are most distressing and painful ailments, affecting all the surrounding parts, undermining the constitution, and sapping the life forces. If you had seen me a year ago, before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and had noticed the sunken eyes, sallow complexion, and general emaciated condition, and compared that person with me as I am today, robust, hearty and well, you would not wonder that I feel thankful to you and your wonderful medicine, which restored me to new life and health in five months, and saved me from an awful operation."—Miss IRENE HAPGOOD, 1022 Sandwich St., Windsor, Ont.

Ovaritis or inflammation of the ovaries or fallopian tubes which adjoin the ovaries may result from sudden stopping of the monthly flow, from inflammation of the womb, and many other causes. The slightest indication of trouble with the ovaries, indicated by dull throbbing pain in the side, accompanied by heat and shooting pains, should claim your instant attention. It will not cure itself, and a hospital operation, with all its terrors, may easily result from neglect.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I can truly say that you have saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words.

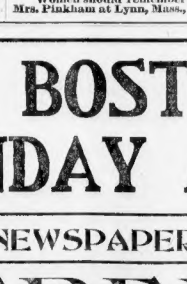
"Before I wrote to you telling how I felt, I had doctored for over two years steady and spent lots of money in medicine besides, but it all failed to do me any good. My menses did not appear in that time, and I suffered much pain. I would daily have fainting spells, headache, backache and bearing down pain, and was so weak that it was hard for me to do my work.



"I used your medicine and treatment as directed, and after taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, menses appeared, my womb troubles left me, and I have been regular ever since. I used fourteen bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier together, and am now restored to perfect health. Had it not been for you, I would have been in my grave.

"I will always recommend your wonderful remedies, and hope that these few lines may lead others who suffer as I did to try your remedies."—Mrs. T. C. WILLADSEN, R. R. No. 1, Manning, Iowa.

Such unquestionable testimony proves the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over diseases of women.

Women should remember that they are privileged to consult Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., about their illness, entirely free.

BASEBALL CHAMPS AFTER ANOTHER BOXING KID GRIFFO BEATS BILLY KOLB RACING AND ALL ATHLETICS

BILLY KOLB TOOK HARD BEATING

Special to Boston American.

BALTIMORE, May 4.—Kid Griffo, formerly of Brooklyn, but now of this city, was awarded the decision over Billy Kolb, of Philadelphia, at the end of the fifteenth round before the Eutaw Club. The match was decidedly a one-sided affair, and throughout the fifteen rounds the Philadelphia boy scarcely led a half-dozen times. Griffo forced the fighting continually and made it more than warm for his opponent.

The bout showed that Kolb, who, by the way, is an Italian, is another veritable Joe Grim. The beating that he took in the first six rounds would have put the ordinary man in dreamland in rapid transit style, but Kolb simply grinned while taking his lacing.

The Philadelphia man's seconds were advised to throw up the sponge, but they refused, saying that Kolb could stand the gaff easily. And he did, for at the conclusion of the match he was comparatively fresh for having gone through fifteen fast rounds, and furthermore he looked as if he could go ten more without much trouble.

The Philadelphia boy was badly beaten up, and his face was practically jabbed to a pulp. Griffo was unable to floor his opponent a single time, although he hit him when and where he pleased.

NEIL MAY BOX HARRY FORBES IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, May 4.—Frankie Neil, the bantamweight champion, and Harry Forbes, the local bantam, will probably come together at the Battery D this month. The management of the club has been negotiating for the meeting for some time and now the San Francisco lad has telegraphed that May 27 would be a satisfactory date. The weight will be 120 pounds.

Forbes will be a busy man for the next six weeks, as he has been offered a match with Abe Attell before the Battery D Club at 122 pounds at 3 o'clock. The match may be made for May 13, for Forbes has been practically matched to fight Gus Reenah in St. Louis on May 12.

COX STILL UNDER THE BAN.

Special to Boston American.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Walter R. Cox, of Manchester, N. H., is still under the ban of the National Trotting Association. He sought the ruling of the suspension, but the Board of Review decided against him. The full board was present, consisting of Major P. P. Johnson of Lexington, Ky., president; Morgan G. Bulkeley and W. H. Gocher of Hartford, Conn.; W. R. Allen of St. Louis, Mo.; John C. Velty of Canton, O.; J. W. Johnson of Calais, Me.; and W. Perry Taylor of Buffalo.

STONE WANTS TO FIGHT SMITH

Jig Stone, of Charlestown, was to have met Sammy Smith on Monday night in Philadelphia, but the latter declined to mix it up without more training for the rough and ready Bunker Hill lad. Jig says he will give Smith all the chance he wants to make good.

"I'll take Smith on any time he's open for business," says Jig, through his manager, Denny Carey. "But he must make right weight and put on a forfeit to show he means to box. I'll fight him in Philadelphia or any other city. Cambridge might give us a purse, or some of the other Bay State clubs. Any of 'em are good enough for me if Sammy will only say the word."

CHARLEY NEARY FIGHTS YANGER

Special to Boston American.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 4.—After sticking on the weight question, Charley Neary has at last agreed to meet Harry Yanger at 130 pounds, 6 o'clock. Neary wanted the beam business transacted at 5 o'clock.

Yanger said the Milwaukee Adonis, who is anxious to meet Jimmy Britt, would take on five or six pounds if they weighed early in the afternoon, and his objection to fighting Charley was abolished.

Forfeits of $500 each have been put up, and the boys will box here on May 12.

STAR HURDLER IS MURPHY

Tufts has a star hurdler in Murphy. In practice yesterday afternoon he showed remarkable bursts, and the coaches expect that he will give a good account of himself in the coming inter-collegiate contest at Worcester.

A large squad of track men were out on the oval yesterday afternoon. Mathews, a freshman, did some good work in the running broad jump and short sprints, and with proper coaching will develop into a point winner for Tufts. Milner and Captain Scoboria are the best milers that Tufts has had for some time. Gordon and Perry showed up well in the 220-yard dashes and the half mile practice events. In the weights, Preble and Hill are doing the best, and it is expected that both of these men will do something at the meet in Worcester.

WILL PITCH IN MOUNTAINS

That starry boy, Jack Coughlin, of Charlestown, whose right good pitching wing won many victories against the crack college teams around the White Mountains last summer, would like to be the goods for some fast team, as boxman, next Saturday.

Coughlin is a young chap who possesses much body work and pitching knowledge, imparted by "Farmer Bill" Coughlin, his uncle, who won fame on the Pacific coast and later with the New York Giants along in '94. "Farmer Bill" was also a crack pitcher of Tom Burns's old Springfield bunch, of the Eastern League, and has twirled for a number of other league clubs all over the land.

Young Coughlin w ilpitch for the Maplewood Hotel team, in the White Mountains, commencing Memorial Day next. He has speed to burn, and should make a wonder.

BASEBALL TITLE IS AT STAKE

Big interest among the diamond fans of Chelsea centers in the husky battle promised Saturday next at 3:30 p. m., between the Glenmonts and Prattvilles. It is the opener of three games, to show which team is entitled to the championship. Glenmonts now being "It."

Both clubs are right on edge for a fast struggle.

Gatcomb, a Malden boy, will twirl for Prattvills, and either Conley or Edwards will toe the slab for the Glenmonts. The game will be pulled off at the Everett Avenue Playground, in Chelsea.

CLARK'S DEFI TO DELMONT

Here's the money right off the reel for Allie Delmont, the husky little chap from Medford, who won from Eddy Car the other night, if he wants to accept a defi, as follows:

"Young Clark, of Centredale, R. I., would like to meet Albert Delmont at 118 pounds. We will either come down to Boston or will furnish a club where we can fight for half the gate. We can draw at least 300 ring fans at $1 a head, which is a pretty good inducement.

(Signed) "T. MACK,
"Centredale, R. I."

THREE DEFIS OF LOCAL LADS

Backing a stable of fighters, all of whom he says are live ones, ready for battle, Shy Fay, the pride of Roxbury Crossing in the prize arena, writes as follows:

"I will match Billy Rice against Andy Daly or Kid Pants, before any club in the country, and Young Cahill, another of my boys, will box any of the 105-pound lads. Cahill lost once only in his career, out of thirty battles with the mits. Young Allen will meet any of the 135-pound boxers, Joe Reed preferred."

This shining array of challenges should bring some of the boxers defied to Shy's stable to get the money.

GOOD BOUT AT WESTFIELD.

WESTFIELD, Mass., May 14.—If George McFadden, the old lightweight boxer, is in as rugged shape as he used to be, risk fans here expect to see a mill worth viewing when Young John L. and the elbow lad look up at catch on May 30 next. They will box fifteen rounds before the Berkshire A. C.

BALL TEAM'S MAY PARTY.

That crack little bunch of ball tossers, the Warrens of Neponset, will hold a May party, Friday night, at 44 Pierce avenue. They were beaten but twice last season in twenty-one games. The Warrens want to hook up with the Suffolks of Dorchester.

MOWATT FLOPS WITH GOODMAN

Special to Boston American.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 4.—Not relishing Kid Goodman's idea of a 118-pound match, Mowatt called off his match with the Boston Kid to-morrow night. Goodman will tackle that old veteran, Jack McClelland, who came to the front at the last moment.

Goodman says if he beats McClelland he will finish up three more matches and then take a rest from active fighting in the West.

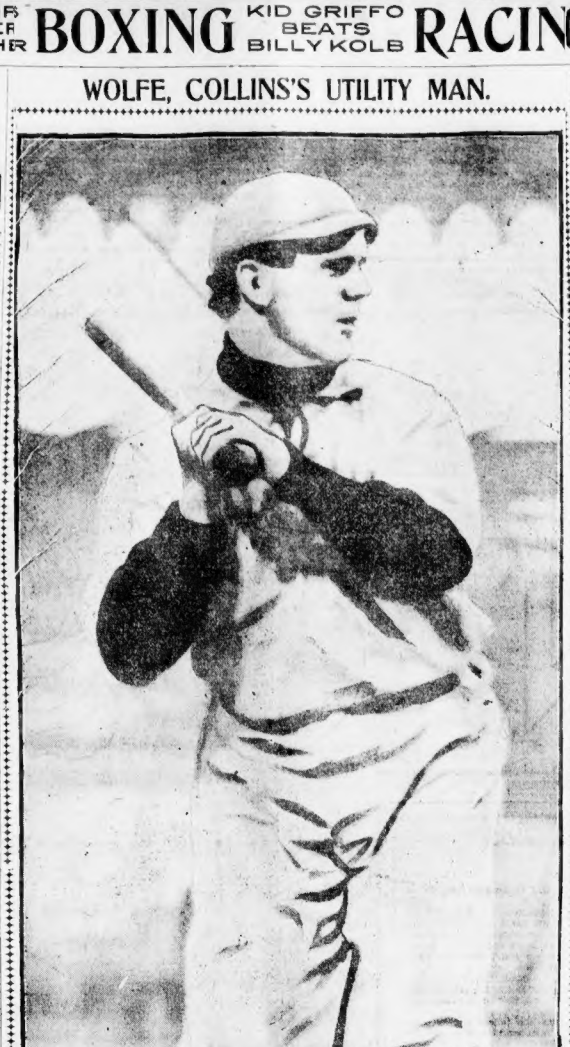
"I've got three matches on, one with Abe Attell in St. Louis, and another possibly with Benny Yanger in Chicago on May 12. This date maye be switched to suit Yanger if he fights Kearns on May 13, though he agreed to meet me first.

"Then I want me to fight Charley Neary, and I have accepted. I can beat him easy, Yanger, too, at that. I weigh less than these chaps, but am obliged to meet them all at 128 or 130 pounds. I tip the scales at 124."

WARRENS OF SOMERVILLE.

Somerville will be represented on the diamond this year by the Warrens. They have practically the same team as last year, with the exception of a few new ones. Ellis and Hayes are well-known twirlers, and Hanlon will catch. Cuddy, the star third baseman of the Interscholastic League, will hold down third for the Warrens. All correspondence should be addressed to J. J. McNally, 131 State street, Boston.

WOLFE, COLLINS'S UTILITY MAN.



Not quite as big and husky as "Duke" Farrell or Louie Criger, Roland Wolfe, the Hub champions' kid catcher, is quite the money as a graceful backstop. What a graceful name he's got! "None of 'em have much on this kid," says Jimmy Collins, the skipper and manager, and it's a bet when he says so.

DIAMOND STARS OPEN FOR DATES

CRESCEUS' RECORD IS THROWN OUT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, May 4.—The Board of Appeals of the American Trotting Association at a meeting here has refused to recognize the record of 1.30¾, claimed to have been made by Cresceus on the grounds of the Wichita Fair Association at Wichita, Kan., last fall. The finding of the association follows:

"The sworn evidence presented to the board covers all circumstances surrounding the affair's irregularity, and indicates that gross fraud was attempted, not only upon this association but against the entire public, and under the rules of this association it becomes our duty to nullify the effects thereof so far as possible."

LAWSON WANTS TO RACE AGAIN

Ivor Lawson, with his trainer, Demon Willie Bolles, has arrived in this country. Lawson is one of the most wonderful cyclists in the world to-day. He is of Australian birth.

That Lawson is among the greatest living cyclists is proven by his record. He was the closest competitor of Frank Kramer for the American championships. He captured the Australian laurels two years running.

To "make up" with the National Cycling Association, which ratifies the action of the Australian body in barring him, for his interference with Major Taylor, the colored rider, is the purpose of Lawson.

For his misdemeanor, Lawson was suspended for three months. His suspension will expire in June.

BOY SWIMS IN RECORD TIME

Keran, a sixteen-year-old lad, has caused much discussion abroad because of his swimming the half-mile championship of Australia in Hm. 29 1-5s. This was indeed remarkable time, when it is considered that it was 20 3-5s. better than the world's record of "Splash" Cavill.

Kerun is very popular in his home city. He is hailed as a hero everywhere he goes. He is a carpenter's apprentice on the English Government ship Solrose.

They say that Kerun is as fast in the mile as in the shorter distances.

The recent feat of Kerun was done over a fifty yard course in tidal water while Cavill's was accomplished over a 100-yard course in a tank.

TERRY'S EYES IN BAD SHAPE

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Terry McGovern's eyes, which have been bothering him for some time, have reached that state where the former champion is compelled to wear eyeglasses. The glasses are an aid to Terry, and he says that his sight is all the better for them. McGovern looks more like a clerk or student now. McGovern says that when he fights his eyes do not bother him.

BURDICK TO FIGHT ADAMS

Sports of Rockland, Me., look forward to a good bout between Johnny Burdick and Frank Adams on May 19, when they box in the Lime Kiln city.

Both boys are clever little fighters, and there will be a rinkfull of ring fans on hand to see them box.

CHESTER-ERNE BOUT SATURDAY

Chester Goodwin, who was to meet Young Erne in a lively six-round ring battle to-night, at Philadelphia, received word from the club that the bout would not come off till Saturday night next, in Quakerville. Chester was in shape to go on at a moment's notice. His manager and backer, Steve Mahoney, says a few days more will help only to get him the money quicker against his showy rival.

KID LESLIE'S CHIRPY CRACK

From Kid Leslie, of Cambridge, comes the following chirpy defi to Kid Rogers, for a match in the padded circle, where the gloves fly true to the sleepy spot:

"I understand Kid Rogers challenges me through the BOSTON AMERICAN. Now if he means business and not hot air, I will take him on at featherweights, put up or shut up, for I don't believe in hot air." I that isn't strong enough, then "wot is?"

GAME STRUGGLE OF SCHOOL LADS

is a redhot schoolboy game at the Dorchester High School Park, Waltham High went down to defeat, despite their game struggle, before the hustling Dorchester High boys.

In the opener the Watch City brigade amassed a big bunch of four runs, and the home rooters were sorry. Brayley and Fish, the local battery, pulled the chestnuts out of the fire by some remarkable work in the points.

There was nothing doing in the shape of runs, except a long row of ciphers, for the Waltham after their good starter.

Dorchester's hitters, Clapp, Lewis, Hayes and Callahan, bumped Hodge rudely, and won the game by piling up seven runs in the last seven innings. Clapp soaked out a three-bagger. Another feature was a catch of Ross on the dead run.

LINWOODS IN THE FIELD.

The Linwood A. C. of Roxbury would like to arrange games with any fourteen-year-old team in the State. Communications should be sent to M. J. Gilmore, 21 Dare street, Roxbury.

HARVARD GOLFERS AT MYOPIA.

There is not much doing in the Intercollegiate Golf Association, as the date of the tournament has not yet been fixed. Harvard will hold its tournament at Myopia.

BOUT ENDED IN A DRAW

Special to Boston American.

BANGOR, Me., May 4.—According to the referee, Matty Baldwin, of Charlestown, Mass., and "Millinocket" Kelley, of Bangor, fought a ten-round draw. According to the spectators, Baldwin should have had the decision.

Baldwin landed many hard blows. Kelley's ability to take punishment was in his favor. The fighting in the clinches was hard and fierce, both getting in many stiff punches. Kelley was badly punished, while Baldwin escaped with a few scratches. Kelley showed signs of weakening in the fifth and sixth rounds, but Baldwin was unable to finish his man.

HUB PLAYERS ARE BACK AGAIN IN THEIR STRIDE

Back again in our stride. At the three-quarters post, now and going fast. We're going, too, to get them again to-day, these agile Conny Macks—not Connemara Athletics. Sounds horsey dope to you fans, now; don't it? But how expressive! Third game, you see. Make a book on the Lords, any old thing; get the money on somehow. Does the dope look good to you diamond fans, do or don't? Cops are busy over in Pennsylvania, I know where that is? It's a bet. To the goods, though. Butt wise to our Johnny Bostonbean champions. Champeens, eh, kids? Warm name, these 'ere champeens. They're ours. World beaters again this season, you ask? Well, why nit. What a query! Come out of it, you live ones. Fan a bee on the ladies' fans, buy a bag of peanuts, then wake up, if you can. Peanuts, Rube's were hard ones on crack. Don't go to sleep along the Wayside. It's ours to-day. Well got 'em good and hard. Rune won't pitch? What if he does; don't be a fleary one, best to cause the lid's off. Rube can't keep it screwed down all the while. He'll take a fog, a big one, when the gang get next to him. Look out for us, Reuben, "World beaters," we are. Nobody shall rob us of our glory. Not if we know it. Glory kids, eh? Good goods to-day in a prize pack age. New bats for the boys, and the like of that, as John L. used to say, will work wonders.

It's a telegraph pole Chick Stahl swings now. He's out for vengeance. Notice the new one. Bumps the heavy bide with the wide end, Chick does. Rest of the bunch are looking for glory goods, likewise. "Don't know yet who'll hand 'em the Peter," Cap" Collins tells the wily Quakers. "It may be Summer and it may be Winters. Possibly hunky Gibson. If Gib by has a hunch he'll go in."

Watch the hunch of Gibson. All the money in the race, thus far. Good Gibson. Keep it up. Stick at him in, Jimmy, if he's right. Vans like Gibson. Sort of bank on him to fool those athletics. Like that dope?

Pop Young, too; don't forget. Might need him more for the final heat. In the stretch to-morrow, so guess good agin, "Cap." Let's know the goods in time. Up to Louie Criger to cop the twister. Maybe Duke Farrell again. Fine boy, that. The way from Marlboro. Where is that? ever mind. Good town. Fine tossers from ere. Member Wilbur Robinson, the fat tober; how he could throw and reach the it pitchers. Made "Iron Man" Mettin of what he is. Fast! Robby could coach a. Not better than the Duke, though. ly Hamilton, too, was down Marlboro ay. There was a ruby bunch of 'em one in Shreville. Dope's right. Those old ll Laverty. Toby Lyons'll tell you all out it. The pair of Spices coming. Next ock for a starter, fact. Another bet!

Back to fanbow, Jerry Dunk for Philadelphia. Conny Mack said so? He ought know. He knows more about R. B. than lot of young fellers. Wasn't he a star shied the fast. Quick thinker. Long, ngy wing. Snapped 'em around like Tommy Doran. My, how Tommy was in with it at the plate!

Great double play of Charley Farrell's. Touched one, chucked 'other out to Jimmy at third without stopping to think. Wonderful head that! Good boy, Duke; you earned the grasp hand. Fine! All up for the third game. Battle royal. Pick if you can.

RUBE WADDELL WADDELL WANTS ANOTHER GO AT COLLINS' CHAMPIONS

Without doubt the most eccentric player on the professional baseball diamond is "Rube" Waddell of the Philadelphia American League team. When he is in the mood he is one of the greatest pitchers who ever faced a batter. And when he doesn't feel like it he is listless and careless, and whether he wins or loses he doesn't seem to mind.

Rube Waddell will take one more chance against Boston while the Athletics are visiting here this trip. He has two successive shutouts scored against the Champions, but he is not satisfied and has asked to go in again. Connie Mack is willing. The harder Waddell works the less surplus energy he has to use up in play, and the less he plays the better it pleases the Athletic manager.

twenty-five birds entered in the 100-mile contest. Forty were trained for the event and fifteen held for future races at longer distances. The season's races in Lave's section are flown up to 500 miles, but there are special events up to 1,000.

The Athletic players were "real shocked" yesterday at a rumor that they would be called upon to play Sunday ball in New York.

Many of the baseball critics seem to agree that the balk rule is "simple and effective. So is everything that is thoroughly understood, but the pitchers and umpires who come in direct contact with the rule do not seem to have the same power of interpreting baseball legal phraseology as is possessed by many of the critics.

* * *

Making Sunday games in New York purely exhibition affairs and insisting that they be played on other than the regular grounds is a solution of the difficulty now advanced. The "purely exhibition affairs" would have to count in the averages to satisfy the fans, and if so counted the authorities might be loth to see that they were "purely exhibitions."

FAST AUTOISTS MATCHED.

Special to Boston American.

ROME, N. Y., May 4.—What promises to be a great auto race has been arranged to take place at Old Orchard, Me., between S. R. Stevens, of this city, and H. L. Bowden, of Boston. The distance will be fifteen miles and the date some time in July.

JOCKEY BADLY HURT.

Special to Boston American.

LOUISVILLE, May 4.—Of the five horses that started in the steeplechase at Churchill Downs, all fell, except Volantine, who, of course, scored an easy victory. Jockey Schimmel was so badly injured he may die.

Captain Lave Cross is divided in his interest just now between a race for the American League pennant and a race for the 70-mile race of the National Association of Homing Pigeon Fanciers which will be flown at Cleveland next Sunday. Lave is one of the most ardent pigeon fanciers in the country, and has one of the best appointed lofts in the world at his home in the Ohio metropolis. He has

M'GRAW SAYS HE FEARS ONLY CHICAGO AND THE REDS

Neither the New York Nationals nor the Philadelphia Americans were sore over yesterday's defeats. Both teams are determined to get into the game to-day and "eat up" the home aggregations. The Quincy House was again alive with ball players this morning.

Plank is slated to compel the World Beaters to walk the plank, while "Doc" Powers will be stationed behind the bat.

McGinnity, it was said this morning, will be the card in the box for the Giants, while Bowerman will probably do the backstop act.

The reason McGinnity did not pitch yesterday, as slated, was because McGraw was confident that he could trim the locals with almost any twirler on the slab.

Milligan is thought very well of by the manager of the Gothamites. He says that he should make a strong acquisition to the nine. Milligan is the fire line artist that was purchased from Buffalo. When in the Eastern League he was regarded the fastest pitcher in that organization.

He caught cold in the South and since has not been in very good condition. Yesterday was the first time that he had an opportunity to toss the sphere in a championship game.

McGraw said to a BOSTON AMERICAN representative: "I do not think that we will have any trouble in beating out the Smoketown dusky warriors this season. All the twelve figure will come from Chicago and Cincinnati, which clubs I regard the only teams in the league."

Nearly all of the Giants are complaining this morning. The field, both in and out, has been covered with water and most of the players are very much afeard the legs on this account. Merrier and McCormick especially are in a bad way.

McGraw made a very wise move in letting Bresnahan bat for Gilbert in the game yesterday. There were two men on base when Bresnahan lined out a stinger. Only for the superb catch of young Dahlenby the Giants would have been saved a shut out.

Connie Mack thinks very well of his team. He said: "I believe that I have a stronger nine than ever before. In fact, the team looks better to me than it has in previous seasons.

"I think that the team that expects to win the pennant will have to beat the Bostons. If Bender comes around right he will be considerably strengthened. He is at his home suffering with appendicitis, which it is hoped will be treated without an operation.

"Waddell is now perfectly right, and in the whole I figure we have a fair team to-morrow, and if Young pitches for Boston, there should be a battle royal.

"Our only trouble this season is with batting. As yet the players have not had their eyes on the ball. The batting is up to the standard. The beating yesterday came through errors that are bound to come to the best-regulated teams."

The players had the fit ots and Athletics spent the morning sun-bathing in front of their hostelry. Lave Cross tried to shave Jimmy Taylor with a knife, but the latter would not stand for it. Billiards did not command the attention of any of the players.

HONORS ARE DIVIDED.

Special to Boston American.

PORTLAND, Me., May 4.—It was a clever exhibition that George Byers, of Boston, and Charlie Hughey, of Lowell, put up for twelve rounds. Hughey got in a swift left very effectively at times, but Byers blocked skilfully, and, as a rule, sent a sharp response back. The men did not go far beyond the limit. The men did not go a good bout, exhibition point, but it was a good bout, and honors were nearly even throughout.

In the preliminaries Walter Lamount got the decision over Jimmy Quinn, and Billy Dunning over "Cyclone" McIntosh.

M'GOVERN IS BRITT'S GUEST

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Terry McGovern, former featherweight champion, was the guest of Jimmy Britt, the conqueror of Young Corbett, last night at the rival boxers dined at the Barthold Hotel and talked over the pugilistic situation. The recent Corbett-Britt battle was discussed from beginning to end, and the Californian told McGovern how he outpointed the man who had defeated Terry Mc and had also captured the featherweight championship from him.

McGovern did not fail to take advantage of the opportunity and has known his desire to meet Britt for the championship. Britt will meet Sam Berger to-morrow at the AMERICAN office, when he will talk over a possible match and give his final answer.

CHANCE FOR THE McGOVERNS.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 4.—John Reed, a Boston sporting man, who is managing Kid Goodman and Gus Bonetto, of Cincinnati, wants to bet Sam Harris, manager of Terry and Hughey McGovern, that the Goodman can beat Terry, or that Bezenah can do the trick with Hughey. The bets are ten rounds. Reed says that he will post his money any time the New Yorker says.

GARDNER TO BOX RYAN.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Jimmy Gardner, the lightweight champion of New England, has been matched to meet Buddy Ryan, of Chicago, again. They have signed to clash for six rounds at one hundred and thirty-five pounds, weigh in at 3 o'clock, on May 16, before the Waverly A. C. of Chicago.

PATSY TO FIGHT FISHER.

For a holiday bout between two welterweights who nearly always show the goods in the ring, a big attraction up Webster way, should be the go between Johnny Fisher, of Worcester, and Patsy McKenna, of Waltham, on Memorial Day.

JIMMY BRIGGS TO BOX THOMAS

Just cast your glimmy lamp on that fine card, you ring fans near Hubtown—Jimmy Briggs, the Star of the East, vs. Kid Thomas, crack lightweight, who stalled Joe Gans to a six-round draw by his clever sniffing! Do the fight fans see much better bouts than that booking anywhere? Not much, though it's down in Gloucester.

Not a long way to go, though. Trains a-plenty up the North Shore route, you know. Next Monday night's the date of the session.

Lots of boxers wanted to match with Jimmy, if he gave 'em a chance, when he came back to Beantown after his last trip West.

But a cracker-jack was wanted who would make the stocky blacksmith go the distance fast, or there would be nothing doing. So Kid Thomas was picked, because he looked the goods. He's a live one, according to the boys, and a look-out for business Jimmy's in strict training.

Little Abe Attell looked for a go with the Chelsea cracker, but vainly, somehow. "I'll meet him at 120, 3 o'clock," says Andy, "or Chester Goodwin at 122, same booking. Duffy faced a hard fifteen-round draw with Jimmy, and I knocked Duffy out in seven seconds. I'll meet Briggs under any reasonable conditions, anywhere. Duffy says I'm funny mules at Andy and replies grimly, "Wait!"

At Cincinnati—St. Louis, clear, 3.
At Chicago—Pittsburg, clear, 3:30.

WHITE THINKS HE'LL FOOL 'EM

Charley White will twirl the opening game for the Dorchesters, Memorial Day. He is getting into ideal form. All the kinks in the good boy wing are disappeared. His speed is daily increasing in velocity, and he claims that his opponents will have a hard time connecting safely.

White may be remembered for his slick work, when he toed the mark for Boston Latin, when baseball was a watchword at that institution.

Later he joined various semi-professional teams. He received an offer to pitch for Lynn, but turned it down for the Dorchester engagement.

SMALL TALK FOR BASEBALL FANS

By The Fan.

Talking about the New York Giants, that aggregation of tall rooters down in Gotham, one would think to hear the Gothamites that McGraw's brigade was the only one on the diamond. Boston fans had had their first opportunity to see and witness the top notchers of the National League. Certain it is their pitching staff is the equal of any staff on earth in the business. Jack Warner, the old Boston American castoff, is as good as ever, and Bowerman need not take a rest word from any one. Arthur Devlin, the old Georgetown boy, is doing the best work of his career at third, and Dahlen could go on and review the individual playing of these Newburyport players and not overdraw its merits.

But when you come to size up the team playing as a whole there is something lacking. If Bloomingdale and Devlin are for anything, this team has its companions beaten by a thousand miles. The Harpersons are odious at the best, but one cannot help contrasting the work of the leaders of the American League. In the infield Collins and Davis, who surrounds the Collinites, both in team and individual work, the Giants are relegated to the farthest shadows. Only in one position are they anywhere near the class of the world's champions, and that is in the box. They have a bending crew that are good pitchers, hard workers, and, to my mind, the team owes to this department its present high standing.

That automobile shed that Owner Tayler and Business Manager Green have placed at the Huntington avenue park has proved a great convenience to the lovers of the sport, who can now journey to the grounds in their cars, with the knowledge that a safe resting place for them is assured.

It is quite a common occurrence nowadays for a couple of college players to meet one another on the professional diamond. The other day Pat Carney of the Nationals and his old Georgetown friend, Arthur Devlin, who is playing third base for the New York Giants, were in a popular mass at Washington, not only being a star player on the nine, but also pulled many baskets on the gridiron. He played full-back on the varsity eleven, while Mays contributed one of the best in the game.

* * *

Speaking of Pat Carney, this progressive pitcher will shortly return to Georgetown to take his exams and complete his course. Before many moons Pat will be a full-fledged M. D.

"Dommy" Taylor cut up high jinks the other day at the Quincy House. Clarke Mathewson and "Shorty" Mertes were indulging in a pleasant game of billiards when Taylor entered the room. First he seized Christy's cue and would not return it to him. Mathewson then loaned his cue to another one. Not satisfied with this Taylor grabbed one of the balls and dashed out the door. This stopped the game, and a little good natured rough-house was indulged in.

South Boston will be represented on the diamond this season by one of the fastest semi-professional teams of the State. In the games are such fast men as Smith, Clancy and Phoenix, while Barrett is covering the short field. Leyden, O'Brien and Keefe are in the outfield. BASEBALL CHAMPS AFTER ANOTHER BOXING KID GRIFFO BEATS BILLY KOLB RACING AND ALL ATHLETICS

Special to Boston American.

BALTIMORE, May 4.—Kid Griffo, formerly of Brooklyn, but now of this city, was awarded the decision over Billy Kolb, of Philadelphia, at the end of the fifteenth round before the Eutaw Club. The match was decidedly a one-sided affair, and throughout the fifteen rounds the Philadelphia boy scarcely led a half-dozen times. Griffo forced the fighting continually and made it more than warm for his opponent.

The bout showed that Kolb, who, by the way, is an Italian, is another veritable Joe Grim. The beating that he took in the first six rounds would have put the ordinary man in dreamland in rapid transit style, but Kolb simply grinned while taking his lacing.

The Philadelphia man's seconds were advised to throw up the sponge, but they refused, saying that Kolb could stand the gaff easily. And he did, for at the conclusion of the match he was comparatively fresh for having gone through fifteen fast rounds, and furthermore he looked as if he could go ten more without much trouble.

The Philadelphia boy was badly beaten up, and his face was practically jabbed to a pulp. Griffo was unable to floor his opponent a single time, although he hit him when and where he pleased.

NEIL MAY BOX HARRY FORBES IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, May 4.—Frankie Neil, the bantamweight champion, and Harry Forbes, the local bantam, will probably come together at the Battery D this month. The management of the club has been negotiating for the meeting for some time and now the San Francisco lad has telegraphed that May 27 would be a satisfactory date. The weight will be 120 pounds.

Forbes will be a busy man for the next six weeks, as he has been offered a match with Abe Attell before the Battery D Club at 122 pounds at 3 o'clock. The match may be made for May 13. Forbes has been practically matched to fight Gus Bezenah in St. Louis on May 12.

COX STILL UNDER THE BAN.

Special to Boston American.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Walter E. Cox, of Manchester, N. H., is still under the ban of the National Trotting Association. He sought the raising of the suspension, but the Board of Review decided against him. The full board was present, consisting of Major F. F. Johnson of Lexington, Ky., president; Morgan G. Bulkeley and W. H. Goeber of Hartford, Conn.; W. E. Allen of St. Louis, Mo.; John C. Velty of Canton, O.; J. W. Johnson of Calais, Me.; and W. Perry Taylor of Buffalo.

STONE WANTS TO FIGHT SMITH

Jig Stone, of Charlestown, was to have met Sammy Smith on Monday night in Philadelphia, but the latter declined to mix it up without more training for the rough and ready Bunker Hill lad. Jig says he will give Smith all the chance he wants to make good.

"I'll take Smith on any time he's open for business," says Jig, through his manager, Denny Carey, "but he must make fight weight and put up a forfeit to show he means to box. I'll fight him in Philadelphia or any other city. Cambridge might give us a purse, or some of the other Bay State clubs. Any of 'em are good enough for me if Sammy will only say the word."

CHARLEY NEARY FIGHTS YANGER

Special to Boston American.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 4.—After sticking on the weight question, Charley Neary has at last agreed to meet Benny Yanger at 130 pounds, 6 o'clock. Neary wanted the beam business transacted at 3 o'clock.

Yanger said the Milwaukee Adonis, who is anxious to meet Jimmy Britt, would take on five or six pounds if they weighed early in the afternoon, and his objection to fighting Charley was sustained.

Forfeits of $200 each have been put up, and the boys will box here on May 13.

STAR HURDLER IS MURPHY

Tufts has a star hurdler in Murphy. In practice yesterday afternoon he showed remarkable bursts, an' the coaches expect that he will give a good account of himself in the coming inter-collegiate contest at Worcester.

A large squad of track men were out on the oval yesterday afternoon. Mathews, a freshman, did some good work in the running broad jump and short sprints, and with proper coaching will develop into a point winner for Tufts. Milner and Captain Scoboria are the best milers that Tufts has had for some time. Gordon and Perry showed up well in the 220-yard dashes and the half mile practice events. In the weights, Preble and Hill are doing the best, and it is expected that both of these men will do something at the meet in Worcester.

WILL PITCH IN MOUNTAINS

That starry boy, Jack Coughlin, of Charlestown, whose right good pitching wing won many victories against the crack college teams around the White Mountains last summer, would like to be the goods for some fast team, as batman, next Saturday.

Coughlin is a young chap who possesses much heady work and pitching knowledge, imparted by "Farmer Bill" Coughlin, his uncle, who won fame on the Pacific coast and later with the New York Giants along in '94. "Farmer Bill" was also a crack pitcher of Tom Burns's old Springfield bunch, of the Eastern League, and has twirled for a number of other league clubs all over the land.

Young Coughlin is flipitch for the Maplewood Hotel team, in the White Mountains, commencing Memorial Day next. He has speed to burn, and should make a wonder.

BASEBALL TITLE IS AT STAKE

Big interest among the diamond fans of Chelsea centers in the husky battle promised Saturday next at 3:30 p. m., between the Gleamonts and Prattvilles. It is the opener of three games, to show which team is entitled to the championship. Gleamonts now being "it."

Both clubs are right on edge for a fast struggle.

Gatcomb, a Malden boy, will twirl for Prattville, and either Conley or Edwards will toe the slab for the Gleamonts. The game will be pulled off at the Everett Avenue Playground, in Chelsea.

CLARK'S DEFI TO DELMONT

Here's the money right off the reel for Allie Delmont, the husky little chap from Medford, who won from Eddy Car the other night, if he wants to accept a defi, as follows:

"Young Clark, of Centredale, R. I., would like to meet Albert Delmont at 115 pounds. We will either come down to Boston or will furnish a club where we can fight for half the gate. We can draw at least 300 ring fans at 81 a head, which is a pretty good inducement.

"T. MACK,
"Centredale, R. I."

THREE DEFIS OF LOCAL LADS

Backing a stable of fighters, all of whom he says are live ones, ready for battle, Shy Fay, the pride of Roxbury Crossing in the prize arena, writes as follows:

"I will match Billy Ries against Andy Daly or Kid Pantz, before any club in the country, and Young Cahill, another of my boys, will box any of the 105-pound lads Cahill lost once only in his career, out of thirty battles with the mits. Young Allen will meet any of the 135-pound boxers. Joe Reed preferred."

This shining array of challenges should bring some of the boxers defied to Shy's stable to get the money.

GOOD BOUT AT WESTFIELD.

WESTFIELD, Mass., May 14.—If George McFadden, the old lightweight boxer, is as rugged shape as he used to be, ring fans here expect to see a mill worth viewing when Young John L. Sullivan's latest hook up at catch on May 10 next. They will box fifteen rounds before the Berkshire A. C.

BALL TEAM'S MAY PARTY.

That crack little bunch of ball tossers, the Warrens of Neponset, will hold a May party, Friday night, at 44 Pierce avenue. They were beaten but twice last season in twenty-one games. The Warrens want to hook up with the Suffolk of Dorchester.

MOWATT FLOPS WITH GOODMAN

Special to Boston American.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 4.—Not relishing Kid Goodman's game bust now, Tommy Mowatt called off his match with the Boston Kid to-morrow night. Goodman will tackle that old veteran, Jack McClelland, who came to the front at the last moment.

Goodman says if he beats McClelland he will finish up three more matches and then take a rest from active fighting in the West.

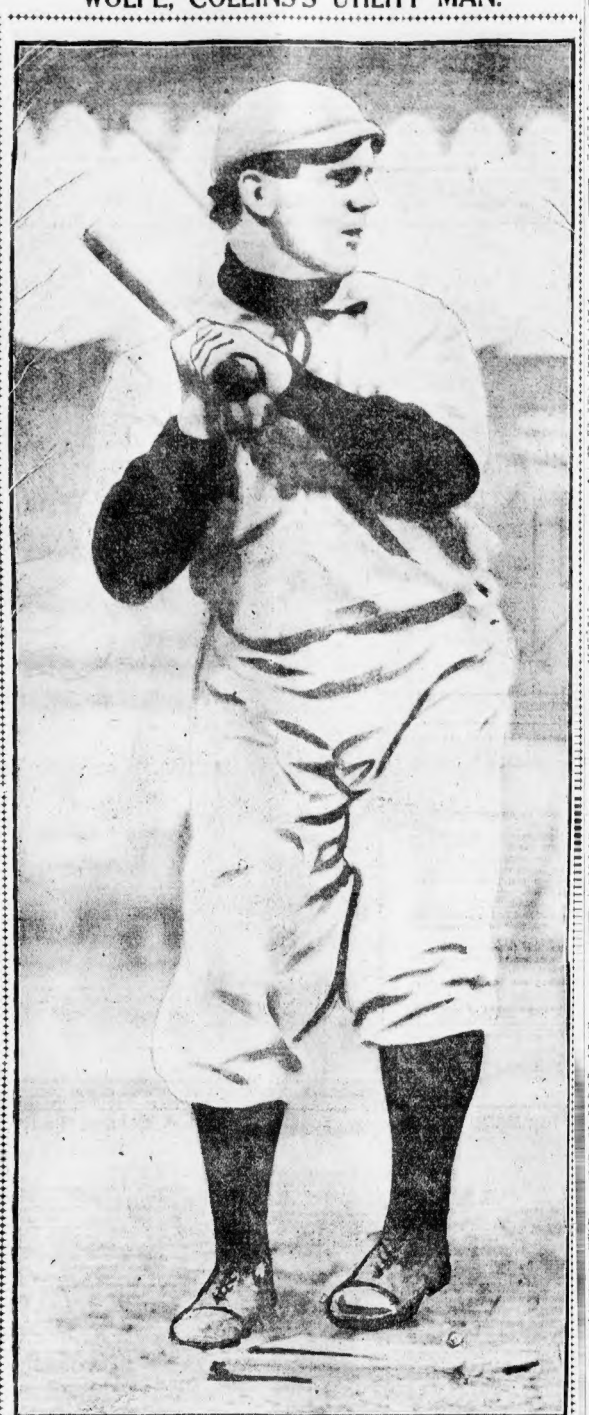
"I've got three matches on, one with Abe Attell in St. Louis, and another possibly with Benny Yanger in Chicago on May 12. This date maye be switched to suit Yanger if he fights Neary on May 13, though he agreed to meet me first.

"They want me to fight Charley Neary, and I have accepted. I can beat him easy, Yanger, too, at that. I weigh less than these chaps, but am obliged to meet them at 126 or 130 pounds. I tip the scales at 124."

WARRENS OF SOMERVILLE.

Somerville will be represented on the diamond this year by the Warrens. They have practically the same team as last year, with the exception of a few new men. Ellis and Hayes are well-known twirlers, and Hanlon will catch. Cudgy, the star third baseman of the Interscholastic League, will hold down third for the Warrens. All correspondence should be addressed to J. J. McNulty, 131 State street, Boston.

WOLFE, COLLINS'S UTILITY MAN.



Not quite as big and husky as "Duke" Farrell or Louie Criger, Roland Wolfe, the Hub champions' kid catcher, is quite the money as a graceful backstop. What a graceful name he's got! "Now of 'em have much on this kid," says Jimmy Collins, the skipper and manager, and it's a bet when le says so.

CRESCEUS' RECORD IS THROWN OUT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, May 4.—The Board of Appeals of the American Trotting Association at a meeting here has refused to recognize the record of 1.30¾, claimed to have been made by Cresceus on the grounds of the Wichita Fair Association at Wichita, Kan., last fall. The finding of the association follows:

"The sworn evidence presented to the board covers all circumstances surrounding the affair's irregularity, and indicates that gross fraud was attempted, not only upon this association but against the entire public, and under the rules of this association it becomes our duty to nullify the effects thereof so far as possible."

LAWSON WANTS TO RACE AGAIN

Ivor Lawson, with his trainer, Demon Willie Rolles, has arrived in this country. Lawson is one of the most wonderful cyclists in the world to-day. He is of Australian birth.

That Lawson is among the greatest living cyclists is proven by his record. He was the closest competitor of Frank Kramer for the American championships. He captured the Australian laurels two years running.

To "make up" with the National Cycling Association, which ratifies the action of the Australian body in barring him, for his interference with Major Taylor, the colored rider, is the purpose of Lawson.

For his misdemeanor, Lawson was suspended for three months. His suspension will expire in June.

If he is set to fight here, Lawson will go back to Europe to meet Taylor, probably in France.

BOY SWIMS IN RECORD TIME

Kernan, a sixteen-year-old lad, has caused much discussion abroad because of his swimming the half-mile championship of Australia in 11m. 29 1-5s. This was indeed remarkable time, when it is considered that it was 20 3-5s better than the world's record of "Splash" Cavill.

Kernan is very popular in his home city. He is hailed as a hero everywhere he goes. He is a carpenter's apprentice on the English Government ship Solaron.

They say that Kernan is as fast in the mile as in the shorter distances.

The recent feat of Kernan was done over a sixty-yard course in tidal water while Cavill's was accomplished over a 100-yard course in a tank.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Terry McGovern's eyes, which have been bothering him for some time, have reached that state where the former champion is compelled to wear eyeglasses. The glasses are an aid to Terry, and he says that he might as well get used to them. McGovern looks more like a check writer than a fighter when he dons them, but he says that when he fights his eyes do not bother him.

BURDICK TO FIGHT ADAMS

Sports of Rockland, Me., look forward to a good bout between Johnny Burdick and Frank Adams on May 10, when they box in the Lime Kiln city.

Both boys are strong little fighters, and there will be a rinkful of ring fans on hand to see them box.

CHESTER-ERNE BOUT SATURDAY

Chester Goodwin, who was to meet Young Erne in a lively six-round ring battle to-night, at Philadelphia, received word from the club that the bout would not come off till Saturday night next, in Quakerville. Chester was in shape to go on at a moment's notice. His manager and backer, Steve Mahoney, says a few days more will help only to get him the money quicker against his showy rival.

KID LESLIE'S CHIRPY CRACK

From Kid Leslie, of Cambridge, comes the following chirpy ded to Kid Rogers, for a match in the paddod circle, where the gloves fly true to the sleepy spot:

"I understand Kid Rogers challenges me through the BOSTON AMERICAN. Now if he means business and not hot air, I will take him on at featherweight, and up or shot up, for I don't believe in hot air. I that but strong enough, then "wot ho."

GAME STRUGGLE OF SCHOOL LADS

In a redhot schoolboy game at the Dorchester High School Park, Waltham High went down to defeat, despite their plucky struggle, before the hustling Dorchester High boys.

In the opener the Watch City brigade amassed a big bunch of four runs, and the home rooters were sorry. Brayley and Fish, the local battery, pulled the electrical cord of the fire by some remarkable work in the points.

There was nothing doing in the shape of runs, except a long row of ciphers, for the Walthaus after their good starter.

Dorchester's hitters, Clapp, Lewis, Hayes and Callahan, bunched Hodge rudely, and won the game by pilling up seven runs in the last seven innings. Clapp soaked out a three-bagger. Another feature was a catch of Ross on the dead run.

LINWOODS IN THE FIELD.

The Linwood A. C. of Roxbury would like to arrange games with any fourteen-year-old team in the State. Communications should be sent to M. J. Gilmore, 21 Dorr street, Roxbury.

HARVARD GOLFERS AT MYOPIA.

There is not much doing in the Intercollegiate Golf Association, as the date of the tournament has not yet been fixed. Harvard will hold its tournament at Myopia.

BOUT ENDED IN A DRAW

Special to Boston American.

BANGOR, Me., May 4.—According to the referee, Mattie Baldwin, of Charlestown, Mass., and "Millionaire" Kelley, of Bangor, fought a ten-round draw. According to the spectators, Baldwin should have had the decision.

Baldwin landed many hard blows. Kelley's ability to take punishment was in his favor. The fighting in the clinches was hard and fierce, both getting in many stiff punches. Kelley was badly punished, while Baldwin escaped with a few scratches. Kelley showed signs of weakening in the fifth and sixth rounds, but Baldwin was unable to finish his man.

THE DRESSING SACQUE GIRL.

By Beatrice Fairfax.

WHEN you see a girl come to the breakfast table in a dressing sacque it's safe to assume that she is either lazy or sickly, possibly both.

It is of that she has not gotten out of bed in the last minute leaving herself no time to dress herself properly. It also very often means that she has allowed her mother to get the breakfast and start the household much as it did the day before, and her daughter has lain comfortably in bed.

She has probably sat up late the night before with some weird frills and curls, entertaining some young man. The man has gone away thinking her a perfect model of sweetness, neatness and beauty, and seriously considering the question of installing the said model queen of his hearthstone.

Could he see what a sight she is just a few hours later he would change his mind.

His dream of a home would be anything but sunshiny and dainty. Slovenliness and untidiness. How little is screened into an unbecoming wrapper, and how much of her pretty figure is hidden by the ungraceful lines of a dressing sacque.

When a man finds himself falling in love with a girl I would advise him to call on her some morning at her own home. It is then that he will take her by surprise and find out how she treats her mother and the other members of the household.

The girl is worth winning is a clog to both ambition and happiness. Better even forlorn old bachelorhood than married discontent.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am a young man eighteen years old and for the last two years I have been deeply in love with a young girl who lives in the next block to me. Recently she has been keeping company with another young man, and I am very much afraid that he will supplant me in her affections. I have never told her that I loved her, but I am sure she knows it. Do you think it would be wise for me to tell her so today. He is a very handsome young man and what I have to offer her cannot be compared with what he can give her. Please advise me what to do, as I think I have better chances if I can get her to elope with me.

Providence.

You should not think of eloping with any girl. In doing so you would be guilty of a contemptible act, and you would not be worthy of the love of any good girl. Before you take such a step you should consider well, and think it over carefully. Ask her to marry you openly, and then talk it over with her parents.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am a young man twenty years of age, and am in love with a young lady two months my senior. She is very fond of me, but she has asked her parents not to allow her to keep company with me, as they believed that I was not good enough for her. She has another friend of the opposite sex, a young man with which she is very much pleased. He always calls on her when he comes to town, and cares for him, although she says that I am the one she loves. I wish you would kindly tell me what I should do.

If she has treated you in the manner that you state I would advise you to forget her. I will say, however, that I am afraid that I would not be able to do the same myself. I am afraid I would be tempted to speak to her about it.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am a young man of twenty years and have been keeping company with a young lady for about six months, but lately she has been paying considerable attention to another young lady friend of hers. I have spoken to her about it, but she only laughs at me. I love her very much and would like to know what I should do.

MURPHY.

If she thinks nothing that would give her reason to be offended, go to her and demand an explanation. If she loves you, she will explain everything, but if she imagines you have wronged her, I am sure you will secure her forgiveness.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I have two daughters in the fourth and second classes, fifteen and fourteen, respectively, who are trying to have cards printed. I will pay for the oldest to have Miss Smith (the next Miss Mary Smith and the same Annie Smith — she is of course, fifteen) to have both. It was a second cousin.

HER elders is always addressed, as "Miss Smith," the others as "Miss Annie" etc. The cards should be printed in script.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I had for visiting cards, but I am told that I should have them engraved. Is this correct? Please let me know at once, as I am in a hurry to get them.

Yes, you are correct. Engraved cards are the best and in the best form.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am a young man of twenty-two years of age and am in love with a young lady of twenty-one. She is very fond of me, but her parents object to me because I am not a member of their church. I have been keeping company with her for about six months, and I am sure that she loves me. Do you think it would be wise for me to elope with her?

MURPHY.

I do not think it would be wise for you to elope with her. Her parents will probably forgive you in time, and then you will be happy.

THE CHAPERON ON SOCIETY

MAY FINDS SOCIETY BUSY

By the Chaperon.

WILHELM GERICKE has been honored by a select coterie of the smart set who mustered in to the Tavern Club and there feasted and toasted him royally in celebration of the close of his successful season as conductor of the Symphony Orchestra.

It took more than no small compliment to Mr. Gericke for him to put too much of an ordinary dinner upon him to appreciate it—that the women at the last Symphony concert should have been so much more elaborately dressed than usual. But effort gowns flashing laces and sparkling eyes even could not a morose, unpitying glitter on the face of popular conductor as he bowed to the storm of applause at the last concert of the Symphony season.

Those were some of the prettiest dresses I noted in the gathering.

Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, light blue silk, covered with a coarse black Brussels net, and a heavy gold corded girdle.

Mrs. Henry M. Whitney, black jetted lace with transparent yoke and sleeves studded pearls, with large diamond brooch.

Mrs. Wallace Goodrich, a traveling suit of brown veiling; belt of violet velvet; plaited chiffon; toque of brown straw trimmed in two large owls' heads at the front.

Miss Carrie Nicholson, who has been married to Rich Saltonstall, was quite embarrassed by a little hitch in the ceremony. She stood there waiting for her cue in the vestibule waiting for the organist to play a long enough interval for the wedding march. The organ remained silent and motionless, so Miss Nicholson decided to find what the trouble was. She set it, she reported to her friend by Mr. Saltonstall, being so busy entertaining a bevy of fair women. Miss Nicholson's explanation was the signal for startling the music.

Mrs. George Nickerson, Miss Bayard Thayer, Mrs. Malcolm Greene Evans were said to be among the organist's guests.

Miss Stevenson was wearing a pale gold wrap, a beautiful one. The shirt was extremely plain, and over it could be had to wear one of those silky affairs which have everything the sleeves and edging the same as the bodice, or of the contrasting color. Lemon will produce excellent effect, and brand new cloth for the sleeves and all was trimmed with cream and gilt. In fact, for just such affairs as the opera the heavy folds of the satin two or three times as she stepped before going up the aisle.

Miss Dora C. Williams, the only daughter of Mrs. George Williams, of Malden street whose carriage to young Archibald Rogerson of uncle side, is to take place the latter part of the month, and the parents regarding her gown be true, to make one of the most effective brides of the season.

Miss Sherrill is a remarkably pretty and sweet young woman, and her gown is said to be a veritable work of the modiste's art, and, although made here, it is said that the model is Parisian.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene V. R. Thayer, Jr., are not in Europe, as inconsequently reported, as they were here in due season for the wedding of Mr. Thayer's cousin, Miss Cornelia Andrew, now Mrs. Dudley Clark, at Trinity Church, on Tuesday last. Mr. Thayer's day or two ago down in the city shopping and left home to Lancaster where she is with her mother-in-law. Mrs. Thayer having Thayer and his bride will not go down to visit Mrs. Mortimer Brooks—parents of Mrs. Thayer at Rockhurst, Worcester, until the latter part of May. Mr. Thayer's sister Miss Isabel Thayer also attended the wedding.

Boston was well represented among the box holders at the opening of the opera season at Covent Garden, London.

Mrs. John Lawrence Morgan, Jr., formerly Miss Jane Gren, a sister of Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer Crosby and Mrs. Holstein Beal, both of this city, was in a P. P. Morgan box, which her husband created on end of complimentary comment. Mrs. Pierre Rosalia was with her.

Miss Phillips made her first appearance at opera in England in Ambassador's private box, her brother, Mr. William Phillips, being also a guest.

I saw Miss Eleanora Sears yesterday morning on Dartmouth street, and with the exception of her being closely veiled, I at first glance could not conceive why people were turning and looking at her so curiously.

At a second or third glance I discovered her scarcely plain tailor gown of broadcloth did not reach to the ground, that her feet and her feet were daintily shod in high-heeled patent leather slippers, and that she wore black silk hose as their only ornament in lieu of white ones. The black stockings, too, looked a bit chilly, considering the unseasonable weather of yesterday.

Mrs. Edward S. Grew I saw a few blocks further down town, just in front of Trinity church, where she was the observed of all observers carrying the first parasol of the season.

It was a soft shade of green silk, and severely plain. Her costume was a bit inconspicuous. She wore a long feather around her throat a heavy feather boa, which fell nearly to her heels.

BLANCHARD-WHITNEY WEDDING ONE OF THE MONTH'S BIG EVENTS

THE wedding in Trinity Church of Miss Elinor Whitney to Mr. Blanchard, on May 23, will be one of the principal society events of the month.

Miss Whitney is expected to make one of the prettiest brides of the year.

Miss Sargent, of this city, who is visiting in Washington, was entertained at a luncheon given in her honor by Miss Winona and Irene King, formerly of Albany, who now make their home in the Capital. Miss Sargent is the guest in Washington of Miss Ferguson, daughter of the former Minister to Siam.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Warder, of Washington, will be a charming addition to the South Shore colony during the summer months, having taken a cottage at Marshfield for the season. In Mrs. Warder's party will be Miss Ward Thorne and her children and the Misses Elizabeth and Alice Warder.

The announcement of the engagement by Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dudley of Somerville of their daughter, Miss Grace, to Walter J. Hayes, of Boston, has brought forth a shower of congratulations.

Mrs. Agnes Locke, of Brookline, is the guest of her parents, Professor and Mrs. Albert C. Perry, of New Haven. Mrs. Locke was one of the young matrons in the receiving line at the recent tea given by the Paint and Clay Club.

EDNA WALLACE HOPPER'S DOUBLE.

Edna Wallace Hopper has a double. She is also an actress of a kind, strangely enough, is playing a part originated by that popular little person in her days.

Gertrude Millington is the name of the double, and she plays the part of Wreene in John C. Fisher's production of "The Silver Slipper" now touring the New England circuit. She may have used her double for the purpose of her business, but she says she does not look or act like her.

SAYINGS AND DOINGS OF Politicians

COLONEL CHARLES D. LEWIS, who has attended every Democratic National Convention since the Charlestown convention of 1860, to which he was a delegate is undecided as to whether he will go to St. Louis this year as a spectator. St. Louis is a warm spot in July the Colonel says, but, like the war horse that grows restive at the sound of the bugle, he listens in his chair when the convention is mentioned in his presence.

"I've seen them all for forty-four years," said the Colonel yesterday, "but I can't quite say whether I'll go out where the muddy water runs. Still, the Exposition will be a big show, and one can take it in and do the convention in the same week."

The Colonel's friends are confident, in spite of his indecision, that he will be within reach of the Mississippi on Independence Day.

THERE is a lively contest on between Representative Monroe, of Chelsea, and Representative Frank E. Gaylord, of Boston, for the heavyweight championship of the House. The championship is not what the term generally implies, but something less bellicose.

When the present session opened, Mr. Monroe tied off with 332 pounds of statesman, with Mr. Gaylord only twelve pounds behind him. Yesterday Mr. Gaylord, who reached the House late, went direct to the seat beside Mr. Monroe's, and sat there several minutes, to encourage those who are wagering that before the session is over Gaylord will weigh more than Monroe.

Mr. Gaylord, who is a druggist, has informed those on the inside that he has a secret formula with which he is treating himself, and that when he gets ready to say how much he weighs, Mr. Monroe's backers will be obliged to bunt up another favorite.

NOT a little amusement is afforded the knowing members of the House of Representatives by the efforts of Speaker Mr. Hayes, of Lowell, when he has attempted to tangle up Speaker Frothingham on parliamentary questions. Last year Mr. Hayes, who is an expert parliamentarian and a joker, had much fun with Speaker Myers, and often would offer, with a straight face, a motion that was palpably out of order, for the sake of enjoying the Speaker's confusion when the discovery of his error in putting it before the House.

This year Mr. Hayes has to walk a parliamentary chalk mark, for Speaker Frothingham knows very well that the Lowell man carries much up his sleeve, and he doesn't propose to be caught off his guard. In fact, he is far stricter with Mr. Hayes than with any other member of the House, much to Mr. Hayes's discomfiture. "And the beauty of it is," said a member of the House, "Hayes was one of the managers of Frothingham's campaign for the Speakership."

"HOW long since you became a Hearst man, Colonel?" is the question poked at Colonel Edward F. McSweeney nowadays. He is the secretary of the Olney Association of Massachusetts, is also a member of the Democratic State and Fourth Congressional District Convention, at Marlboro, on the credentials of a delegate who was elected as a Hearst man and whose caucus instructed him to vote for Hearst delegates.

KNOWING ones wink when Representative Norcross, of Monson, votes against a report of the House Committee on Ways and Means. Mr. Norcross is not a candidate for Senator next Fall, and so is Mr. Parker, of Springfield, the chairman of the Committee, who comes from the same district. This year the Ways and Means Committee has been turned down more than ever before, and the leadership of Mr. Norcross in the attacks on the committee are considered quite a coincidence. Mr. Norcross resembles Mark Twain so closely that he has often been mistaken for him.

REPRESENTATIVE BAKER, of New Bedford, is taking his first voyage as one of the crew of the ship of State, although he has spent many a year on wild and wintry seas navigating a whaler. His seat is in the last row, practically on the quarterdeck of the House, a fine spot for taking observations. As yet, even without quadrant or sextant he hasn't lost his bearings.

REPRESENTATIVE WARD C. Hollenbeck, who served with Mr. Baker in the chair in New York, has no knowledge that he ever lost his bearings, even when in the House. He was elected last year, and was accepted by his colleagues as an average country member until he began to make himself known in his initial speech before the House. It was then that he learned that he didn't know what he was talking about. Mr. Hollenbeck speedily found that he did not possess the talents noted in Senators, orators, so-called, that one has to be born to be a statesman, and knowledge that one has to be born to be a statesman, and knowledge that one has to be born to be a statesman, and knowledge

The Catamount Killer Is Useful.

He Does Not Know It. But a Wisdom Far Above Him Aims His Rifle, and for Good Reasons Bestows the Killing Instinct Upon Him.

Boys called statesmen combine AMBITION with the mere fondness for killing: and these boys—the Caesars, Napoleons, Alexanders, etc.—kill men instead of catamounts, because men must die when the killing instinct gets ambition mixed up with it

On various occasions we have discussed with readers the very plain fact that all of our GENUINE instincts, all of the desires actually born within us—apart from perversion or misdevelopment—are useful and necessary.

We shall really begin to understand the human race to which we belong, and we shall begin to map out our destiny and steer our course intelligently, when we learn to be guided by those instincts that the Highest Wisdom has put within us, instead of misguiding ourselves through our efforts to coerce and control our natures

Every child born a girl has an instinctive fondness for dolls—that instinct accurately predicts the fact that it is her destiny to take care of babies

Every human being is born with a longing for exploration, for travel

That was put within us that we might cover the globe with our breed, as we have covered it

Every human creature is born with appetites of absolutely unlimited diversity

You can teach the man born where the snow is perpetual to like oranges; you can also teach the man born on the equator to demand cracked ice.

This diversity of tastes was put in men that they might crave all of the useful products of the globe, and thus be led to thorough cultivation of it

There is no doubt that in the human being as we now know him—the primitive, half-barbarous human being—the instinct to kill is a GENUINE instinct, a natural craving, like the instinct of paternity, or of exploration

As we develop and gradually reach our maturity on earth—five hundred thousand years from now, perhaps—some of these instincts will wear away, as a child's instincts change with its approach to maturity

But there is no doubt that the killing instinct—the instinct which leads the head of a great nation to put away his books, drop the unsolved problems of administration, pack up his rifle and go out to kill something—is a genuine instinct, real, not perverted. There is no doubt that it is a NECESSARY instinct: for of this you may be sure, among all our mistakes, follies, sufferings and apparently haphazard wanderings, not ONE of the FUNDAMENTAL emotions within us is without its wise purpose

You may say that there is no reason on high, except in some wise man, representing ORDER and HARMONY on this little globe, could include a love of murderous arms or how other charts forbid it.

You will say, perhaps, "The little girl loves a doll, because later she MUST [illegible] because later he must build ships and construct machinery. The eccentric child seeks solitude in midsummer instead of in autumn woods, because later in his time must be devoted to an uninspired thinking out of existence of men with his characters. BUT SURELY MAN'S WELFARE COULD HAVE BEEN SECURED HIGH WITHOUT THE HIDEOUS INBORN LOVE OF KILLING OTHER LIVING CREATURES."

What USE is there in the desire to kill something, the desire innate in nine out of ten healthy boys?

The Dash from Port Arthur.

How Did the Russians Get Out?

Copyrighted, 1904, by the American-Journal-Examiner.

Several weeks ago one of the Russian torpedo boats ran the gantlet of Japanese battleships, destroyers, gunboats, cruisers and battleships surrounding the entrance to Port Arthur and escaped. It dodged all the mines and ships of the enemy in a way the difficulties of which will be appreciated by anybody who tries to solve this interesting little Port Arthur puzzle.

In one continuous straight line moves see if you can cross from the lower or Port Arthur side of the accompanying diagram and land at the top, or safety line, touching both sides during the trip. Take a straight ruler and pencil and try. You are allowed only three straight moves, and they must be continuous, beginning at the bottom line, touching both sides and finishing at the top without touching any of the ships or mines en route.

NECESSITY DRIVES US

All but the Utterly Worthless Among Us Are Hitched to Necessity's Plough. All of Us Are Driven and We Work Under the Goad, a Good Thing for Us and for the World.

"CRUEL NECESSITY"—How often have you heard that expression? "Cruel necessity" made him work so hard, or "Cruel necessity" kept him struggling late into the night.

Wherever necessity drives us we speak of that necessity as "cruel." This picture seems a cruel picture and very pretty sermons could be written about the driven man's hapless plight.

This editorial is written to make you see that the necessity that drives us all is the BEST POSSIBLE THING FOR US, and that in our present condition NECESSITY alone produces progress, and will produce ultimate perfection.

The man hitched to the plough sweats as he tugs and toils. He pities himself and he hates the plough; he hates the necessity that drives him.

THE FIELD GETS PLOUGHED IN THE END. But it would not be ploughed without necessity's driving influence.

It was a cruel necessity that drove the passengers in the Mayflower away from their homes to this country. Their religion and all their thoughts were fettered at home. Necessity drove them here that they might think, pray, preach and live as they liked.

It was a cruel necessity for them. They went and fainted as they knelt on the pier before embarking, bidding goodby to their friends and their native land.

That harsh necessity gave to this country its New England people—it was a fortunate necessity for the future of America.

Among the really successful men of the world how many are there that have done any real work EXCEPT THROUGH NECESSITY?

There are a few, a few greatly to be admired, who struggle, deny themselves and succeed, in spite of the fact that life is made easy for them at the start.

But even these, the men and the women that work and succeed in spite of wealth, are really driven by necessity, although that necessity takes another form in their case. The ordinary primitive necessity still controls most of us, and sends us out on our labors, as it used to send the cave man out to hunt for a bear.

That necessity born in the stomach is hunger. And plain, common hunger, the demand for something to eat, still accounts for nine hundred and ninety-nine thousandths of all the work done in this world.

But there is another necessity, born in the brain, that drives some men, and drives them much more furiously and mercilessly than the common hunger necessity.

That fiercer necessity is AMBITION.

Through these two fundamental necessities we have been driven along toward our ultimate destiny—hunger starting us to work in our primitive state, compelling us to get out and do something—AMBITION stepping in and driving us still more urgently into the more difficult and dangerous heats.

Impelled by the necessity of hunger and the ordinary wants of life, a man will go through painfully hard work, risk and suffer everything but death.

In obedience to Ambition, a more merciless driver, men encounter EVEN DEATH ITSELF, and meet it gladly if they feel that the ambition is satisfied.

How much we pity those whom necessity drives! All the kind-hearted dreamers are full of plans to free man from necessity, from suffering, to give him what he wants in easy, pleasant ways.

But how many of us are ready, are fit to be relieved of necessity's scourge?

Not one.

We all need to be driven. The poor man thinks of the fine things he would do, how noble he would be if rich. If wealth comes to him he is as selfish as the others, and less useful than before.

In a modern kingdom, like England, the least useful person is the ruler. From the ordinary necessities of life he is protected, and, with his dull vision, ambition's field is closed to him.

But even in his case the world owes SOMETHING to necessity, for it is necessity, the fear of public opinion, that keeps him fairly respectable and makes him submit to people's ideas of their own rights.

What would become of this world if the necessity to struggle and to labor were suddenly removed? What man, if he had the power, WOULD free all his fellow creatures from the hard necessity that ties them to their work?

He would take a heavy responsibility upon himself that should thus do away with the necessity that curbs us, guides us, keeps us in our places, while we are gradually getting ready for a better and freer life.

We are now like the children at school, learning our lessons in spite of ourselves, getting an education in spite of ourselves, fulfilling in spite of ourselves our mission, which is to cultivate the globe, and make of it a beautiful and thoroughly harmonious home for a future glorious race.

We may some day be freed from the dominion of necessity, as the children, when they grow up, are freed from school.

A few more centuries or hundreds of centuries may bring us up to real maturity, and make it possible for us all to do what we ought to do WITHOUT compulsion. That day is far off, and, as we are now, we owe all that we achieve and all of our progress to this stern figure of Necessity forever driving us on.

Let that thought comfort you if your necessities seem hard upon you and the work seems painful. The law that seems hard in your case is needed, the suffering that you undergo is a part of a general scheme planned for the benefit of all.

Side Lights on the Yellow Peril

By Arthur McEwen

"I admit that it makes me sore to see him playing Monroe to Japan's Jeffries."

1904, by American Journal Examiner.

"I'M not, said Colonel Abe Edgarton, the Arizona mining man, "exactly what you'd call a rooter for the Russians. When I call on my American mind for a showdown, I find that Russia suggests Siberia, the knout, Ikons, Vodka and all-round despotism, lightened up a little by the Alaskan purchase and a friendly feeling for us when we had our Civil War and darn old England was making as much trouble for us as she could. But, though I don't feel close to the Russian; though I am conscious that he's a foreigner from 'way back and not to be classed in my national arms as a brother, I yet have to admit that it makes me sore to see him playing Monroe to Japan's Jeffries the way he is. It goes against my Cimeonian grain, gentlemen, it surely does, to behold a Chink putting it all over a white man.

"For," continued the Colonel, raising his voice so that the attention of the whole cafe was caught, "for what, after all, is a Jap but a Chink? They're the same color; they've both got cat's eyes, and you can't tell one from the other except by the queue. And if they're the same on the outside, there's every reason to expect they're alike inside. They're brothers and feel toward one another as brothers. It's only a few years since the Japs whaled the Chinese worse than they're whaling the Russians, and you'll naturally look for the Chinks to hate 'em. The Chinese are just as happy over Japanese victories as if they were winning 'em themselves. After every hasting the Russians get, Hong Kong shakes hands with Yokohama and Canton with Tokio. When the war's over and the Russian bear crawls into its hole for a good long spell to nurse its head and let its broken teeth mend, I look to see Japan take charge of China, wake her up, drill her, and make her ready to fight the world if the world doesn't give up the idea of carving her."

"Well, why not?" asked Professor Jenks, of Pennsylvania. "Where's the harm in the advancement of any portion of the human race?"

"Where's the harm?" cried Colonel Edgarton. "Why, sir, the triumph of Japan will simply mean that a halt has been called to the grand march of Anglo-Saxon civilization. Before this astounding and dismaying war broke out we were going ahead without let or hindrance, or thought we were—toward the goal to which it seemed we were beckoned by the star of destiny. The entire layout of the future appeared to be reserved for the English-speaking race. France was on the toboggan, Spain dead, Italy in the throes—all the Latin peoples on the blink, so to speak—and as for the yellow men, who gave them a thought as possible impeders of the Anglo-Saxon march. Our language was to spread over the earth, and there were to be any civilization but ours. Nothing that wasn't Anglo-Saxon was to have a chance of surviving. Our literature, our art, our religion, our philosophy, our manners and customs—in which there is no room for improvement—were to be the whole thing. It was a noble dream; and now, by Jove, we're shaken out of it by a Chink!"

"There is room in the world, and advantage, too, in diversity of civilization," urged Professor Jenks.

"I suppose so—yes, I dare say you're right," admitted Colonel Edgarton, sadly. "Anyhow, it's tolerably plain that we've got to put up with the diversity, we Anglo-Saxons, whether we like it or not. But what's especially grawsome to me is that we're now under command to learn to respect the Jap, and after him the Chinaman, I s'pose, as soon as he's been taught how to handle a gun."

"And why," demanded the Professor, "should that distress you?"

"Because," explained the Colonel, "if the gorgeous military success of the Japs puts heart and pride into the yellow races, there'll be no room left for us white men to look down upon except the coons. And I want to tell you, gentlemen, that the privilege of looking down on you sloppy is the greatest source of human happiness that exists. If you aren't able by your individual brain, industry or virtues to do something that entitles you to look up to yourself, it's a solid satisfaction to assure yourself that you're still a cut above some other critter by right of birth. The meanest Piute thinks there's no question about his being a better man than the best Shoshone; the lowest Digger Indian feels the same way about the English, and there's not a little, addled, rickety Englishman in London that doesn't consider himself a great, brawny, beef-eating giant, with a full license to despise a frog-eating Frenchman—or anybody else on the habitable globe. We all know what British modesty is.

"If," pursued the Colonel, "the disposition to do things that would earn the right to be looked up to were one-tenth as strong in the human breast as is the instinct to look down on somebody, evolution would have supplied this planet thousands of years since with a race of Shakespeares and Newtons and Darwins and Huxleys and Washingtons and Lincolns.

"We've all got to take our time at being looked down on. It's only recently that our beloved English brethren were asking who ever read an American book, and but yesterday that they quit openly sneering at us as a bit of raw and bumptious colonial stock of Yankee stamp. My father told me that when he was a boy Macaulay was the reading and safe fad in front from the Pyramids to see an Englishman. It was the fashion to look down on the Irish, who in those days were doing the navvy country's hard work, and native-born brickiest were hewers of wood. Then the German immigrant had his innings as the comforter of all who needed to be warmed by a sense of superiority to somebody. So the brickbat was aimed at the "dashed Dutchman." It's the Italian who has to stand the racket now, helped out by Huns and Slavs and miscellaneous Dagoes. A few years ago, while out in San Francisco, I had occasion to plead for a gentleman who made himself personally offensive, and the jury acquitted and acquitted me. I gave as my reason that I wasn't sure of an Irishman after the last one in the box proved with a diploma. I have never seen exceeded on the bench—gave me the interesting fact that I discovered that he had a strong prejudice against the Englishman, who are quite numerous in California. I recall it as the father of this young jurist.

"But what has all this to do with the Japanese?" Professor Jenks interrupted testily.

"Much," responded Colonel Edgarton, with less ear. "I am dealing with the Yellow Peril, broadly, and you will only be able properly to ding me to deal with it in my own way.

"These unlimited antipathies upon which I have touched gentlemen, are mere surface indications of the all but universal desire to look down on somebody. If it isn't on account of the color of one's birthplace, the color of his skin or his language, it is based on his ideas. Perhaps you are aware that a Presbyterian can't associate with I'm a Republican, myself, and Roosevelt is good enough for me. How a man can be a Democrat and believe what a Democrat has to believe and still be safe and respectable to speak of, is a constructive—passes my powers of comprehension. Yet I know some intelligents intimately—you are one, yourself, Professor—and I am compelled to accept the evidence of my senses and admit that it would not be just to confine them in an asylum because they are just crazy enough to differ from me. That's as hard for me to grasp as that a Jap, who is a Chink, is as good and better than a Russian, who's a white man, in a fight.

"As Republicans and Democrats we can agree to tolerate each other, perhaps, and accept the fact as a fact which can't be satisfactorily explained, if at all, why it's mutually fit to be at first and last. But I ask you, Professor, as a Democrat, and speaking man to man: Do you honestly think that a Populist can be other than demented?"

"I decline," returned the Pennsylvania educator, after a thoughtful pause, "I decline to commit myself at this stage of the campaign."

"My reason for asking," explained Colonel Edgarton, "is that as a business man, moving daily among business men, I have occasion to hear them discuss politics, and have yet to hear a single respectful reference to Tom Watson, the Populist Presidential candidate."

"A hare-brained ass," interjected Professor Jenks.

"Exactly. Though you are of the intellectual class, you express perfectly the view of the hard-headed business man—and he, as you know, is typical of all that is wise and conservative in American life. Everybody quotes the hard-headed business man when it is desired to clinch things in political argument. His judgment is as conclusive as a decision of the United States Supreme Court.

"And yet I've been wondering," Colonel Edgarton went on musingly, "just why Tom Watson should be looked down on by the hard-headed business man, whether the hard-headed business man's name is Adams, Mandelbaum, Francovitch, Schmitt, Bonetti or McCarthy. The Watsons have been in this land of free thought and free speech since long before the Revolution. Thomas is as much one of the Americans. He is a lawyer, and a good one; a farmer, and a success at it. While the hard-headed business man has been doing that which set him has claim to pre-eminence in wisdom as a publicist—attending strictly to business and thinking only of how to make more money for himself. He's crazy Tom Watson has been giving his leisure to the study of the history, not only of his own land, but of the Old World, and writing about the past, knowledge of which is our sole safe guide to action in the present and future. Now if the fellow isn't a Populist, one would naturally say that his judgment about any political matter would be worth a heap more than that of the hard-headed business man—but that's nonsense, of course. Nobody's judgment is as good as the hard-headed business man's. It can't be. In my opinion, and in that of any other really sane citizen, the proper and patriotic thing to do is to lock down on Tom Watson.

"For my own part," concluded Colonel Edgarton, emptying his glass, rising and reaching for his slouch hat, "I'm an enemy to all disturbers, whether they're Populists or hare-brained business men myself, and prefer not to be annoyed by innovations. Then force me to think, instead of taking things for granted, compel me to readjust his opinions to fit new facts, to get rid of prejudices and make room for ideas, and in general to employ one's mind, which isn't agreeable when you're not used to it. Why, no, Professor, Lord, Lord! to think that a Jap, a mere Chink, can more than hold his own with a white man! Why, honestly, Jenks, that astonishes me, and distresses me, and alarms me almost as much as it would the ordinary hard-headed business man were it to break upon him that Watson really had something to say for himself."

"Compose yourself, my friend," counselled Professor Jenks, taking the Colonel's arm and boring good-night to the company. "Armed Christendom will be able to take care of the Yellow Peril should it ever actually threaten; and as for the visionaries of our own dear land, think God the sanity and conservatism and the—er—inertia of the American people present a stone wall against which the cranks can beat out such brains as they have"

"Do you think so, Professor? Well, there's no telling. Time's revolution that hasn't the least reverence for established institutions or respectable opinion—why, I'm a Chink if it hasn't! But I have surely got me, if they haven't Port Arthur."

Asks: "Must We Indeed Roar Like Atrides Before the Eternal God Will Reveal Himself in Our Lives?"

Copyright, 1904, by American-Journal Examiner.

THERE is a tragic element in the life of every day that is far more real, far more penetrating, far more akin to the true self that is in us than the tragedy that lies in great adventure. But readily as we may feel this, to prove it is by no means easy, inasmuch as this essential tragic element comprises more than that which is merely material or merely psychological.

It goes beyond the determined struggle of man against man and desire against desire, it goes beyond the eternal conflict of duty and passion. Its province is rather to reveal to us how truly wonderful is the mere act of living and to throw light upon the existence of the soul, self-contained in the midst of ever restless immensities, to flush the dissonance of reason as a sentiment, so that alone the tumult may be heard the solemn, unhurried, whisperings of truth and the ideal.

It is as true now to point out to us the uncertain, dolorous footsteps of Hamlet as he approach or wanders from his truth, his honor or his God. And further to show us and make us understand the countless other things therewith connected, of which tragic poets have but vouchsafed us passing glimpses. And here do we come to an essential point, for could not these things of which we have but such passing glimpses be placed in front of the others? Is soul to be first of all?

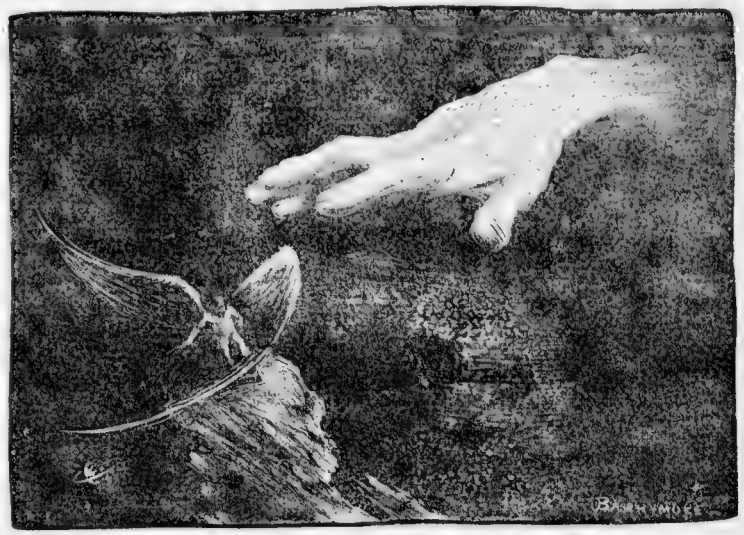
The most evident fact of the case is, the ominous silence of the soul and of God, the murmur of eternity on the horizon of the day or night that we are conscious of within us, though by what token none can tell—do not these underlie King Lear, Macbeth, Hamlet? And would it not be possible, by some interchanging of the rules to bring them nearer to us and send the actor further off.

It is beyond the mark to say that the true tragic element normal, deep-rooted and universal—that the true tragic element of life only begins at the moment when so-called adventures, sorrows and dangers have disappeared.

Is the arm of happiness not longer than that of sorrow, and do not certain of its attributes draw nearer to the soul? Must we indeed roar like the Atrides before the eternal God will reveal Himself in our life, and is He never by our side at times when the air is calm and the lamp burns on undickering.

When we think of it, is it not the tranquillity that is terrible, the tranquillity watched by the stars, and is it in tumult or in silence that the spirit of life quickens within us?

Is it not when we are told, at the end of the story, "They were happy," that the great disquiet should intrude itself? What is taking place while they are happy? Are there not elements of deeper gravity and stability in happiness, in a single moment of repose than in the whirlwind of passion?



(Drawn by John Barrymore.)

"There is a tragic element in the life of every day that is far more real, far more penetrating, far more akin to the true self that is in us than the tragedy that lies in great adventure."

Is it not then that we at last behold the march of not deeper chords set vibrating by all these things than time, is it not then that the hours rush forward? Are by the dagger stroke of conventional drama?

Is it while I flee before a naked sword that my existence touches its most interesting point? Is life always e[illegible] at its sublimest in a kiss? Are there not other moments when one hears paper scrape that do not fall less solemn? Does the soul only [illegible]

Rev. Dr. Hale Tells of Death-Bed Visit to Senator Hoar

New England's Two Grand Old Men Have a Cheerful Talk Together

Have Been Warm Friends for Over Fifty-four Years

THE Rev. Edward Everett Hale, New England's foremost Unitarian divine and friend for a half century of Senator George F. Hoar, visited the sick statesman on Thursday at what in all human probability is his death-bed. They had a twenty-minute interview, and what was said is here told for the first time by Dr Hale, through the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

By the Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale.

I called on Senator Hoar on Thursday and had a pleasant chat with him in his bed-chamber. Really, there was little in the conversation that a newspaper could regard as news or its readers be interested in. We talked of things that have passed—of ordinary things in our common experience—as old friends do talk who are meeting after some separation

There was no gloom in our meeting. It was not the talk of men who expect never to see on another again. There was nothing said in the nature of a farewell

It was exactly such a visit as I might have paid Senator Hoar if he had chanced to fall and sprain his ankle, or break his leg, and have to be put to bed for a time. I touched upon the unpleasantness of having to lie in bed so long, but nothing was said that would suggest the possibility of the Senator's never leaving that bed

He was intensely cheerful, and absolutely in the possession of his usual power of thought. Of course he is weak. And he is a very ill man But I have hope that this is not his last illness

I understand there is hope felt for his recovery. His relatives are much more hopeful than they were a week ago I do not feel that he is to leave us at this time. He has a strong constitution. He has lived well And these things may help him to rally, and to recover

I cannot look for a speedy recovery. Senator Hoar is not a young man He is only four years younger than I. He was born in 1826, seventy-eight years ago last week. But I do trust that he will gradually gather together his strength, and as the weeks go by return to his former health and spirits

I have known Senator Hoar since 1850—fifty-four years. We have been warm friends all that time. I was glad to visit him. But of our talk—there is nothing that might not be said by any two such old friends meeting when one lay in bed with a slight illness, hoping soon to be well again —Statement made to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN by Rev. Dr. EDWARD EVERETT HALE, chaplain of the United States Senate.

DR. HALE'S VISIT CHEERS SEN. HOAR

Veteran New Englanders Had an Informal Chat and Bade Each Other Casual Goodbye.

Two grand old men of New England clasped hands on Thursday for what was probably the last time. For more than a half century they have been associates, friends, brothers. They have labored together and individually for what they believed to be right. They have been recognized the saints of the country as leaders in all work that made for freedom of body or of thought Both are great in the noblest as well as the popular sense And on Thursday, for probably the last time in life, they met.

One of them Senator George Frisbie Hoar—was on his bed at home, sick unto death. The other—Rev Edward Everett Hale paid a visit to Worcester for the express purpose of seeing his old friend

Commonly speaking, the years have rested lightly upon both of these great men. Senator Hoar is seventy-eight years old; Dr Hale is eighty-two. Both have done men's work in plenty in their long and useful lives. Until the illness that now overpowers him, and will probably bring him down to death, the Senator has shown few marks of advancing age beyond the silvery hair that has been his portion for many years. Dr. Hale bears his eighty winters with remarkable strength. Although suffering from some of the weaknesses of age, his eye is clear, his voice round and his mind of its normal strength

This has been markedly characteristic one of the best known lawmakers alive in [illegible] and today all America [illegible] hope in Worcester that the people [illegible] Senator Hoar's recovery, and that there is [illegible] to suggest the [illegible] Dr Hale's visit was [illegible] and [illegible] state and nation [illegible] for the best

DEATH BLOWS BY JAPS TO THE ROUTED RUSSIAN REMNANTS

KUROPATKIN IN FULL FLIGHT NEARS FINAL FATE

JAPS CROSSING THE TAI TSE RIVER.

GEN. KUROPATKIN IN HIS LIBRARY.

The War Situation at a Glance.

General Kuropatkin has suffered crushing defeat at Liao-Yang.

The flanking movement of General Kuroki, north of the Taitse river was successful. Communication with the north was cut off and the Russian army divided.

The rout of the Russians was accompanied by frightful slaughter. Thousands who escaped the Japanese fire met death in the swollen Taitse river.

Liao-Yang, with its great storehouses, is in flames, and a score of villages, where Russian storehouses were situated, have been burned.

The defeat of Kuropatkin makes the Japanese masters in Manchuria. The advance on Mukden will be begun immediately.

In the south Port Arthur alone remains in possession of the Russians. The complete occupation of the stronghold by the Japs is expected at Tokio within a few days.

The Russians, reduced to less than 20,000, have been driven into the few remaining forts in the central citadel and on the Tiger's Tail. These will be carried by storm.

Mikado's Armies Follow Sweeping Victory at Liao-Yang by Terrific Attacks on Divisions of Retreating Muscovites

Japanese left and centre. They are practically at the mercy of the forces of Generals Oku and Nodzu. Field Marshal Oyama, in his dispatch, said that this force offered some resistance south of Liao-Yang, but was driven back.

JAPS' VICTORY COMPLETE.

The Japanese victory, after five days of ferocious fighting such as was not before known in warfare, is complete. The Russians, when the main body broke before Kuroki's onslaught north of the Taitse, fled in a rout. The scenes were appalling.

Thousands were killed, many who escaped the rifle fire and bayonet charges of the Japs being hurled back into the Taitse River and drowned. Although Kuroki's men had been fighting desperately for days and nights to effect the flanking movement which terminated so successfully, they leaped to the attack yesterday with the vigor of fresh soldiers.

The turning movement of General Kuroki was completed by Japanese pressure on the Russian centre and right. Had Kuroki threw his force across the Taitse the Russian army formed a defensive half circle around Liao-Yang, with two ends resting on the river. General Kuroki fronted the Russian left, while Generals Oku and Nodzu faced the centre and right.

Four days flanking movement was made simultaneously with a terrific attack on the entire Russian front by the armies of Oku and Nodzu. Artillery was engaged. The Russian positions were shelled repeatedly and rifle fire and bayonet charges engaged the attention of the line. Notwithstanding this, Kuroki's first attempt to cross the river by means of a pontoon bridge failed, and he was compelled to withdraw twenty miles to the eastward to effect a crossing at a ford.

Once across he hurried two divisions westward. Meantime Kuropatkin had been informed of the movement and he ordered that his main force withdraw to the north side of the river. This movement was partially checked by the ferocity of the Japanese centre and left, which prevented the large body of the troops from withdrawing according to the plans of the Russian commander. During this movement the troops were frequently engaged in hand to hand fighting of the most desperate character.

RUSSSIANS BURN LIAO-YANG.

Friday evening General Kuropatkin had withdrawn the greater part of his force from Liao-Yang by the north bank of the Taitse. The bridges in what were called the new city of Russian structures and the suburbs were at daylight Saturday morning crowded with Russian troops. Many were the Russians that had been slaughtered. South of Liao-Yang remained two divisions to cover the retreat.

Early yesterday morning the Japanese resumed the attack. The battle on the south bank of the river was terrific until the Russians gave way and fled toward the northwest. In this direction another Japanese force awaits them, and two days' fighting is expected to exceed 60,000 men.

RUSSIAN GENERALS WOUNDED.

A report dated September 3, has been received from General Kuropatkin, telling of the wounding of Generals Osursky and Orloff the former seriously, the latter only slightly.

The Japanese have laid mines along the line between Yantai and the Taitse river. An attempt on the part of the Russian regiments to determine the strength of the enemy on the western front resulted in a Russian defeat and the loss of 3,000 men. The report follows:

"On Friday our troops attacked the heights of Shenwang, and after a stubborn battle occupied the northwestern mountain. Numerous Japanese troops were [illegible] to the Taitse River the Japanese had laid mines.

"Owing to the [illegible] nevertheless possessed a considerable advantage in mines, but was not by a superior force of Japanese and was obliged to retreat.

"The brave troops of the First Siberian [illegible] stopped the [illegible] of the enemy. General [illegible] was wounded slightly and General Osursky seriously.

REPULSED, LOSE 3,000.

"At 9 o'clock p. m. the battle quieted along the entire line, only the firing from Liao-Yang continued.

"Reports from Liao-Yang bring the assurance that the [illegible] in the enemy's [illegible] city was successfully repulsed.

"Our troops advanced from the seven [illegible] villages of the city to the west to determine the strength of the enemy in that direction.

"A hot battle ensued, during which the two Russian companies were cut off. Two divisions of the enemy's troops, [illegible] have yet arrived. They will probably [illegible] to-day."

Uncle Sam's Goods In Seized Steamer

Washington, Sept. 3.—The statement that the Taitse was flying the Russian flag against the seizure of the cargo of the British steamship Calchas, which was captured while bound from Puget Sound to Japan, by the Vladivostok squadron, is confirmed at the State Department.

The protest sets forth that part of the cargo was destined for the Philippines for the use of American military forces there, and was in no way intended for the use of the Japanese belligerents, and is, therefore, not contraband.

KUROPATKIN TELLS WHY HE QUIT CITY

St. Petersburg, Sept. 3.—General Kuropatkin personally left Liao Yang for Mukden Friday.

Before leaving Liao-Yang the Russians fired the magazine stores. The report sent by General Kuropatkin explanatory of his abandonment of Liao-Yang has now been made public.

It states that on September 2 the Japanese had occupied the majority of the positions commanding the city from the south, and the First Siberian Regiment, which was guarding the rear, was compelled to retire westward to avoid the flanking movement of the enemy.

"Under these circumstances," wires General Kuropatkin, "I ordered Liao-Yang to be evacuated and began the northward retirement of the troops."

A Japanese force of several thousand has now taken possession of the city. It is exported, however, that a larger body of troops will be sent to enforce the present force of occupation.

TRAGIC ENDING OF CZAR'S CAMPAIGN

BY JOSEPH E. O'BRIEN.

The war game in the Far East has been played to its tragic finish. The Japanese are masters of the situation; Russia has suffered humiliating, crushing defeat. The Mister of death and the Shepherd Boy stood in mortal combat, and the giant, powerful, tactless pigmy triumphant, the world looked on.

A year ago Russia was mistress of Manchuria and almost the surety existed that her dominion over Corea. Her armies in the Far East numbered half a million men. Her immense navies made her 5th among the world's sea powers. The millions she had spent in fortifying Port Arthur seemed to justify her boast that the stronghold was a second Gibraltar and impregnable. She stood arrogantly forth foremost among the nations and she feared none, least of all the beardless Mikado of Japan.

SEA POWER IS SHATTERED.

To day a few battered hulks comprise her sea power in the East. Her great battleships, the pride of her navy, rotted with Japanese shells, are sunk and destroyed. Her great armies, decimated and scattered, are fleeing from the terrific onslaughts of the Japanese. The invincible bayonet charges of the Japanese the stronghold of Port Arthur is battered to its forts, with a handful of defenders, and its complete occupation by the Japs is but a matter of days. Japan has established dominion over Corea, and the power of the world must decide the issue.

The rout has been appalling. When England invaded the Transvaal President Kruger declared that the price of her triumph would stagger the world. Russia's slain in the single battle of Liao Yang than fell during the entire South African struggle. The dead would muster an army almost equal to the number of survivors in the great battles, in which the modern fighting arts put to the full test of [illegible] Thousands went down [illegible] with [illegible] and [illegible]

DEAD TOO MANY TO BURY.

The burial of the dead who fell on land became impossible. Before the battle of Liao-Yang the Japanese provided 10,000 little wooden boxes to contain the ashes of the dead, and employed 500 Chinese to attend funeral pyres. Since then the Japanese dead have been cremated on the field and their ashes sent back to their beloved country. The Japanese honor [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

SAYS THAT JEALOUS WOMAN PUSHED HER FROM WINDOW

EDITH COOK HAS LOST FAITH IN WOMEN.

Pretty Girl Who Was Terribly Injured by Plunge Through Window Says Mrs. Rhea Was Angry Over Man Companion

HAS PROFITED BY A PAINFUL LESSON

Mrs. Elizabeth Rhea, Charged with the Crime, Will Not Take the Stand Unless She Is Indicted by Grand Jury

Pretty Miss Edith Cook, twenty-one years old, who charges that she was pushed from a window at No. 78 Clive street, Jamaica Plain, by a woman who was jealous of her, and who caused the arrest of Mrs. Elizabeth Rhea, of that address, declared to-day that she would never be against trust a woman.

In the West Roxbury Court Judge Austin granted a continuance of Mrs. Rhea's hearing on the charge of "assault with intent to kill," at the request of her counsel, F. McDonald, until Sept. 12. Mrs. Rhea, who is out on $1,500 bail, was accompanied to the court by her husband, Curtis R. Rhea, a traveling salesman. The prosecution was looked after by Sergeant Busby of Station 13, who consented to the adjournment.

"When the hearing does take place, my client will not take the stand," said counsel for Mr. Rhea. "The matter will go to the grand jury, and we will then prove that she is innocent of the crime with which she was charged."

Tells Her Story.

For the first time since she recovered consciousness at the city hospital where she was taken in an apparently dying condition, her limbs fractured, and internally it was feared, by her plunge from the window of Mrs. Rhea's home, Miss Cook told to a BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN reporter the story of the affair. She was seen at No. 72 Waltham street, where she is stopping with friends.

"I want to say now that I have learned a painful lesson, and I will never trust another woman, or a man either, very much, for that matter," she said.

"Before my life that I ever met Mrs. Rhea was the day before I was pushed through the window of her home. I had an engagement with a friend at the Hotel Oxford. I went to his home and he will not be drawn into this case if I can help it. When I met him he had a friend with him, and he went around to the station to get Mrs. Rhea. That was the first time I laid eyes on her.

Jealous, She Says.

"She was jealous because my friend was so attentive to me. I went with her when we left our friends, and she took me to her home, and I was in the house only long when she accused me of stealing. I denied it, and she called a young girl and sent her for a policeman to take me as a prisoner.

"When the little girl left I followed Mrs. Rhea into the pantry and pleaded with her and to have me arrested, and begged her that I might not be taken. Everything she flew at me and unmindful of her being received attention from that young man the night before, and as we got near a window I was shoved through it.

"That is all I know until I regained consciousness in the hospital. I have not been in Boston long. I came from Newton, Vt. My mother is now in Boston and will remain here until after the case is over. I never met Mrs. Rhea's husband. He is a traveling salesman, and was not in the city when I was hurt.

day. Windows and doors were open in his spacious old home, the sun shone brightly into his study, and from the depths of a wide chair he was directing an assistant in the preparation of publishers' proofs, opening and reading his mail, and discussing the daily papers in a bustling manner, indicative of his usual duration of mental power.

The hour glass seems to have stopped for Edward Everett Hale during the past few years. His massive head is no grayer, his eyes no less bright, his voice no less resonant, his greetings no less cordial and gracious than a decade ago.

He deprecated the intimation that there was anything to interest the public in the meeting between [illegible] Senator Hoar, and he talked of personal things, he said.

"You don't want the news for a newspaper."

No Final Farewell.

"[illegible] will the Senator be ill as you say?"

"He is a very ill man. But it is not necessarily true that he is on his death bed. I hope very sincerely that this is not his last illness."

"And your talk——"

"Was of personal things and people; of happenings of general interest. It was just such a [illegible] would have had if he had called to bid and remain his guest for a few days, and have to be put to bed."

"He said, 'Doctor'——"

"I talked with the Senator for twenty minutes, and there was no evidence in all that time that he was not [illegible] as strong as it ever was. We talked poetry, quality, of things that would interest us both. He followed the conversation as readily as I."

"And as to the farewell?"

"There was no farewell, in the sense I think you mean. We simply talked and parted, as though we were to meet many times again, as I fervently hope we will. There is [illegible] to recover."

"It is possible. I have not given up hope for his recovery. His family are more hopeful than they were—far more hopeful."

"Do you hope for a speedy recovery?"

"That I cannot say. Senator Hoar is no longer young. He is only four years younger than I. He was born in 1826, and was seventy-eight years and last week."

Friends Fifty-four Years.

"And you have been life long friends?"

"Since 1850—for fifty-four years. We met at that time, when he was reading law in Worcester. It is many years, and through them all we have been good friends. We have met in many places and under many circumstances, and always with [illegible] feeling."

Dr. Hale spoke with the calm impersonality that distinguishes men who are both old and great when age befalls. Death is [illegible] to him the terror it arouses in most minds.

"But there was no farewell," he repeated. "It was simply as though he had been laid up with some trifling accident. We just had a pleasant talk, and said goodby, to meet again."

In the pleasant parlor of the family home at Worcester the reporter sat some hours [illegible] talked with Dr. Hale's son, William H. Pendergast, of Bridgeton, R. I., is attributed to an unfavorable cotton market and lack of capital. Liabilities are said to be several hundred thousand dollars.

Mystery of Previous Crimes Committed Years Ago Appears in Gruesome Discovery in a Stable in Roxbury.

MANY OTHER HUMAN BONES ALSO FOUND

BONES FOUND UNDER ROXBURY BARN FLOOR

Skull of young man of twenty-five.
Skull of an old man of sixty.
Two human ankle bones.
Two human kneecaps.
Portion of smaller bone of the arm.
Portion of an upper leg bone.
Portion of a vertebra.

Two human skulls and a number of bones, from a human body, discovered by accident under the floor of an old stable in the Roxbury Crossing District, have aroused intense interest in the neighborhood and have given the police a most difficult problem to solve.

Whence came the bones?

How long have they been there?

Are they evidence of a series of crimes similar to those of which Mary, in "Old Cherry Lane," is accused, or are they relics of some time when medical students endeavored to keep themselves supplied with subjects by grave robbing?

These questions are puzzling the police no less than the people in the vicinity of No. 20 Conant street, in the rear of which the gruesome find was made.

An ordinary baseball led to the discovery. A couple of small boys were playing in the vacant lot back of the stable, and the ball rolled under the building. Little Hendey, an eleven year old boy, who lives at No. 22 Conant street, crept after the ball, and in groping around in the dark found the first skull. As soon as it came to view the boy dropped it. The other lads grouped around it for a time, and then some one of them bethought himself of the propriety of notifying the police. This was done. The investigation was started.

Found a Second Skull.

Saturday the fire set to work in earnest. Officers Murphy and Angell were detailed with Sergeant King to search under the entire floor of the barn. Numerous small bones were uncovered their services. The boys, equipped with lanterns, had not been working long when a cry arose from one corner of the building, and twelve year old Walter Carroll, of No. 651 Parker street, squirmed out from under the floor with a second skull in his hands.

All work was suspended temporarily while Sergeant King and Patrolman [illegible] made a thorough search.

In the meanwhile, however, other small boys had come for a smaller amount of attention. Almost every one of a score had several bones in its grasp and was trying to interest King in his find. At last Dr. George Bosworth, assistant medical examiner, arrived, and began an examination.

Teeth Well Preserved.

Medical Examiner Stedman said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"The first skull found was that of a young man, for the teeth are well preserved and the skull walls very thin. The work of the skull is entirely crushed, and I should say that the fiend had been done about eight or ten years ago.

"The second skull is evidently that of an old man, probably sixty years of age. It may have been there twenty years or so positive the bodies were those of murdered men. From the fact that some of the bones had been sawed, especially those of the spine. They took an [illegible] some one had cut up the body and had used a saw to separate the bones.

"I am sure they were not left there by medical students. No students would ever left the bones there. They would have taken them away. I hardly think the mystery will ever be cleared up."

Some Bones of Animals.

Many of the supposed mysterious bones proved to be [illegible] bones. They were bones of animals and bore little resemblance to those of a human being. These were thrown out and the human remains were taken to the undertaking rooms of [illegible] on Washington street.

The police force [illegible] part of the search, but it will be [illegible] before the [illegible] of the remains. The [illegible] Committee room [illegible] upon, except when the committee was in session.

Medical Examiner Stedman made the statement [illegible] edition of his father, [illegible] has been published in the Boston [illegible] in response to a query regarding [illegible] strength of mind [illegible] of the time, but when he comes himself and concentrates his mind upon anything, it seems as clear as ever.

In absolute peace Senator Hoar awaits the end. And the hardships and unimportant words that passed between him and his friend of many years, himself far down the slope that leads to final Rest, make an incident that may not have been dramatic—but was vastly impressive.

Mind Clear as Ever.

"Their friendship was as deep as it was lasting," Dr. Hale has called my father [illegible] in conversation.

"When Dr. Hale went to live in Washington [illegible] the Senator he called [illegible] their close friendship. Dr. Hale was provided with a [illegible] room opposite the Judiciary Committee room. The Senator [illegible] upon, except when the committee was in session.

"The call did my father good. It was in 1886, I think, that he and Dr. Hale, then a young minister, met. They became warm friends. They had many tastes in common. They had the same religious beliefs. They were each active in the work of the American Antiquarian Society and [illegible] Massachusetts Historical Society. Dr. Hale married my sister and my mother. Last Winter he, with Hay, Rush R. Shippen, also an old friend, officiated at her funeral.

VALUE OF WEST END KISSES FIXED AT $5 EACH.

For kissing a miss on Green street, Al Anderson was fined $5 in Municipal Court yesterday.

The miss was Annie Weimer. She thought it be kiss rainbow and had the "pitched," as the good West End rules it.

It was in the evening. Miss Annie tripped lightly down the street. She heard the sounding of [illegible] through the telephone wires. From Cambridge street came the clang of the bounding trolley.

Out of this atmosphere of harmony and human happiness loomed up the form of Anderson. Miss Annie noticed him not, but he spied her pretty face and puckered lips. Before Miss Annie could quiver even a [illegible] from Missouri or Ireland [illegible] had [illegible] one fine young kiss. The kiss, incidentally, was preceded by a tender embrace.

MRS. "NAT" THAYER AT MOTHER'S BEDSIDE

Boston Woman Who Made Record-Breaking Trip to Mother's Bedside and House in Which Mrs. Paul Revere Is Dying.

Death of Mrs. Paul Revere Is Expected Hourly at Her Summer Home in Maine.

Boston society in particular and New England life in general await with sad expectation the news from the exclusive [illegible] Isle Au Haut in Maine of the passing away of Mrs. Paul Revere of Boston.

The dying woman is the widow of Paul Revere, 3d. He was grandson of the [illegible] distinguished [illegible] the midnight ride of [illegible].

As one of the last links connecting the historic rider of a war time generation with the people of to-day, Mrs. Revere is a figure of interest. A large portion of her life was somewhat [illegible] [illegible] slender finances. Her daughter, Miss Rebecca Revere, christened with a few [illegible] form of her great grandfather's name, became the second wife of wealthy Mr. Daniel Thayer, of this city. Then at [illegible] Mrs. Revere, her daughter [illegible] and daughter. The last days of the mother have been passed in all the luxury of great riches.

It was this same wealth of "Nat" Thayer which enabled the fond daughter to accomplish her record breaking trip by special train and boat from Newport to Isle Au Haut to her mother's bedside when the fatal summons came.

BRITISH ENGINEERS ATTEST BOSTON'S GREATNESS.

Visiting Delegation, Through Professor John Perry, Praises Electrical Equipment of the City in Unstinted Terms

"Our visit to Boston has been exceedingly profitable. No city that I have ever visited is better equipped electrically. I was greatly impressed with the power station of the Edison Electrical Company, and the plant is far larger than anything we have in England. The system of your electric roads also shows progressiveness and was also deeply interested with the manner in which the telephone system is manipulated," said Professor John Perry of London, who is with the delegation representing the English Institute of Electrical Engineers, who have been in Boston for the past two days on their way to St. Louis.

The [illegible] and ten delegates representing England, France, Germany and Italy, have been the guests of the Boston Electric Light Company. The [illegible] English delegation arrived at Boston on the Republic Friday.

Yesterday the party visited the big [illegible] power station of the Edison company, the headquarters of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company were inspected, and the principal buildings at Harvard were shown the visitors. The Boston Elevated Railroad Company furnished special cars for a ride around the [illegible] to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

DORCHESTER MAN CHARGES $5,000 WAS STOLEN.

He Causes Arrest of New York Man, Organizer and Former President of the International Mercantile Agency There

Thomas N. McCauley, organizer and former president of the International Mercantile Agency, of New York, was arrested in New York City yesterday on complaint of Frank Wood, of No. 84 Alban street, Dorchester, who alleges the misappropriation of $5,000.

Mr. Wood, who has a large printing establishment at No. 342 Washington street, bought stock in the International Mercantile Agency to the amount of $5,000. For this stock he gave his check payable to the company. Recent investigations by the directors induced them to place the matter in the hands of [illegible] Attorney General [illegible].

Manager Underson, of the New York office, came to Boston to secure funds from the stockholders here to prosecute McCauley. Mr. Wood, who has a large [illegible] personally [illegible] are a number of prominent Boston business men [illegible] in the company, among them being George H. $50,000 AMBERGRIS CATCH AND FIERCE FIGHT WITH BULL WHALE

CREW IS ATTACKED BY SEA MONSTER

Big Fish, Harpooned, Swoops Down on Boat, and Sailors Have Narrow Escape From Death Off the River Platte.

Special to the Sunday American.

New Bedford, Sept 3—Captain M A [illegible] and his crew of the whaling bark Bertha with Captain James Avery, owner of the vessel are congratulating themselves on the $50,000 lot of ambergris which was the prize catch of the Bertha's three years' cruise.

Further this ambergris in a sick whale that had killed more than doubles the profits of the voyage for crew, captain and owner. The 2,000 barrels of oil they tried out will not them about $40,000. This represents months of sailing, perilous attacks on whales, and all the hard, disagreeable work of "trying out" the oil. At one fell swoop they chanced on this rare find of precious ambergris, which will profit them as much again as all their regular whaling.

It is tied up at the dock and the oil is securely barreled as the Bertha is scheduled to sail for New York on her annual trip for supplies and fitting out for another whaling voyage.

A Noted Old Vessel.

The Bertha is being inspected daily by seafaring men. She is a noted old vessel, having been launched in 1878, and has the distinction of having been caulked only once in all her seventy-three years of her life.

Many whaling vessels are laid up and their crews are out of employment on account of the scarcity of whales, but the Bertha's crew will be kept busy for some time to come, as the oil and bone will not be ready for shipment until the middle of September.

The ambergris which is a drug, as Mr. Avery explained to Captain Avery of the BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day, "was discovered floating on the surface of a sick whale off the River Platte in the South Atlantic whaling waters.

"Ambergris will sell for $500 a pound when pure and is worth but $250 if it is used for the finest expensive perfumes, is burned in the presence of Lloyd, Zanzibar and the best incense and has other valuable qualities that make it prized by those who understand its uses.

"It is one material in stored away in the hold of the Bertha is of a value, I think, worth $20,000."

Fierce Battle With Whale.

The most perilous experience the crew had was in the battle with the boat-smashing whale on the Friday before Christmas, 1902, off the River Platte.

"That was an exciting experience," said Harpooner [illegible], a husky built and unusually powerful Barbados negro to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter.

We had lowered [illegible] of the whale [illegible] and had [illegible] when the bull [illegible] and came up [illegible] of the boat [illegible] the bull must have been seven feet long.

"As soon as I saw the bull I poised my harpoon and let it go at him. It landed just back of his dorsal fin and I fired two or three lances into him from the bomb gun. He gave a terrible swing with his tail and then, bellowing straight for us rushed at the boat at full speed. As he came I could see his [illegible] open and the next minute we were sailing into the water for our lives. Just as he passed under the stern of the boat and took it a half mile before seeing the waters with him he made his dive.

"The section of the hull going beneath the surface took most of us with him for a second distance [illegible] got back to [illegible] soon recovered [illegible] to the Bertha [illegible] and finally Captain Gomes turned her course homeward, two months ago. It is hardly probable that she will be fitted out for another voyage before November.

25,000 MEN AND WOMEN TO MARCH THROUGH BOSTON STREETS IN LABOR'S HONOR

President Samuel Gompers's Labor Day Message to American Workers

TO-MORROW, Labor Day, 1904, the toiling masses have greater responsibilities upon them than ever before in the history of the labor movement.

The successes attained in the economic and social conditions of the workers are generally recognized to be attributable to the organized efforts of the workers, without the sympathy, aid or assistance of any other element in society, whether industrial, economic, ecclesiastical or political. Yes, as a matter of fact, the improved conditions have been secured despite the opposition of all of them.

SAMUEL GOMPERS

Aye, the recognition by the capitalist class, their spokesmen, defenders and apologists, that the organized movement has done so much for the working people; that has aroused the keen, bitter and relentless antagonism which we have had to meet and withstand in recent days, and which it is our mission to overcome and which we will overcome as surely as night follows day.

The one element alone which will determine is the degree of organization among the wage workers and the tenacity with which they will stand by their organization, and the high principles and purposes which it aspires to achieve for all.

All Hail, Labor Day, 1904! May thy lustre and light, and the lustre and light of the days and years to come, radiate in the full of fruition of that new time, the dawn of which came as the ray of hope in the life of labor in the long ago.

CITY TO BE IN PARADERS' HANDS.

Central Labor Union Knights of Labor and the Building Trades Have Forgotten the Differences of the Past

AN army will march through Boston's streets to-morrow, the army of men is not brawn and thew and brains. It will be the day of organized labor, the day devoted to the men and women who have combined their forces for the advancement of the working people, the day set apart for them to march, and celebrate, and show to the people of Boston and Massachusetts the strides their principles have made.

Starting at 10 o'clock in the forenoon and passing through the principal streets of Boston, the parade is expected to comprise more than 25,000 men—a number equal to those in the recent Grand Army parade, a fact that works with it hands will be represented in the collection. There will be men of every trade. There will be women—more than have ever appeared in such a demonstration in this city before. There will be horses and carriages, and floats—in fact, the parade will be one well worth seeing; sight will be one well worth seeing; the [illegible] of the great demonstration will be one well worth consideration and congratulation.

After the parade there will be scores of picnics and excursions and parties all dedicated to and partially used by by the men and women who labor. Fall River, Sept. 3

And whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, he shall in no wise lose his reward Matt., x. 42.

How are the Fall River mill workers living after six long weeks of idleness?

When the looms and spindles of the mill city shut down on July 25, nearly 30,000 men and women were cut off from their only means of support. This number included no reckoning of the hundreds of little children in the homes, made desolate by lack of work.

John Golden, general president of the United Textile Workers of America, and the officers of the Salvation Army in Fall River can tell exactly how the men, women and children are living without their usual wage.

Daily 1,600 children troop into the big soup kitchen at the Salvation Army headquarters and there they eat and eat until they can eat no longer.

Eat From Tin Basins.

As early as 8 in the morning the children begin to gather at the front door of the big brick building, on Bedford street. At 9 o'clock the door is thrown open and the youthful and hungry army files into the hall. There they sing songs until Captain Roberts tells them that they may go into the eating room beyond.

Long tables fill the room. Passing in at the door, each child gives a ticket that was given out the previous day, to one of the officers.

Standing at the tables they eat the soup in tin basins with big tin spoons. Properly speaking, it is not soup, but stew, that is given them. It is a compound of potatoes, onions and beef. Young girls stand near a big window, where the meat is cooked from boilers into the tin dishes and passed through.

Many of the little ones barely reach to the tops of the tables, and stand on tiptoe to eat their dinner, which is breakfast and supper as well—for this one meal each day is all that the majority have.

Happy in Spite of Poverty.

Children of all kinds and sizes are there; children with thin little faces and hunger plainly spelled in their very looks; children pretty and children happy, despite their poverty-stricken homes. When they have eaten their fill of soup and coffee bread they are given tickets for the next day and told to go home so the long tables can be filled again at noon.

Mr. T. Sharer, of Worcester, formerly owner of a toy store in Fall River, is the Lord Bountiful. All of the money which feeds these little ones is furnished by the good merchant, who in the strike of ten years ago did the same thing.

The Salvation Army soldiers give their headquarters, time and work to the cause. The making of three immense kettles of soup each day entails no small an ount of work. Nine hundred pounds of meat, a barrel of flour, three bushels of onions and twelve bushels of potatoes.

Excellent Relief System.

Thousands of families are living upon funds furnished by strenuous and efficient labor unions throughout the country. John Golden has established a very safe and effective system.

[illegible] nine wards is a relief station, each morning destitute [illegible] gathering for help. They are given coupons which orders [illegible] grocery stores for foodstuffs. While the Salvation Army cares for part of the Mill City's children the big man who heads the labor unions has engineered his game so wisely that no family need actually starve. One thousand dollars a day is the amount that has been spent during the past glorious six weeks for the strikers' food. Yet, in spite of all this there are many families who are existing upon only one [illegible] meal a day.

Labor Day will dawn Monday in the city where it ought to mean so much hollow and void of any widespread [illegible] Actually thousands of dollars are spent in sports

DOG SAVES FAMILY FROM DEATH BY FIRE.

Special to the Sunday American.

North Attleboro, Sept. 3—The [illegible] dog in town, according to Mr and Mrs. Fred La Porte and their seven-year old son, Willie, is a rough little Scotch terrier, named Nellie. The dog saved the lives of the family by barking until they awoke, when their house had been fired by incendiaries. Even more than this, little Nellie barked and growled when Willie, ignorant of danger, tried to run back into the house, holding her in his arms.

The La Porte home was burned to the ground and all the furniture was destroyed with a loss of $2,500, but Mr La Porte says Nellie is worth more than that to them. "When we get a new home save Mr. La Porte, "she will receive the best treatment a dog can get."

92,000 PUPILS FOR NEW SCHOOL YEAR IN BOSTON.

With the largest attendance in years, Boston's public schools will open on Wednesday morning, Sept. 14, and the [illegible] sands of pupils who have been spending the summer vacation at the sea side and mountains have already begun to arrive. With the several new school houses in the most crowded districts of past years every pupil is sure of being housed.

The new Washington Grammar school on Norman street will be opened, will take care of pupils who last year passed the school term in the vacant store buildings.

Walter L. Harrington, formerly of the Charlestown district will be the principal. Among the other new buildings are the North Bennett street primary school with 21 rooms, the Frances Parkman School, Walk Hill district, one in the Lowell district with E. Emmons [illegible] principal, and one in the Blackinton district, East Boston.

A new district has been created in Orient Heights and Herbert L. Morse is to be the principal.

Superintendent of Schools Dooley has estimated the number of pupils who will register at 92,000, both based on the annual increase of 3,000.

THREE, PERHAPS 5, PERSONS MURDERED

Readily, Politely Explaines.

Marx explained the matter readily and politely. The pedler had come to his house, and, being desirous of returning to a larger city, had offered the entire pack and contents at a great bargain. Marx had purchased it, he said, and the pedler had gone away as quietly as he came. So still was the pitch slumbered.

Then came from the farm of Myron Cutler some miles over to the west, a Polish lad of twenty-one years. "Henry" was the name of the man whom "Bill" Marx had for a time, and went to New York without bidding a single friend goodbye. At least that is explanation Marx gave for his sudden disappearance.

Soon after this Stephen H. Marx, with his children and his meagre farm implements moved to another farm, now known as the Abele farm, which he purchased on the installment plan. The purchase money the Hilliard left the first and kept on growing. He worked the fields and kept a cow and prospered. He was able to add to his possessions on the farm, and hired a second helper.

This was his situation last April. Joe String, a man close to sixty years old, and Frank Pawlicki, about half that age, were working for Marx. Marx was a widower, who was Marx's Payday was

DELANEY IS ORDERED OFF MANASSAS TRAIN.

Lieutenant Under Court Martial Charges, Who Starts With Militia, Sent Back From New Haven—Rations for Troops.

Lieutenant John F. Delaney, of Company I, Ninth Regiment, M. V. M., after starting with his company for Manassas was ordered by his superior officers to leave the train and return home. He alighted at New Haven and arrived in Boston in the evening.

This was the outcome of the spirited discussion that ensued yesterday when the lieutenant, who is under arrest on charges preferred by Captain Cully, of his company, appeared at the South station, ready to accompany his company and regiment to the army manoeuvres at Manassas, Va.

"You are not to go with this company!" exclaimed the captain.

"I certainly intend to," replied Delaney.

Major Joseph J. Kelly, commanding the battalion, sided with Delaney, to the extent of believing he should be allowed to go. Cully turned to his major with some heat: "Lieutenant-Colonel Logan is in command of this train. I shall take my orders from him!" he said.

Delaney finally boarded the train under protest from his captain, as Colonel William J. Logan was on the first section, a half hour ahead, and there was no way of getting his decision on the case immediately.

Lieutenant-Colonel Logan at once telegraphed ahead to his colonel and orders were returned that Lieut. Delaney be left behind. Delaney, with Lieut. Bell, Ensign Dix and 24 enlisted men of three special trains, three sections each, for the 9th and 8th regiments and two sections for the 5th.

A private of K Company of Clinton attempted to strike Captain Dunn of D Company of South Boston, officer of the day, on the second section of the Ninth Regiment train. The man was overpowered and placed under arrest.

It was planned to arrive in Jersey City on the Shore Line train and Hudson River boats and to arrive at the Battery on the big transport and be reached there firms again on the Jersey side of the water night had fallen.

Private Hardy, of Company F, Ninth Regiment, of Lawrence, had his leg broken in the Jersey City depot. He was taken to the Franklin Hospital.

Dust Tortures Troops on Manassas Field

Manoeuvre Camp No. 1, Manassas, Va., Sept. 3—The members of the Second Brigade, Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, when they reach the camps assigned to them at Manassas and Thoroughfare tomorrow—if they do reach them by that time, which is doubtful—will realize fully the idea that Bret Harte had in mind when he wrote in his famous, if somewhat profane poem, "And He Walked," these lines:

"Dust in your eyes, dust in your nose,
"Dust on your tie, dust on your collar,
"Walk."

Dust, as I said, will be the portion of all the troops at the manoeuvres to-day.

The heat for two days has been stifling. At 8 o'clock this afternoon the mercury registered 96 degrees. The camp at Manassas station, and at camp No. 1, where there is no shade except that of the tents, it was being driven mad. The surgeons are getting busy with the many cases of heat prostration.

HUSBAND BLAMES STRIKE FOR LOSS OF HIS WIFE

While Textile Worker Sought Employment in Maine Wife Fled With Man She Thought Dead.

Special to the Sunday American.

FALL RIVER, Sept. 3. The present [illegible] of Antoine Trepanier, a Canadian mill worker, losing his wife, Georgiana. She fled from her home in Fall River, and no word has been received from her.

Trepanier says the strike made possible the loss of his wife. When he was thrown out of work in the mills here he was forced to leave home in the search for employment. He found it in Rumford Falls, Me., in the Continental paper bag factory.

He kissed his wife goodbye and promised her he would soon return to their pretty little home.

Until one week ago Mrs. Trepanier remained there until her husband should return. Her husband did return Monday. It was not Trepanier, but a gray haired man, who announced to Mrs. Trepanier that he was John Demers.

Mrs. Trepanier fainted in the door of [illegible] home when the stranger made the announcement.

[illegible] former husband. He had [illegible] Trepanier as a mere Canadian village eighteen years ago and had been given up for dead. Ten years ago Mrs. Demers married Trepanier and went to this city.

When the stranger had proved himself to be Demers and Mrs. Trepanier had recovered sufficiently to recognize him, there was a tearful greeting. His wife told the story of Trepanier.

"You belong to me alone," said the returned husband. "I want you to come and leave your present association. All will be forgotten in our new home."

Mrs. Demers Trepanier promised to think the matter over, and asked for two days' time. Demers left, saying he would return to claim his wife.

When Demers did return he found his wife waiting for him. All the furniture, which she had brought from Canada was packed, ready for leaving with her, that which Trepanier had purchased was left behind. Where the couple went no one knows.

Boxing Club Managers Told They Must Not Arrange Any More Bouts Between Heavyweights by Slowtown Officials

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—The order issued by Director of Public Safety Smythe acting under instructions from Mayor Weaver, prohibiting the holding of the contest between James J. Corbett and Jack O'Brien, probably means the end of boxing between heavyweights in Philadelphia.

The Olympic Athletic Club will make no fight, President Harry Edwards said today. He was worried by the announcement that the Olympic Club would put on the proposed bout, and he did not want to be annoyed by the police. "I have not received any permit from the police to stage a fight," he said, "and I do not intend to do so. If there is to be a fight, the director said:

"I believe, should now prevail, there are no laws against glove contests, and I see no reason why a fight between the boxers mentioned should not be held. But I will not grant a permit for a fight between heavyweights. I have received letters from Corbett and O'Brien asking for permits, but I will not grant them. NUTTALL WINS RACE FROM M'CUSKER AT NEWPORT.

Boston Swimmer Comes In Second, While Cavill, the Australian Expert, Brings Up the Rear of a Three Mile Contest

Special to the Sunday American.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 8.—Harold Nuttall, a member of the Boston Athletic Association, won the championship of the world today in the three mile open salt water swimming race, defeating Norman McCusker, of Brooklyn, by about 100 yards. Charles Cavill, of Australia, who has been considered the champion of the world, finished third. Nuttall's time was 1 hour 1 minute 30 seconds. The course was from the Government Pier to the Bath House, and return.

Nuttall had a lead of about 100 yards when he reached the Bath House, and he increased this lead on the return trip. McCusker made a game fight, but was unable to overcome Nuttall's lead. Cavill was never in the race, and finished a long way behind the others.

NO PAY UNLESS CURED

I have a new remedy for weak men which acts directly and quickly and in a few days makes lost manhood return. I want to tell you about it. Let me tell you how I was cured after being a sufferer from nervousness, lost vitality, nightly emissions, lack of energy, failing memory, despondency, pimples, etc., and how I have since cured hundreds of others in the privacy of their own homes. Don't pay a cent until cured. Don't send money or C. O. D. Don't buy any electric belt or appliance of any kind on trial or on promise to pay when cured. I have no such scheme. I want no man's money unless I cure him, and take his own word for it when I say he owes me nothing. I have cured thousands of cases after all others had failed. I have the most wonderful method of any physician or institution in the world. I have documentary proof. Failure with me in any case is impossible. I can cure you. RACING HOW THEY RAN AT SHEEPSHEAD TROTTING BIG RACES AT THE HARTFORD TRACK SWIMMING NUTTALL BEATS McCUSKER AT NEWPORT YACHTING

CY YOUNG'S CURVES ARE BUMPED HARD AND THE BOSTON CHAMPS LOSE THEIR LEAD IN THE RACE

New York has regained first place again. Once more the Champs have lost their grip on the flag. Just seven points separate the two teams now. Philadelphia broke even with the Browns, and is third with a lead of four points over the Chicagos, who broke even with the Senators. By winning over Boston, Cleveland gained slightly on the Athletics and the White Sox. They are eleven points behind the Windy City team, and but fifteen points away from the Quakers. By the various results of yesterday's games, the teams were brought closer together than they have been for about a week. There are many hard games scheduled for this week, and the Boston fans hope to have their favorites regain the lead before Wednesday has passed. They play two games with the Senators to-morrow

Done to the crisp was the Champs in the wind up with Lajoie's Indians, and the local bunch walked the plank to the tune of 8 to 1.

They also walked into second place.

It might have been a shut out only for the kindness of Addie Joss, who passed a man and a hit scored him. It was the only mistake the lanky twirler made as he had the Champs all marked after that and made them look like dummies.

It was the happy crowd of Cleveland players that left town as they had taken the most important battle of the week and split even with the Champs, a feat also accomplished on the Highlanders and their homeward journey was a pleasant one.

Its not often that Uncle Cy has his off days, but he certainly got his innings good and hard. There was no stopping him, kept up to the last from their legs at the end of the seventh.

Cy Falls to Hypnotize.

Somehow Young's hypnotising curves were missing, as the Indians straightened out everything he had and showed no mercy for the big fellow's feelings.

There was a proper fielding done on the right side of the pasture that could have been pointed to, and several times registration a hit.

In comparison the Champs' light hitting was a joke, due to the fact, as Admiral Joss had them pretty well locked up at all stages. He allowed a few scattered swats to trickle with the breeze, but it needed a microscope to pick them out when the hits were picked up.

Joss had nothing but wide curves, yet he knew how to use them to the Champs' downfall. They chased them like gold bricks and went through all kinds of antics trying to connect.

The continuous hitting performance began at an early hour, and the crowd held a little hope that it was only a temporary spasm, and Cy would get the stopper on at the right time, but the fans soon saw that something was wrong, and the way the Indians their just deserves in the display of the hit goods.

Indians Finish With a Rattle.

The blow would not have been so heavy but for that last show down, when the Indians went under the wire with a rattle of bolts that knocked the underpinning out of the favorites hopes.

The Champs made some pretence of holding on at the quarter post, but after that the signs got twisted, and the efforts to get in front were of little avail, while the opposition was dinging the horseside all over the field.

Strong faith that Cy would turn the trick and save the Champs the humiliation of dropping the top perch lived longer than it would in most cases, but it was time up, but "it was to laugh" when Cy had him sitting on a hit and run.

Perhaps Napoleon wanted to humor the big fellow, just to lead him astray.

All the Champs' hits were collected by Farrell, Lajoie and Bradley, and they chalked up two each.

Champs Start Off Well.

With the Champs galloping away at the outset the chances never appeared to better advantage, and after a score was tied up at the start off, the outlook was an inviting, but it soon faded when repetitions failed to materialize.

A poor piece of judgment cause at the outset. After the Champs had filled the bases Young came up to take their first look.

Al Selbach did the proper thing and refused to make any advances till Joss stradled down, and, as a result, was given a free ticket.

Young proceeded to use the "hit and run" game and bunted along toward Bradley, intending to advance.

That great player, who usually pats up the ball hits, was all astray in picking the ball up and Parent was safely settled on first and Selbach reached second on the sack.

Stahl was the first victim of Joss on strikes, and went his way. Collins, in his endeavor to bring in Selbach, made a foul to Bemis. Freeman came to the rescue by a slam to centre, and sent Selbach.

Freeman's Dopey Play.

Freeman attempted to go down on the first ball and Parent got caught between third base and the plate, and Freddie was rushing back and forth on the line. Freeman got down to third in safety, Parent to run in front of Parent. In the mix-up Stark was touched out.

Boston never reached third after that, except when Ferris contributed a double in the fifth and stopped at the third corner on an out.

Young fanned the side out in the first, but two runs with three hits were shown on a series of hits by Bradley, Flick and Lajoie.

Lajoie's three-bagger and a fumble by Ferris gave the Indians a run in the eighth.

With one out in the ninth, Bay singled and scored on Bradley's three-base hit, so right that should have counted another run for Freeman done a little better gauging Flick spanked a bit to right, scoring Bradley. Flick stole on a short throw and scored on Lajoie's bid to centre.

Dathroned again

We're been travelling pretty fast, and four defeats out of fifteen isn't so terribly bad.

The Highlanders may be dumped to-morrow. They meet the Athletics in two games, while the Champs are playing the Senators.

• • •

The petty larceny gang is still at work

Al Selbach had his eye on the ball all right. He got two passes and rounded two hard flies to the outfield, which is a chance out of ten would have used out.

Larry Lajoie was the laughing stock of the crowd when Cy pulled him in the eighth.

The crowd didn't look any larger than on Tuesday.

Cy was an easy mark from the start. The Indians had the hit market cornered.

One fan suggested that there should be a baseball attachment with every coupon book. Then the one who stole a ball could show the police that he was entitled to it.

A funny thing happened when two cops jumped into the pavilion after a ball. They worked to fellow and then rolled out of the grounds, while the crowd hissed and booed. Next time, when a ball went into the first base bleachers, the fans in that section arose and hooted the cops to come over and see if they could take the horsehide away from them.

• • •

Bradley lifted the bat for further orders. Flick and Lajoie also had their slap sticks working

Ferris did the best stick work for the home team, getting a double and a two bagger, the only long hit for the Bostons, besides making a neat fielding out.

Joss was in his best shape of the season, so Billy Armour said after the game

NEW YORK TAKES THE LEAD

New York, Sept. 3—Griffith's men again assumed the lead in the American League race when they beat Detroit Tigers this afternoon. The winners had the luck of the game, as errors by the visitors helped materially in scoring their runs.

Chesbro pitched great ball, and would have deserved to win on his fine exhibition, but Kitson was also in the best of trim, and with perfect support might have shut the New Yorkers out.

Rooted Hard for Victory.

When the score board showed that the Champions had been worsted by Cleveland, the home rooters pulled hard for a victory for the Highlanders, and as they were successful they went home happy.

If the new Yorks can hold the lead until Tuesday night their supporters believe they will capture the pennant.

The following account of how the runs scored will show wherein the home cars profited by the errors of the Tigers.

Statistics Show That Abuse of Privates in the German Army is Increasing Every Year—Offenders Imprisoned

Berlin, Sept. 3.—The Kaiser is said to be seriously thinking of asking the Government of the United States if it is aware of the fact that the Poles in the United States are organizing and drilling an army which is to be used in a Polish revolution against Germany and Russia.

For some time it has been rumored that the Poles in the Prussian provinces have been receiving large amounts of money from America, and that Polish military organizations in the United States are assuring their countrymen here that when the proper time comes to start a revolution they may count on the assistance of a well organized and fully equipped army which is being formed on the other side the Atlantic.

The German Government was at first inclined to treat the matter lightly, but recent revelations in the press here made a strong impression here and may force it to appeal to the Government in Washington to take some steps against the Polish revolutionists residing in the United States. An article in the Rheinisch Westphalische Zeitung has created quite a sensation here.

Poles Are Busy.

The paper, which has a reputation of being unusually well informed, writes:

"The Poles in America are perfecting their military organizations. In the month of July great manoeuvres took place which lasted three days.

"A Polish regiment of artillery has been formed and played a prominent part in the manoeuvres. Troops representing all arms were gathered in a regular camp named after Pulaski, the well-known Polish general.

"All kinds of military evolutions such as take place during a regular modern battle were executed, it is said, with great enthusiasm. The soldiers who took part belong to Polish military associations which are allowed to exist unmolested by the American authorities, who give permission to the manoeuvres, though a manifest insult leaves no doubt of their purpose.

"In this manifest the following words are found: 'We intend to create a great Polish army in the United States.' We will place it under the command of a general and show the European troops what the Poles in America amount to. We will win back what has been stolen from us.'"

Also the late Prince Bismarck's official organ, the Hamburger Nachrichten, demands that the German Government shall protest to the Government in Washington before it is too late.

Abuses Increasing.

Official statistics for the year 1903 show that the abuses of privates in the army are by no means decreasing in number.

More than seven hundred cases were taken up by court martials, and of these fifty-two were committed by officers and non-commissioned officers of the guard.

The officers found guilty were sentenced to an aggregate of 2,000 days in prison, and twenty were sentenced to degradation.

Although these figures in themselves are quite imposing, they give very little idea of the actual state of affairs, as only a very small fraction of the offenders are reported to the higher military.

A private letter from St. Petersburg reports that the police have discovered a factory of bombs in a vault in one of the cemeteries of that city.

In the vault, which is owned by a high court dignitary, were found ten bombs of the same construction as the one which killed M. Plehve. The police believe that this is the outcome of the "Boyevaya Organizatia," the central organization of the Nihilists, and that the owner of the vault is one of the heads, if not the head, of the Nihilists in Russia.

The discovery has been kept from the public, and official secrecy is one of the few who are privileged to see him on all occasions.

R. N. Hall Returns from a Two Year's Exploration of the Land of the Ancients with Evidence of Great Importance

Special Cable to Sunday American.

London, Sept. 3.—Among the latest arrivals from South Africa is R. N. Hall, F. R. G. S., who has for two years conducted exploration work at Great Zimbabwe at the request of the Rhodesian Government, and also three months' examination work, at the request of Mr. Rhodes's trustees in the Myanga district, which also abounds in ruins. It contains hill forts, hill terraces, stone-lined pits and galleries, aqueducts and other relics of some long-forgotten race.

At both these centres of ancient activity he has been very busy photographing, surveying and excavating.

The evidence that Rhodesia was the country from which King Solomon's gold was obtained are fast accumulating. The builders of the more ancient portion of these massive and extensive ruins are believed to have been the Sabean Arabians of about 1000 B. C., who at that time were the gold purveyors to the world. No suggestion has been made that any of the structures were erected by the Phoenicians, but distinct traces of their influence are believed to have been discovered.

FEMININE INTEREST OF THE QUEEN IS AROUSED.

Monarch of Somaliland and His Consort Are Among the Most Picturesque of the Rulers of Modern World

Special Cable to Sunday American.

London, Sept. 3.—Late advices from Somaliland say that the royal wife of King Menelik of Abyssinia is displaying a keen feminine interest in the consummation of the treaty with the United States, which was entrusted to W. H. Ellis for delivery at the capital.

This treaty document was with the baggage of C. Kent Loomis, brother of Assistant Secretary of State Loomis of the United States. C. Kent Loomis disappeared off the Atlantic steamer on which he was crossing to Cherbourg, France, occupying a stateroom with Ellis. In Paris it was finally arranged the last of June that Ellis should bear the treaty dispatches to Abyssinia. It was known that when the treaty was signed he was to be the bearer. Now he is en route to Menelik's capital, and nearly due there by this time. He travelled by way of Marseilles and thence by steamer to Djibouti. From here he is proceeding inland to Addis Abeba, King Menelik's capital.

King Menelik is one of the most picturesque figures of modern times. Out of his African deserts he has sent pet lions as presents to rulers whom he admires. He recently sent two to President Roosevelt.

In governing his fierce subjects he is a contradiction. He is actuated by orders of ball cartridges shot straight up in the air. If any of the bullets fall on his people, "Why, I don't mind losing a few rifle balls," says Menelik.

Yet when United States Consul Robert P. Skinner travelled with a military escort into the Abyssinian wilds to make the treaty with Menelik, he found to his surprise that King Menelik regarded his escort as a barbarian, had been kept informed by secret service of the daily progress of the treaty party. Menelik is as thoroughly familiar with the Bible, entertains as he should be ruled from Paris or Berlin instead of from Ethiopia.

Barbarian-Civilian.

He is up to date in many startling ways. He refuses to have a billiard table in his palace because he knows the game would fascinate him so he would give it too much time. Thus he practises self-restraint. Yet he allows mutilation of criminals, believing that preferable to imprisonment.

In this and many other ways he has shown a half-barbarian, half-civilized nature which make him a fascinating study, as well as a skilful ruler over his turbulent people.

Diplomatic Business Relating to Eastern War Takes Him Away from His Vacation.

London, Sept. 3.—Mr. Choate, who has taken a country house at Hertingfordbury, within an hour of London, is having a disturbed stay there.

Cablegrams from the State Department at Washington are arriving with perplexing frequency, and the social pleasures of the Ambassador and Mrs. Choate are being much curtailed by the crisis in the Far East.

A few days ago, just as he had arranged to drive out with a few guests in the beautiful countryside an urgent telegram startled him away to London, where his staff was busy deciphering long cablegrams concerning the interests of the United States and England in the troubled waters of the Far East. One day the principal decipherer was at work on cablegrams from Japan and the next day from London, are much in request at the house parties which are made up for the Fall.

Mr. Carter has such a horror of losing his gentlemanly athletic figure that he has been rising early and running round Hyde Park every morning "to keep himself in condition." Wrapped in a thick woollen "sweater," he races round the park before London is awake, and then tumbles into a warm bath, the first which he has used for breakfast and for the tackling of over so many crank callers at the Embassy.

There was quite a royal dare-up among the children of the Prince and Princess of Wales the other day. Prince Eddy and his younger brother, Prince Albert, were amusing themselves by looking through the London illustrated papers and they came upon a picture of themselves, with the inscription "Our Future King and the Other Children of the Prince and Princess of Wales."

Prince Eddy, the heir to the throne of the British Empire, grew intensely angry at this and took a step made up for the Fall. is no telling what would have happened but for the intervention of one of the tutors who heard the squabble. He sternly separated the royal brothers, and Prince Eddy stalked out of the room very red in the face.

The royal children are enjoying themselves at Abergeldie just now, riding on ponies, climbing trees and romping generally. There is an astounding difference between them and the quiet "Dull children," as the children of the Duke of Fife and the Princess Louise are called.

The royal laundry manager on Deeside says the Wales children spoil five times as many clothes and make ten times as much washing as the others.

WILL RECLAIM GLORIES OF PHARAOH

Under Secretary of State for Public Works in Egypt Has a Magnificent Scheme for the Revival of the Land

PROJECT WILL COST ABOUT $105,000,000

Means of Working Out This Modern Miracle Comprise an Irrigation Plan That Almost Takes Breath Away

Special Cable to Sunday American.

London, Sept. 3.—A stupendous project to revive the ancient glories of Egypt is worked out by Sir William Garstin, Under Secretary of State for Public Works in Egypt, in a ponderous and beautifully illustrated blue book just issued from the Foreign Office.

The means of working this modern miracle comprise an irrigation scheme, whose magnitude almost takes the breath away; but so many wonders have since been used in the land of the Pharaoh, once the scheme of the great Assouan dam was first concerned that even Lord Cromer, who introduces the project, throws no doubt upon its feasibility.

It would, however, including the railway scheme to which form part of it, cost $105,000,000, and Lord Cromer thinks that not more than a quarter of the scheme can be practically considered at present.

But in the crudest form the irrigation scheme is based on the principle of utilizing the waters of the White Nile for the benefit of Egypt and those of the Blue Nile for that of the Soudan.

Sir William estimates that when the whole of his Egyptian project is carried out, as carried out it undoubtedly will be in course of time, the increased area brought into cultivation will bring an additional rental from taxation of $6,000,000 per annum, while the Soudan scheme, in land tax alone, will be $2,500,000 a year.

Lord Cromer observes that while the greater portion of Sir W. Garstin's colossal project must necessarily be postponed for financial reasons, works estimated to cost $27,000,000 may be carried out in the not remote future.

Canals in Middle Egypt.....$3,000,000
Railways 15,000,000
Reading Assouan dam.....2,500,000
Remodelling Nile at Rosetta and Damietta 4,500,000

With regard to the Soudan, the first thing to be done, in Lord Cromer's view, is to complete the Sinkkit-Berber Railway, a work which will cost, it is estimated, $8,500,000 and be completed in the Spring of 1906.

The irrigation projects for the Soudan will involve an already aggregate expenditure of $27,500,000, but Lord Cromer says he is sure that the improvement of railway communications should be first put in hand.

ENGLISH CABMAN CLAIMS TITLE OF BARONET.

Declares He Is a Lineal Descendant of Sir Charles Tyrrel and Entitled to Lands Owned by the Cavendishes

Special Cable to Sunday American.

London, Sept. 3.—There is much excitement in Burton-on-Trent just now owing to the discovery in the town of a cabman who claims to be a direct lineal descendant of Sir Charles Tyrrell, Bart., and therefore entitled to the vast Cavendish and Lecklade estates in Buckinghamshire, now in the possession of the Cavendish family, but which by right of descent belong to the late Sir Charles.

The cabman is Benjamin Tyrrell, and he is nearly sixty years of age.

Tyrrell has been living down a cab in Burton, but a local lawyer was so impressed with the papers proving the claim to property in his possession that he has drawn up a petition.

Everything had been working very satisfactorily until it came to the turn of Miss Sophie Sherlay, one of the attendants at the establishment. No sooner had she taken her place in the apparatus than the canvas ripped open, and she was precipitated to the courtyard below, fracturing her skull, and inflicting sustaining internal injuries from which she died.

SWORD DANCE PART OF FASHIONABLE FUNCTION.

Special Cable to Sunday American.

London, Aug. 20.—Lord and Lady Strathcona's annual garden party at Knebworth was rendered more special than usual by King's Cross being required to take the guests. Lady Strathcona received in the great hall, and Lord Strathcona received in the garden, and was assisted in her task by her daughter, Mrs. Howard.

As usual, the visitors, after taking tea, served at little tables on the lawn, occupied about the lovely gardens or wandered through the house, which is full of objects of interest. The bed in which Queen Elizabeth slept came in for much notice, as did the wonderful eagle tapestry.

Alternating with a band, two pipers strutted up and down the lawn, and the visitors were immensely interested in the sword dance and Highland fling, executed by a Highlander in full dress on the floor of the bandstand.

PRETTY BLACKWOOD GIRLS HAVE AN AMERICAN MOTHER

Three daughters of the Marquis and Marchioness of Dufferin, who are among the prettiest children of American women who have married British noblemen.

Special Cable to Sunday American.

London, Sept. 3.—Among the pretty children of American women who have married into the British nobility are the three ladies Blackwood, the daughters of the Marquis and Marchioness of Dufferin. The three girls bear the names of Doris, Ursula and Patricia.

The Marchioness of Dufferin is the daughter of J. R. Davis, of New York, and married Lord Dufferin, then Terence Blackwood, in 1862. At that time Lord Dufferin was a diplomatist, and is now in Bloemfontein as secretary to the government of the Orange River Colony.

Ursula, as his brother, the Earl of Ava, was some years before, in the Seventeenth Lancers. The eldest daughter, Doris, and her father, who was in poor health, died of grief soon after.

Terence was then in the diplomatic service, having served as second secretary at Constantinople, Stockholm and Paris, getting, however, before his accession to the title.

The Marchioness is a very pretty woman, with fair hair, which her daughters have inherited. She was, as we said, the second bear to the title to her husband's brother, Hariot Blackwood. She is a Catholic and is now in Bloemfontein as necessary to the chance of succeeding to the title secured

WOMAN KILLED IN LIFE SAVING DRILL

Apparatus Planned to Carry Persons Safely to the Ground Gives Way.

Special Cable to Sunday American.

Paris, Sept. 3.—A serious accident occurred at the British Orphanage at Neuilly while a new life-saving apparatus in case of fire was being tried. The invention consisted of a large canvas sack, which was arranged to slide down an inclined plank, and as an experiment was fitted to a window on the first story.

Everything had been working very satisfactorily until it came to the turn of Miss Sophie Sherlay, one of the attendants at the establishment. No sooner had she taken her place in the apparatus than the canvas ripped open, and she was precipitated to the courtyard below, fracturing her skull, and inflicting sustaining internal injuries from which she died.

DOG MAKES AUTO PLUNGE INTO LAKE

Special Cable to Sunday American.

Aix-les-Bains, Sept. 3.—A dog was the cause of a motor car taking an unexpected voyage on Lake Bourget.

The car, driven by Major Lenormand, of the Dragoons, was passing a restaurant when a huge dog rushed in front, barking loudly. The motorist, startled by the noise, gave an unpremeditated twist to the steering wheel, which turned the car—there were five occupants, three of whom were women—into the lake.

The car ploughed its way many yards into the water, which reached to the chins of the riders. They were finally rescued by some fishermen.

What George Ade Says He Thinks of Boston

"Fads, you mean. I have two big motor cars. In Indiana I have an eight-hundred-acre farm."

By Eleanor Ames.

SIZZLING with epigrams and armed to the teeth with shears, George Ade struck town early in the week, met Gus Luders, loaded with harmony, and together they proceeded to do things to "The Sho-Gun."

For years I've laughed at George Ade's jokes, enjoyed his books and his plays alike, but I've never wanted to meet him.

The truth is that, through what he has want to run the risk of being disappointed.

Out in Chicago, after I had been shown the sights of the town, an enthusiastic native said: "I believe that's all, except George Ade. He's in the Philippines, and you can't meet him." A year later, in New York, a certain woman, who is charming and witty, who calls herself Bohemian and verges toward the multitudinous of a salon, sent out cards for a reception. She followed her card to me by a note: "Do be sure to come," she wrote in angular letters and much underscoring, "for George Ade is to be here."

And at the time I was speechless with grip. There was never another simpleton of my meeting him, until I was sent post haste to interview him.

Now, anyone in the game knows that the interviewing of a professional humorist is less cheerful than writing epitaphs. Whether you expect a humorist to be humorous, and he knows you expect it, and becomes clam-like in his silence, or whether it is impossible for him to furnish humor to order, I have never known. The fact remains that every answer you get to your questions has to be drawn by main force and it suffers in the operation.

A Difficult Proposition.

In his writing he scintillates, fascinates, delights. In his daily conversation he is witty and quick. As a subject for the interviewer, he is a difficult proposition.

The story I had heard of his apparent phlegmatic attitude came to mind as I started on my way to the interview. It seems that at the time "The Sultan of Sulu" was being produced George Ade sat next to a man who fairly shrieked with glee. Each time he had one of these mirthful paroxysms he would turn to Ade for a sympathetic glance. He met only a calm, bored stare, and turned away in disgust.

After the show was over Mr. Ade felt he really ought to say something, so he went over to the man, and extending his hand, said: "I beg your pardon, but I want to thank you for the pleasure you have given me by your evident enjoyment of my play."

"Your play!" said the man.

"Yes," said Mr. Ade. I call it so. I wrote it."

The man gave him one withering look.

"You wrote that," he said, with acorn, "why you wouldn't know enough to write your name."

We met in the foyer of the theatre at the evening performance of "The Sho-Gun." It was Wednesday night, and Mr. Ade left at midnight to be on hand for the opening of "The County Chairman" in New York the next night.

He is still slender and boyish in appearance, but his hair has some gray threads that were not there a few years ago, and is there are deeper lines on his face than when he first came out of the West.

He looked tired and preoccupied, but his greeting was hearty.

"Have you seen the show?" he asked right away. "Not yet," I replied. "How is it going?"

"Great!" he exclaimed, enthusiastically. "I've written some new lines. Mr. Luders has brightened up the music, and there's a lot of new business. It's going here much better than it did in the West. They have a better cast."

He sat back and folded his arms as if waiting patiently for the next question. From the play to Boston seemed a logical step.

What He Thinks of Boston.

"Tell me what you think of Boston," I asked.

"How much space are you going to give me?" he demanded. "Oh, just as much as you like." I hastened to assure him. "Why, I'll give you a full page."

I looked sympathetic.

"So bad as that?" I suggested.

"No, no," he declared, "not so bad, so good. I like Boston—like it immensely. Don't you?

"When I was here once before I was misquoted. A reporter made me say Boston is provincial. Now I never said that." There was an aggrieved note in his voice.

"No?" I said politely.

"No indeed," he continued, seriously. "What I did say was that it is hard for the East to understand the West.

"How would you like to live here?"

He smiled.

"Well, I am a Western man, you know, and used to the West, but I suppose Boston is a very nice place to live in. Every one who lives here seems to think so."

"Do you like it better than New York?"

"Oh, it's a different city. I don't think one can compare the two cities. They are quite unlike."

Back again we went to "The Sho-Gun."

"Where did you get the idea for it?" I asked.

He folded his arms again and looked thoughtful.

"I think I got the idea in Japan," he said. "I travelled from Hongkong up the coast on a steamer with a great many Koreans. In the 'Sultan of Sulu' I treated of colonial expansion. That seemed to on the subject of commercial invasion wouldn't make a bit. You know in everything we have to think of a trade value.

"Listen," he said abruptly. "That is where the bridesmaids come on. I'm just trying to see how it sounds. They wanted a few speeches written for them, so I did it." He arose quickly.

"Let's go inside and see this," he said.

So we went down into one of the boxes and watched the stage and players closely.

"The Costumes Are Lovely."

"Costumes are lovely," I whispered.

"They are not Korean," he confessed. "You see, its an imaginary island, so they don't have to be. The females costumes in Korea are hideous, straight, scanty, white affairs, so we made them what we liked.

"However, a great many things in the play are founded on facts. For example, in Korea at sundown all the men go to the house and the women are given the liberty of the streets."

He watched the stage constantly, and chuckled with pleasure when I called his attention to the applause and laughter.

"It's caught on, all right," I said.

"Does seem to, doesn't it?" he replied. "We've done a lot for it in the past twenty-four hours."

The wedding procession was forming.

"See the goose they are carrying," he said. "That's really so—that in Korea a goose is the emblem of connubial fidelity."

I waited for a good Adeism. It seemed such a splendid chance. But all he said was:

"I don't know the reason, but it's a fact. The bridegroom always carries a solid goose to the bridal ceremony."

On the stage Ade epigrams were flying about.

"I don't have to know anything about labor," said William Henry Spangle. "I'm a waiting delegate."

When he gets the title of Sho-Gun he is delighted that all the people will have to how to him as "The Sho-Gun of Iowa."

"They won't know what it means," he explains, "but it will vibrate just the same."

"The hand that cradles the rocks," declares the Sho-Gun, "is the hand that rules the world."

"I feel only half married," says Georgia Calve, as the widow One Ond.

"Well, we're in the smart set now," declares Spangle.

Hasn't Exhausted Supply.

There are lots more in the play just as good. And yet George Ade has not exhausted his supply. He has a fresh collection to put forth under the title of "The College Widow." It is that play which now occupies most of his attention.

I think he likes it better than anything he has done. He refers to it every little while, and always with interest.

It deals with a topic entirely new to stageland. Everyone who has ever lived in a university town knows what a college widow is.

Mr. Ade says she is "the village flirt."

In this particular case she is the "widow" of a small, fresh-water college, who heads the conspiracy to steal the star athlete of a rival college and hold him until after the Thanksgiving game.

"It is a new idea anyway," said the author, "and that's something. It's just a week ago to-night that 'The County Chairman' opened in South Bend. To-morrow night it begins another New York engagement.

"I am going to try 'The College Widow' in Washington."

"Why not New Haven?" I suggested. "That's a good 'dog town,' and it would appreciate all the jokes."

"I prefer Washington," he decided. "It will be more critical and better than any other town I can think of."

"What is your latest fad?" I asked.

"Fads, you mean," corrected Mr. Ade. "That is, if you call them fads. Automobiling and farming. I have two big motor cars, both American make. In Indiana, about eighty miles south of Chicago, I have an eight-hundred-acre farm. There I am building a home in the old English style. I've got lots of animals, horses, cattle, dogs. And I'm reckoned a pretty successful farmer. Why, the corn and oats and cattle I've sold this year have half paid for the rugs I bought for the house."

He looked serious, and as if waiting for congratulations.

"Good!" I exclaimed, "but I don't think you will give up books and plays for farming."

Bargains for a Boston Terrier.

His nephew, not so much younger than Mr. Ade, entered the box.

"George," he said, "that man who wants to sell you the Boston terrier is here. Do you want the dog?"

"Yes," said Mr. Ade, "I want the dog; but he wants too much money. If you can get it for what I want to pay, take it. If not, I can get along without another dog."

The curtain rung down. A dozen people rushed from behind the scenes to drag Mr. Ade away.

"I'm mighty glad to have met you," he said, "and wish I didn't have to rush away. But there are certain little changes."

"Don't apologize," I hastened to reply. "You have been more than good to give me the time, but you haven't said anything startling. Won't you please," and I tried to look pleading, "make some clever or startling statement? Something I can play up in big type. You've been a newspaper man. You know what I mean."

He looked serious, even worried. He seemed to be studying the request. My ears were strained for the reply.

"Did I speak of 'The College Widow?'" he asked, his eyes meeting mine with a gleam of amusement.

"Yes, but perhaps there may be something more," I said.

"No," he replied. "I think that was all."

He bowed and smiled, and disappeared. I joined the throng passing up the aisle.

"Did you see George Ade?"

"That was him in the box."

"Isn't he young looking?"

People were babbling of Ade all the way to the door.

Her escort denied it.

Ade Never Called Boston Provincial

When I was in Boston once before I was misquoted. A reporter made me say Boston is provincial. Now I never said that.

What I did say was that it is hard for the East to understand the West.

Really Likes Boston, the Town, the People

I am a Western man and used to the West, but I suppose Boston is a very nice place to live in. Every one who lives here seems to think so.

As to whether I like Boston better than New York I can hardly say. Boston is a different city from the Metropolis. I don't think I can compare the two cities. They are quite unlike.
